FRENCH MINISTERS RESIGN IN A BODY; MILLERAND CALLED

TO TAKE FOREIGN PORTFOLIO

Raoul Peret Slated for Ministry of War and Paul Jourdain for That of Labor.

DEFINITE DECISION TODAY

PARIS, Jan. 18.—The Cabinet of Premier Clemenceau resigned today. President Poincaré tonight asked Alexandre Millerand, Governor of Alsace, to form a new Cabinet. M. Millerand will give his answer by noon Monday.

Premier and Foreign Minister—ALEXANDRE MILLERAND.
Minister of Justice—M. L'HOPITEAU.
Minister of the Interior—ANDRE HONNORAT.
Minister of War—RAOUL PERET.
Minister of Marine—M. LANDRY.
Minister of Public Instruction—VICTOR BERARD.
Minister of Commerce—M. ISAAC.
Minister of Colonies—ALBERT SARRAUT.
Minister of Labor—PAUL JOURDAIN.

All are Deputies except M. Bérard. It is understood that Premier Millerand will ask Captain André Tardieu to retain the Portfolio of Liberated Regions.

M. Millerand also contemplates the creation of a new ministry to deal with hygiene and social questions, which will be intrusted to M. Coupat, formerly General Secretary of the Mechanics' Federation. He is not a member of Parliament.

Another specialist likely to be utilized is Frederic Francois-Marsal, Director of one of the principal Paris banks, who will probably be asked to accept office in the Ministry of Finance.

The choice of M. Millerand as Premier has created an excellent impression in Parliamentary circles. It is recalled that he has always been a special student of social and economic problems. It is those problems which now dominate all else.

Preparations for the election of the new Cabinet proceeded throughout the day, and it is hoped that the Ministry will be definitely completed before tomorrow night, in which case the Ministers will hold their first meeting on Tuesday to draw up a Ministerial declaration and will make their bow to Parliament on Wednesday or Thursday at the latest.

The outgoing Ministry has been in office since Nov. 16, 1917.

M. Millerand was first called to the Elysée Palace at 4:30 P. M. He remained ten minutes with President Poincaré. He then conferred with President-elect Deschanel, M. Clemenceau, and Léon Bourgeois, President of the National Assembly, at their residences. He returned to the Elysée Palace at 7 o'clock, at which time M. Poincaré formally requested him to form a Cabinet to succeed that of M. Clemenceau. M. Millerand promised to give his decision between 11 o'clock and noon Monday. He said President Poincaré had asked him to consult with M. Deschanel before undertaking the task.

Millerand and Deschanel Confer.

M. Millerand said tonight that he had had a long and cordial conversation with M. Deschanel, who gave him his best wishes for success.

President Poincaré, after receiving Premier Clemenceau and all the Ministers and sub-Secretaries and receiving their resignations this morning, kept M. Clemenceau three-quarters of an hour. He expressed the gratitude of France for the Premier's services and his personal appreciation of their excellent relations.

When leaving the Elysée Palace this morning. M. Clemenceau said he had merely thanked President Poincaré for his collaboration in the dark days of the war and for the President's goodwill. President Poincaré replied in flattering terms.

"We can add," says the Havas Agency, "that President Poincaré recalled M. Clemenceau's part in the work of national defense and added that through him the whole of France thanked Clemenceau, and that Clemenceau would retain this unalterable gratitude."

Clemenceau Going to Egypt Soon.

M. Clemenceau declared today that he intended to leave soon for Egypt for a sojourn of two months.

President Poincaré visited M. Deschanel at the Bourbon Palace at 2 o'clock this afternoon to discuss the situation and decide who should be intrusted with the task of forming a Cabinet. He then received M. Bourgeois at the Elysée Palace to consult with him regarding the choice of a Premier.

According to l'Oeuvre, M. Deschanel has informed his friends that M. Millerand will be the first Premier of his term as President. It is generally considered impossible that a Cabinet should be formed for the month only which elapses before M. Deschanel takes office. It is believed that M. Poincaré is acting in close agreement with the President-elect with regard to the choice of a Premier to succeed M. Clemenceau and that M. Deschanel will confirm M. Poincaré's choice on Feb. 17.

Early this evening M. Deschanel called

1,000 American Deserters To Be Rounded Up in Paris

PARIS, Jan. 18.—One thousand deserters from the American Army still remain in and around Paris, according to official announcement. Many of them are without domiciles and are experiencing such financial embarrassment that, according to the French police, they have resorted to misdemeanors such as petty thieving and larcenies in order to procure means of subsistence.

The situation is such that the French authorities are planning a general raid. A dragnet will be thrown out for the arrest of all persons wearing American uniforms who are not supplied with proper credentials and leaves of absence.

Lieut. Col. T. Bentley Mott, Military Attaché of the American Embassy, has been authorized by the War Department to hold a court-martial on any American soldier arrested.

BRYAN ATTACKS TREATY DELAY

DENOUNCES THE PROFITEER

Hotel Astor Audience Cheers the Commoner—Senator Owen for Political Amnesty.

Declaring that the Democratic Party could not go before the country in the Presidential elections to defend the failure of the Democratic minority in the Senate to effect a compromise with the Republican majority on the treaty and the League of Nations, William Jennings Bryan came forward again last night as the champion of immediate ratification and as an individual Democrat outlining proposals for the settlement of grave domestic problems.

Speaking from rough notes and not from a prepared manuscript, the man who has thrice been an unsuccessful candidate for the Presidency asserted his belief that no campaign speaker could go before any audience in the country with the treaty as an issue and defend the position of the Democratic Party in the Senate. The occasion was a dinner given in his honor in the Hotel Astor by the Society of Arts and Sciences.

In the first part of his speech upon the treaty and the League of Nations he used almost word for word the text of his prepared speech delivered at the Jackson Day dinner in Washington on January 8, and then, with all the vehemence and eloquence that made the name of the Commoner famous over the world, he launched into an extemporaneous amplification of his views that held his audience in their seats for more than an hour. So tense was the interest that only at rare intervals did the 1,500 members of the society burst into applause. When he sat down the applause was thunderous.

He pointed out that the treaty and the League of Nations had been accepted by the European nations, although many of their statesmen had criticised some of its provisions, and that while "anarchy and Bolshevism is beginning on the other side we are silent and don't help."

Calls Treaty Delay "a Disgrace."

"It is a shame, an outrage and a disgrace on our kind of Government, and we can't allow it to last," he asserted in this part of his speech, dealing with his premise that the delay in the Senate made it appear that it was more difficult for a democracy to settle a war and make provisions for peace than to declare war.

Referring to another delay of fourteen months, the time necessary for an appeal to the voters through elections, Mr. Bryan said that he "loved his party too well to allow it to commit this crime" of delaying the treaty for another such period. He pointed out that it was extremely difficult to foresee whether, at the end of that time, either party would be able to come to a decision in the treaty without compromise because no one could foresee what would be the politics of the next Senate. One-third of the Senators would retire, he said, and no great swing of votes to either side would be sufficient to settle the treaty issue in the Senate without some compromise.

Former Ambassador Gerard, introducing Mr. Bryan, referred to the fact that the Commoner had vigorously supported the fight for equal rights for women, and he had also urged the enactment of welfare laws for minors. He referred to Mr. Bryan's work in connection with the so-called "Bryan treaties."

When Mr. Bryan arose he received a strong welcome, and after alluding to his speech earlier in Brooklyn he remarked that the dinner last night, which he said was a sort of surprise to him, gave him "an opportunity to speak in New York on subjects I thought I would have to pass by this time." He commended the political attitude of Senator Owen and former Governor Folk, and also paid tribute to the work of Mr. Gerard while Ambassador in Berlin.

"I am glad to welcome the entrance of woman into the political arena," said Mr. Bryan, "for she enters that arena at a time when she is needed most. My friends, great issues are impending. Just as the great liquor trust, with its corrupting influence, retires from the po-

POWHATAN FLOODED WITH 500 ABOARD; ALL LIVES SAVED

Army Transport, with Boiler Room Under Water, Relieved After Sending S O S.

CEDRIC TO TAKE PASSENGERS

Troopship Carried Roosevelt on Way to Africa—Was Chartered by Former Kaiser.

WILL BE TOWED TO HALIFAX

BOSTON, Jan. 18.—The army transport Powhatan, with 500 passengers aboard, sent word by radio today that she was in distress about 500 miles east of New York. The boiler room was said to be flooded, with the water gaining and help from the pumps uncertain. The steamers Western Comet and Cedric, which replied to the distress calls, were asked to stand by, and have taken positions near the disabled transport.

Captain Randall, who signed the messages, gave the position of the Powhatan as latitude 41.05 North, longitude 62.01 West.

The first message said the transport's fire room was flooded, with the pipes choked and water gaining. In a second message Captain Randall said: "We have 500 persons on board. Boiler room flooded. Desire ships stand by until results of attempt to raise steam to start pumps is known."

The Coast Guard Cutters Ossipee at Portsmouth, N. H., Acushnet at Woods Hole and Gresham at this port tonight were ordered to the assistance of the Powhatan.

White Star Liner Standing By.

Shortly after the first message another one reported that the White Star liner Cedric was standing by. Colonel Mitchell, in charge of the Army Transport offices, asked the naval authorities at Halifax to send tugs to the assistance of the distressed vessel immediately.

It was on the Powhatan that former Emperor William visited England in 1906. At that time he was reputed to have paid the Hamburg-American Line $4,256 a day for the use of the liner, which was then known as the steamship Hamburg.

Later the vessel was used to carry Theodore Roosevelt and his party to Europe in March, 1909, when he made his trip to Africa hunting big game. In 1914 the liner was chartered by the American Red Cross to take doctors and nurses to the European war zone, and made a number of trips in this capacity under the name Red Cross.

When the United States entered the war, in 1917, the Red Cross was renamed Powhatan and placed in the transport service. The vessel carried thousands of soldiers to Europe and return without incident, making her last trip on Sept. 23, 1919.

A message from Captain Randall received at 45 Broadway shortly before midnight last night stated that the Powhatan was in no immediate danger and would probably be floated in Halifax.

Coast Guard Cutters Sent to Aid.

The first news of the accident to the United States Army transport Powhatan was received at the Port and Zone Transportation office at 3 P. M. yesterday by Colonel J. B. Mitchell. He said that the vessel was disabled through her pumps being choked and the boiler room flooded, and was asking that tugs equipped with heavy hawsers for towing be dispatched to her assistance at once.

Captain Randall, the Commander of the Powhatan, gave his position as 41.05 north latitude and 62.01 west longitude, which, Colonel Mitchell said, was about 300 miles due south of Halifax, Nova Scotia. At first it was deemed advisable to send two of the United States Coast Guard cutters from Boston to the distressed transport, but as it would take them at least two days to reach the Powhatan it was decided to telegraph to Halifax for tugs. Two destroyers were sent from Newport to stand by the transport in case of danger of lives being lost. The S. O. S. calls sent out by the Powhatan were answered by the White Star liner Cedric and the United States Army transports Northern Pacific and Martha Washington, which were due to arrive here on Wednesday with the last of the American troops from France on board.

Gale and Rough Sea.

Colonel Mitchell said that the captains of the transports reported there was a northeast gale blowing and a rough sea on. Shortly after 7 o'clock the Colonel received a third message from Captain Randall, which was as follows:

"Steamships Cedric and Western Comet standing by. Will transfer passengers to Cedric when the weather moderates."

Colonel Mitchell said that he had received no details regarding the accident to the Powhatan, beyond the captain's message. He did not believe there was any danger and said that after transferring the passengers the transport would be towed to Halifax for repairs.

The Powhatan left New York on her present voyage last Friday morning from the army piers at Hoboken for Antwerp. The passenger list, army officials said, was classed as follows: 183 military, 84 War Department, 2 Commerce Department and 2 Navy Department. Included among these was a party of 75 former service men and officers who were on their way to the French battlefields to begin the work of returning the bodies of American soldier dead to this country. The expedition was in charge of Herbert S. Foreman, a former artillery officer of the Rainbow Division.

German Assembly Approves State and Army Extra Pay

BERLIN, Jan. 17.—The National Assembly today approved the Government's measure granting extra allowances to all officials in the State service, including the officers and men of the army. The bill approved involves the payment of approximately 500,000,000 marks.

Meanwhile the Government is conferring with the workers on new wage schedules, to become effective in the Spring. The Assembly will devote a special session, to be held Sunday, to the final reading of the shop councils measure, and then adjourn for a week.

SOCIALIST CLUB ROBBED OF PAPERS

GREAT ARRAY OF COUNSEL

Socialist leaders in the Seventeenth Assembly District, from which August Claessens was sent as a Socialist member to the Assembly, reported yesterday to the police that some one had broken into their club house, at 59 East 107th Street, and had taken away many papers relating to the activities of the organization.

The records were removed on Saturday afternoon while the janitor, John Daly, was temporarily absent. When he returned he found that the lock on a door leading into a meeting room had been broken. A roll-top desk in the same room where the records were kept had been pried open and many papers weer scattered about the desk and floor.

Dr. Karl Gottfriend, Secretary of the club, said after looking through the papers, that many records had been taken away. For the most part, he said, they were club records, but there were some papers which had been intrusted to him by individuals for safekeeping. He informed the police of the occurrence, which he referred to as "burglary." The police were investigating last night.

Children in the neighborhood of the clubhouse say they saw two men enter the building while Daly was away. About thirty minutes later they left the building carrying papers.

A possible connection between the loss of the papers and the trial at Albany tomorrow of Assemblymen Claessens and his four Socialist colleagues was suggested. Many records of the Socialists have been subpoenaed for the investigation. Julius Gerber, Executive Secretary of the New York Socialist Party, at 7 East Fifteenth Street, collected half a ton of papers yesterday to be taken to Albany under subpoena by Chairman Martin of the Assembly Judiciary Committee.

Will Stick to the Issue.

Morris Hillquit yesterday accused Attorney General Newton of injecting, through the press, matters which were intended to cloud the real issue. "We will make every effort to keep out of the hearing all such irrelevant matters," he said. "There is only one issue involved, and the testimony of prospective deportees at Ellis Island or any other such persons can have no bearing on the case."

The Socialist Assemblymen and their counsel will leave today for Albany. There they will be joined by Seymour Stedman of Chicago, who will be associated with the Socialists' lawyers. Mr. Hillquit is counting upon the aid of the Bar Association's special committee on many of the constitutional points.

The legal line-up at tomorrow's hearing will include some of the most prominent lawyers in the State. Mr. Hillquit, for the defense, will be aided by Mr. Stedman, S. John Block, Gilbert E. Roe, Walter Nelles, and William Karlin. Mr. Stedman defended Eugene V. Debs, Victor L. Berger, and the publication, The Masses, when accused under the Espionage act. Mr. Block is State Chairman of the Socialist Party. Mr. Nelles is attorney for the National Liberties Bureau. Mr. Roe, who is a former law partner of Senator La Follette, has defended many radicals. Mr. Karlin is a former Socialist Assemblyman. All of the Socialist counsel are serving without compensation.

John B. Stanchfield and Martin W. Littleton, whom Attorney General Newtown has called into the case, have figured in many cases of widespread interest, including the Thaw case. Archibald E. Stevenson, associate counsel for the Lusk Committee, will assist them at the hearing.

Former United States Supreme Court Justice Charles E. Hughes heads the Special Committee of the Bar Association. Morgan J. O'Brien, a former Justice of the Supreme Court of New York; Louis Marshall, an expert on constitutional law and counsel for ex-Governor William Sulzer at his impeachment proceedings; Ogden L. Mills, formerly a State Senator, and Joseph M. Proskauer, a business law attorney and a well known trial lawyer, are the other members of the Committee.

Bar Committee's Status.

The exact status of the Bar Association's representatives probably will not be determined until the hearing opens. Attorney General Newton has said that the committee would be "treated courteously," but there has been no indication as to the committee's attitude toward their participation in the proceedings. The Socialists have expressed a wish to have them act as associate

LLOYD GEORGE ACTED TO FOIL ARMY CHIEFS

CHURCHILL DISAVOWS SCARE

ALLIES DEFIED BY POLAND

LONDON, Jan. 18.—(Associated Press)—The communication concerning the Bolshevist menace recently issued by the War Office at London was in consequence of a departmental policy divergent from that of Premier Lloyd George, the Associated Press is informed upon first authority. Winston Spencer Churchill, the British Secretary for War, has himself told Mr. Lloyd George that he did not know about the issuance of the communication, but that he believed the Prime Minister underestimated the danger from the spread of armed Bolshevism.

It has been explained to the Prime Minister that the War Office associates of Mr. Churchill, knowing how strongly he felt on the subject of Bolshevism, undertook to influence public opinion in the direction of their chief's convictions. If Mr. Churchill's views were accepted, the Allies would invade Russia for the purpose of destroying Bolshevism in its home, while Mr. Lloyd George's view is that that would amount to war against Soviet Russia and would only solidify the Russian people.

Mr. Lloyd George compares the situation respecting Russia today with that of France after 1793 to the end of the century. Military pressure from without, the Premier affirms, united the French people behind the revolutionary Government, so that they were able not only to make headway against foreign enemies but win victories. That is precisely what Europe might see, Mr. Lloyd George holds, if Mr. Churchill's point of view were allowed to influence the British and French Cabinets.

Insisted on Immediate Action.

Hence, Mr. Lloyd George on the very day the communication was issued by the British War Office insisted upon the Supreme Council partially raising the blockade against Russia, the allied Prime Ministers intending to show indirect acceptance of the changed conditions in Russia by permitting free trade in food, clothing and other nonmilitary commodities without diplomatic relations.

These trade arrangements are not yet clearly defined. They were made through representatives of Russian co-operative societies in Paris, who say they have been informed that the Soviet Government equally countenances trade without regard to political relationships.

The Italians take no part in the military conferences. Field Marshal Foch and Field Marshal Sir Henry Wilson form the Inter-Allied Military Council so far as consideration of middle and near eastern questions are concerned. They met yesterday and today, and their deliberations, the Associated Press is informed, have had more to do with restraining Polish military operations against Russia than with supporting those operations by aid from abroad.

The prime ministers took up the Polish question seriously on Thursday and Friday. Their information was that the Polish armies have during recent weeks occupied considerable territory beyond the Polish boundaries and belonging properly to Russia. The prime ministers warned the Polish Government that they could not support a policy of expansion. They requested M. Padek, the Polish Foreign Minister, now in Paris, to advise Poland to evacuate and abandon Russian occupied territories and thus avoid giving cause for attack by the Soviet Government. This M. Padek refused to do.

One of the principal military and political problems not yet determined by the Supreme Council and its military advisers is what should be done if the Soviet forces drive the Poles from the occupied territories and follow them into Poland. The prime ministers admit that they are much embarrassed by the Polish Government's refusal to retire within the boundaries fixed by the Supreme Council, holding instead those based on historical claims, which are deemed vague by the Council.

Business Men Approve Move.

The unexpected decision of the Allies to resume trade relations with Russia appears to be popular with all British business men. Plans for renewing the exchange of goods have not yet been formed, but there are lively expectations among the big banking and commercial houses engaged in business with Russia before the war of a coming boom.

Transport, both within Russia and to Russia, and finance are the chief obstacles to be dealt with. Business men consider that barter on a large scale presents the greatest difficulties and would involve much delay and complicated bargaining. The Bolshevist Government is supposed to have a great sum of gold which formerly belonged to the Czarist régime, and has announced its willingness to use gold for foreign trade. This would require co-

DANIELS DENIES HE SLURRED BRITISH; BENSON WON'T SAY WHO WARNED SIMS; INQUIRY ON NAVY TO FOLLOW CHARGES

> I observe that Rear Admiral Sims on Saturday read to a sub-committee of the Naval Affairs Committee of the Senate a copy of a paper recently sent to the department, which he entitled "Certain Naval Lessons of the Great War." The original of this has been referred to the General Board of the Navy for action.
> At the proper time and in the proper way any fair-minded investigator will be convinced that the allegations reflecting upon the vigorous, effective and successful prosecution of the war, so far as the Navy Department and the entire navy are concerned, are based upon opinions which are without justification.
> It is not my purpose at this time to comment on the letter as a whole, but one passage is of such a nature, having a bearing as it does upon international relations, that I wish to say that never to Rear Admiral Sims did I say: "Don't let the British pull the wool over your eyes. It is none of our business pulling their chestnuts out of the fire. We would as soon fight the British as the Germans."
> In the latter part of March, 1917, after relations had been broken of with Germany and the American Navy had begun to arm merchant ships, Rear Admiral Sims was summoned to Washington. He was informed by me that he had been selected to go to London as special and confidential representative of the Navy Department. He was given explicit verbal instructions to visit the American Ambassador at London, to get in touch with the British Admiralty, to investigate the sinkings by submarines and the situation generally and inform the Navy Department fully. Of course, his mission was confidential, as the United States was then a neutral.
> At that time Congress had not declared war. Rear Admiral Sims was cautioned to perform no act and to make no public statement that could commit this country to any course pending declaration of the country's policy by the President and the Congress. In this connection I reminded him of the statement in his Guildhall speech in England, when he was a younger man, for which he was reprimanded by President Taft: "If the time ever comes when the British Empire is seriously menaced by an external enemy, it is my opinion that you can count upon every man, every dollar, every drop of blood of your kindred across the sea."
> I told him he was selected, not because of this speech, but in spite of it, believing he would exercise the discretion and diplomacy which the confidential nature of his mission necessitated and that his wide acquaintance with naval leaders abroad would facilitate his obtaining for the department at first hand the information desired by this Government.
> It is, I am sure, superfluous to add that I did not use the words which I have quoted above, relating to other Governments, or any words that could convey like meaning.

THEORY OF DENIKIN FAILURE

Bolshevist Successes in South and Also in Siberia Attributed to Revolts Behind Front.

BY WALTER DURANTY.

RIGA, Jan. 15—The Letts are advancing all along the front from the Esthonian border to the junction point with the Poles. Not only has the threatened Red counterstroke not developed, but on the extreme left, where the enemy concentration is heaviest, progress has been most marked.

The important junction of Pultowowa, where the Marienhausen loopline joins the Pskov-Regziza trunk route, fell yesterday to the troops of the Eighth Regiment, and practically all the northern half of Letgalen is clear of the enemy. The southern half of the front also moved forward yesterday morning and it is expected that Letgalen, capital of Regziza, will fall soon. Near Pultowowa the Letts annihilated a company of Chinese Bolshevist troops, taking several prisoners.

Much has been written about the terrible army of paid Chinamen, but in point of fact their fighting qualities are far inferior to those of the real Communist battalions. As executioners, the Chinese are excellent, and know the trick of making death most slow and terrible, but that is all. If there be a yellow peril in connection with Bolshevism, it will not come from the Chinese.

Number of Real Reds Exaggerated.

Regarding the real Communist troops, I learn that their number is greatly exaggerated. In reality it is doubtful whether there are more than four or five regiments—say, 12,000 men—altogether. They receive special pay, food, clothing, arms, leaves, and other benefits. For the most part they are not kept at the front, but used as shock troops when a hostile attack is made. They also form a nucleus for the selection of commissars and Communist spies in other units. The Lettish victories do much to strengthen the theory put forward in former dispatches that the Red troops really are almost worthless from a military standpoint.

English newspapers received here are full of the successes aganst Denikin and Kolchak. To read them one would think that something like the great German advance after Charleroi in 1914 was taking place. This is very far from the truth. What is actually happening is that the area in rear of Denikin's and Kolchak's armies—already thoroughly hostile owing to bad administration—is taking advantage of their defeat to break away completely. When a Bolshevist a communique triumphantly announces that such and such towns have been occupied and so much material captured, the truth is that the inhabitants

KAISER ARRAIGNED IN ALLIES' DEMAND

Would Have Been Delivered Had He Remained in Germany, They Point Out.

Holland Told She Would Be Declining International Duty by Protecting Ex-Ruler.

PARIS, Jan. 18, (Associated Press)—The Supreme Council's note to the Dutch Government, asking that the former German Emperor be given up to the Allies under Article 227 of the Versailles treaty for trial, points out that if he had remained in Germany he would have been delivered up under the same conditions by the German Government.

"Among so many crimes," the note recalls "the cynical violation of the neutrality of Belgium and Luxemburg, the barbarous system of hostages massed deportations, systematic devastation without military reasons, the submarine war, for all of which acts responsibility, at least moral, reaches the supreme chief, who ordered them or abused his unlimited powers to break, or permit others to break, the most sacred rules of human conscience.

"The Powers cannot conceive that the Netherlands would regard with less reprobation than themselves the immense responsibility weighing upon the ex-Emperor. Holland would not be fulfilling her international duty if she refused to associate herself with other nations, so far as she is able, to prosecute, or at least not impede, the punishment of crimes committed."

The note points out that it is the duty of the powers to insure execution of Article 227 without entering into argument, because "it is not a question of public accusation having throughout a legal character, but an act of high international policy imposed by the universal conscience, in which legal forms are employed solely to insure the accused body guarantees such as have hitherto been unknown in public law."

It concludes by expressing the conviction that Holland, one of the first countries to claim a place in the League of Nations, will not desire to cover by moral authority violation of the essential principles of the solidarity of nations, and that all are interested to prevent a return of a similar catastrophe.

Note Said to Have Reached Holland.

THE HAGUE, Jan. 18.—Although the Foreign Office denies any knowledge of the arrival of a note regarding the extradition of the ex-Kaiser, there is every reason to believe that the note arrived yesterday by special courier from Paris, where it was delivered by M. Clemenceau to the Dutch Minister an hour previous to the departure of the courier for Holland.

The usually well-informed and often semi-official Nieuwe Courant also states this morning that there is reason to believe that the note has been delivered to the Government. The paper quotes a long article from L'Intransigeant by the famous jurist Clunetvin in which the latter says it is impossible for Holland to deliver the ex-Kaiser according to laws and treaties, arguing that if Holland joins the League she could not start with such an act. The Courant adds that should Holland refuse the demand the Allied Governments could only be grateful.

DANIELS WRITES TO PAGE

Letter Held to Eliminate Him as Official Referred to by Sims.

ADMIRAL BENSON SILENT

FULL INQUIRY IS TO BE HELD

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Secretary Daniels has written to Senator Page of Vermont, Chairman of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee, a letter in which he denies that he was the official in the Navy Department who, as alleged by Admiral Sims in his testimony before that committee yesterday, orally instructed him not to let the British "pull the wool" over his eyes when he went to London, and that "we would as soon fight the British as the Germans."

This denial from Secretary Daniels would seem to eliminate one high official of the Government from those who would be in a position to give any instructions to Admiral Sims just before he left Washington for London in March, 1917.

In the Navy Department itself the next responsible official in position to give instructions, written or oral, to Admiral Sims at the beginning of such a mission would be the Chief of Naval Operations. At the time Admiral Sims went abroad Admiral William S. Benson was Chief of Naval Operations, and as such conferred with Admiral Sims just before he left Washington. Secretary Daniels's denial in his letter to Senator Page is regarded as rather leaving it up to Admiral Benson to explain whether he was the man who made the statement to Admiral Sims.

The sensational arraignment of the policy and conduct of the Navy Department during the war contained in the letter, which Admiral Sims wrote to Secretary Daniels on Jan. 7, and was read by the Admiral before a Senate sub-committee yesterday, will result in a complete investigation of the conduct of the Navy Department during the great conflict.

Admiral Sims charged that grave errors were committed by those in charge of the administration of the navy, that these were in violation of fundamental military principles, that he was not properly provided with a staff while in London, that his recommendations were turned down when he asked for the dispatch of naval units, or that the ships he sought were greatly delayed in being furnished, and cited what he regarded as eleven specific instances of incompetence.

The most profound surprise was created when Admiral Sims read that portion of his letter in which he charged that, on leaving Washington for London just before the American declaration of war against Germany was adopted by Congress, he was told by a person in authority in the Navy Department that he should not "let the British pull the wool over your eyes," and that "we would as soon fight the British as the Germans."

Secretary Daniels, who had administrative control over the Navy Department during the war, and Admiral William S. Benson, who was Chief of Naval Operations throughout the war, fully realize that they will have an opportunity to state their side of the case to the Congressional investigating committee, and that they preferred not to answer Admiral Sims until they took the witness stand at the Capital. Secretary Daniels's denial was not given out until after midnight.

Admiral Benson would not say whether he knew who had given such instructions as those quoted by Admiral Sims.

There is every indication tonight that the sensational testimony given by Admiral Sims has brought the American Navy to the threshold of another controversy that will rank with the famous Decatur-Barron row that followed the exploits of the American Navy in the Tripolitan War, and the Schley-Samson controversy which followed the Spanish-American War, and that the principals in the new controversy will be Admiral Sims and Admiral Benson.

Admiral Sims's letter is a carefully prepared arraignment of the whole conduct of the war from the naval point of view, so far as American naval conduct and policy was concerned, and is an arraignment not only of the Secretary of the Navy for his approval of what was done, but is aimed directly at Admiral Benson, who, as Chief of Naval Operations, ran the navy during the war, and at the officers of his staff, as well as of the General Board of the Navy, who were consulted by the Navy Department on matters of policy and conduct.

When the United States entered the war Admiral Benson was ranking member of the General Board of the Navy, Admiral George Dewey, its President, [illegible] the other principal members of the board were Rear Admirals Knight, then President of the Naval War College; Badger, who had command of the Atlantic Fleet, and Frank F. Fletcher. By Jan. 1, 1918, Rear Admiral Winterhalter had been given a prominent place on the General Board in place of Rear Admiral Knight.

It so happens that Rear Admirals Badger and Knight, who were prominent members of the board when we entered the war, are the principal members of the Knight Board, which passed on Admiral Sims's recommendations in the matter of naval awards, before Secretary Daniels took his action. It was the Knight Board which cut down Admiral Sims's recommendation that certain members of his staff at London, whom he had recommended for Distinguished Service Medals, receive navy crosses, which action Secretary Daniels approved.

While Admiral Benson would not permit himself to be interviewed tonight, his friends asserted that he would not rest silent under the imputations and criticisms regarding the conduct of naval policy during the war made by Admiral Sims, and that when he takes the stand before the Senate Committee he will strike from the shoulder in defense of American naval policy and conduct and uphold it as the best that those in charge of naval action in Washington could do under the circumstances. While Secretary Daniels is now the one to whom the criticisms have been addressed by Admiral Sims, there is every indication that when the issue has been joined it will confront Congress with a choice between American naval policy as directed by Admiral Benson and American naval policy as it would have been if Admiral Sims had had his way.

The Senate Naval Committee will meet tomorrow morning to broaden the scope of the investigation from a mere inquiry into how naval awards were made into a complete investigation of American naval conduct during the war. Senator Page of Vermont, Chairman of the Naval Committee, has been asked by Senator Hale of Maine, Chairman of the sub-committee of five before which Admiral Sims was heard, to call the full Naval Committee together tomorrow, because he regarded the Sims allegations of such a serious character as to warrant the investigation being broadened.

Senator Pittman of Nevada, ranking Democrat on the Hale sub-committee, said tonight he would welcome an investigation of the allegations made by Admiral Sims, and declared his belief that so important an inquiry should not be made by the sub-committee(but that it should be conducted by the entire membership of the Senate Naval Committee. The members of the sub-committee are Hale of Maine, McCormick of Illinois and Newberry of Michigan, Republicans, and Pittman of Nevada and Trammel of Florida, Democrats. These are all younger members of the committee in point of service.

At tomorrow's session of the Naval Committee the Democrats will take a stand in favor of the whole committee, instead of a sub-committee, making the broader investigation. Unless this is resisted by the Republicans, the larger investigation will be made by the full committee, the other members of which are Penrose, Lodge, Poindexter, Ball and Keyes, Republicans, and Swanson, Smith of Maryland, Phelan, Walsh of Montana, Gerry and King, Democrats.

Some Senators seen tonight regretted that the opening up of the rift in the ranks of the navy, involving high ranking officers on both sides, should come in this way. They seemed to feel that good would not be accomplished, so far as the morale and general good of the navy was concerned, by a public discussion of alleged mistakes of policy in handling the navy in wartime. These Senators felt that it would have been better to have worked out these criticisms at the Naval War College or in the General Board, and there were others who seemed to think that the criticisms made by Admiral Sims, if proved to be warranted, when the investigation was over, would furnish the British and French Governments, should they so elect, the opportunity to contend that this Government did not live up to its duties as an ally, so far as naval co-operation was concerned.

Regardless of individual views of this sort it appears to be the consensus of opinion among Senators of both sides tonight, now that the Sims letter has been made public, that there is no other course to pursue than to order a broad, wide-open investigation, and that every officer involved one way or another receive full opportunity to be heard and cross-examined. There is not the slightest doubt tonight that there will be a most thorough-going investigation or that the fur will fly when high ranking naval officers are heard on the witness stand.

SAYS SIMS KNOWS MORE.

H. A. Wise Wood Urges Senator Page to Question Him Further.

As a result of the disclosures made by Rear Admiral Sims in his testimony before a sub-committee of the Naval Affairs Committee of the Senate on Saturday, Henry A. Wise Wood, a former member of the Naval Consulting Board, yesterday sent the following telegram to Senator Carroll S. Page, Chairman of that committee:

"In view of the grave accusations made by Rear Admiral Sims and of the known limitations under which naval officers, including himself, have had to act, I am convinced that Sims has not yet told all that he knows. I have reason for believing this. Therefore, I urge that Sims be compelled to tell everything in his knowledge concerning the restrictions under which he had to work abroad. The American people are now entitled to the fullest exposure of what occurred."

LETVIA ALMOST CLEARED OF REDS

of that town have thrown over the Whites for the Reds. Very likely there are no Red troops there at all, and almost certainly there is no fighting.

It cannot be too strongly emphasized that Bolshevist successes of this kind are not won by arms. When the Reds are forced to fight against decent troops—as is the case in Letvia at present—they fall down every time. England certainly, and America probably, believes today that the Bolshevist Army is seriously to be reckoned with. Little New Latvia—who knows better—is perfectly willing to tackle the Red colossus with her handful of war-weary troops unsupported by adequate reserves. This bold step has been justified by results, and when one asks the Letts about the danger of the Bolsheviki bringing back an overwhelming force from other fronts they simply smile.

"The more they come the more they will be killed," said one officer to me today. "But they know better than to risk it. Now we have got them on the run and won't stop until Letgalen is wholly cleared."

Red Troops Army of Slaves.

The terrorist system in the Red Army is at once the strength and weakness of the Bolshevist régime.

It is its strength because it—together with the parallel system in the civil administration—permits highly centralized control of the whole army machine. Owing to the secrecy and ruthless cruelty of its methods, no revolt or even murmuring is possible. But it has produced an army of slaves hating their masters and their work equally.

In Russia, where the great mass of the population is hopelessly ignorant and inferior to the small intelligentsia minority, it would not have mattered so much had only the rank and file been in this servile condition. That was the case in the old army, but when led by competent officers the automatic obedience and complete carelessness of life of the Russian troops made them dreaded even by the best German divisions.

I remember in the Summer of 1918 asking a captured Lieutenant of the Prussian Guards what allied troops he ranked highest. He had never fought Americans, though he said brother officers told him they had the devilish quality of refusing to quit when beaten by all the rules of war. Of the British he spoke well as being good, steady pluggers. The French, he said, were unsurpassable when things were going their way, but they did not stand rough weather. But the Russians—that was another story.

"When the Russians are well led," he explained, "you must kill them or they will kill you. They are too stupid to stop. They just keep on coming, ten, twelve attacks one after another, until either you are swamped or they are slaughtered."

But in the Red army the officers are just as much unwilling victims of the Communist system as their men. There is no real spirit in them either for attack or defense. They fight when they must, but they surrender when they can. Of course Yudenitch and other reactionary Generals hopelessly queered their game by shooting the greater part of their prisoners. Any man, no matter what his convictions, will fight to the end if he knows that death be the only alternative. But the Letts are not so foolish, and the result is that the Red front crumbles before them.

"No Heart in the Game.

I asked a captured Bolshevist General what he thought of Red discipline.

"Better than it was," he replied. "That is they dare not refuse to obey an order for fear of the Communists, but speaking generally the whole thing comes to this—we have no heart in the game and any one who can shirk does so."

Another thing stated by prisoners was that leave had been generally canceled because "when any of our men get home they hide rather than come back, and so they won't let others go."

Most of the Bolshevist prisoners I saw were 19-year-old boys. They were well clad and looked well nourished, but they all said they did not wish to fight for the Bolshevist régime and acted under compulsion. There were among them children from orphanges, 13 or 14 years old. These had also been pressed into service and from the Western European viewpoint were quiet useless as soldiers, having neither training nor spirit.

What the Soviet army lacks at present are faith and an ideal. Such a leader could supply both. It is the logic of history to expect he will be produced.

operation between the Bolshevist Government and the co-operative societies.

George H. Roberts, the British Food Controller, said yesterday that there were a million tons of wheat in Russia ready to export which was needed by the European countries suffering from a food shortage. Coffee is one of the foreign products which Soviet Russia has been without and for which there is a great demand.

O'Grady and Litvinoff Pleased.

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 18.—Maxim Litvinoff, the Russian Bolshevist representative, conferring here with James O'Grady, British delegate, regarding an exchange of prisoners and interned civilians, is much gratified by the announcement from the Supreme Council in Paris that trade relations will be opened between the Allies and the people of Soviet Russia. He considers the action of the council tantamount to raising the blockade and says it will have an enormous effect on the economic situation in Russia.

Russia has great stocks of goods for export, especially flax, hemp, timber, bristles, hides, furs and platinum, he says, and particularly needs machinery, agricultural implements and railway materials. He declares there is plenty of food in Siberia and other sections, but there is a lack of transportation facilities. He urges that it will be necessary to allow Russia to send representatives abroad if trade with the outside world is to be a reality, and declares Soviet Russia will freely admit commercial and other representatives on a reciprocal basis.

It is expected by the British delegates that wounded British prisoners in the hands of the Bolsheviki will be all out of Russia next week, and that the remainder of the British prisoners will be at liberty in a fortnight. Much depends upon negotiations with the Archangel Government, but these are said to be progressing favorably, and it is believed they will be concluded in a few days.

Mr. O'Grady hopes a ship can leave England on Feb. 6 with certain Russian prisoners, calling at Denmark for other Russians who are being held here. After taking them to their native country, the ship will return with British prisoners and civilians who have been interned.

The newspapers of Moscow describe the partial lifting by the Allies of the blockade against Russia as a great triumph for the Soviet power and proof that the Soviet Government is established, and declare it has brought about a great advance toward reconstruction, says a Moscow wireless dispatch received here this evening.

It is added that it will be difficult for allied ships to enter Russian ports unless some sort of an armistice is arranged.

ASSERTS RUSSIA HOLDS BIG STORE OF PRODUCTS

Official of Co-operatives' Union Here Tells How Stocks Have Accumulated.

The Russian co-operative organizations through which the Supreme Council has decided to open up trade again with Soviet Russia have warehouses filled with goods at many Russian ports, and stored at Vladivostok are goods valued at 25,000,000 rubles, according to A. J. Zelenko, Secretary of the American Committee of the Russian Co-operatives' Union, in a statement yesterday.

"In Archangel and Black Sea ports there is enough raw material on hand to pay all the credit needed by the co-operatives," said Mr. Zelenko. He declared that in 1918, in spite of the hindrances connected with the blockade and the disturbed state of the country generally, their total turnover was 8,000,000,000 rubles, or about $1,600,000,000.

"Last year the co-operatives operated over 500 industrial plants and had a total of over 50,000 employes," he continued. "The importance of the co-operative societies as a means of restoring normal conditions in Russia and of re-establishing trade conditions with the outside world can hardly be overestimated.

"The entire problem of economic interchange between Russia and America may be reduced to three main channels—increase of agricultural efficiency, importation into Russia of finished manufactured products, and credit for commercial and industrial expansion. In all three branches of this interchange America is the most welcomed country, because the Russian people expect from America fair treatment and open competition entirely free from hidden desires for exploitation of territorial or political rights.

"Russia needs financial credit in order to foster this trade exchange, needs industrial credit not only to restore her industries but to start new branches of industry on the half-product basis, and needs many technically trained men to introduce modern methods in all branches of economic work. After-war conditions have made the need for long-term credit more imperative than ever.

"There has been no possibility of transporting and no willingness on the part of the people to exchange goods for paper money. Large stocks of butter and flax aggregating millions of pounds have accumulated, and as the hunting of fur-bearing animals has practically been at a standstill during that period because of lack of powder and shot, there is a vast amount of furs to be collected.

"The co-operatives unite 20,000,000 members and serve a population of approximately 100,000,000. They hold themselves strictly aloof from politics, and have carried on their activities with remarkably little interruption, all things considered, from the beginning of the war.. They still conduct their long chain of stores, and these are the centres for distributing and collecting raw materials.

AMERICAN RED CROSS TO LEAVE SIBERIA

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Withdrawal of American Red Cross personnel from Siberia simultaneously with the movement of the American Siberian expeditionary force homeward has been ordered in instructions forwarded to Lieut. Col. Rudolph B. Teusler, formerly of Virginia, head of the command. All women workers and such of the men as are not needed to care for supplies now on hand at Vladivostok will move out with the troops, while the medicines and other stores probably will be distributed to civilians and hospitals as rapidly as possible.

Detailing the work of the commission sent to Siberia in July, 1918, the Red Cross in a statement issued today said its operations at one time covered a stretch of 5,000 miles, from Vladivostok to the Ural Mountains. The personnel includes 400 American doctors, nurses and other workers, and 1,000 native helpers. Several of the women workers lost their lives in fighting the typhus epidemic in Siberia which constantly engaged the commission's attention.

"During the first year of its work," the statement said, "the commission established fourteen hospitals for sick and wounded Czech and Russian soldiers and sent eighteen heavily loaded relief trains from Vladivostok to Western Siberia. An anti-typhus train, shuttled back and forth along the line of the Trans-Siberian Railway, played a leading part in the fight against the spread of the scourge.

"The Red Cross served as a connecting link between the American soldiers and home, at the same time providing the numerous comforts needed by the men and recreation and entertainment for the maintenance of their morale. Similar service has been extended to the American railway men who have been keeping the Trans-Siberian Railway open, as well as to the Czechs and the Siberian troops."

litical arena, woman, the greatest force for righteousness, enters it. Her help in the future will be tremendous.

"I want to take up some of the questions before the country, and I do not want to speak as a partisan, for I do not want any one to think that I would place my party above my country. I think that the individual should think for himself, and the citizen, without office, is sometimes more free to express his opinions than those who are in official posts. I am in this class."

Then, referring to the Jackson Day dinner in Washington and the President's letter that was issued on the eve of Mr. Bryan's speech there, he continued:

"I don't think that the President, had he known my speech, would have changed his letter." Then, in the pause that succeeded the laughter, he went on, "And I don't think that I would have changed my speech. I wouldn't belong to a party that prevented one from expressing an opinion on a great issue.

"The man who talks about a split between the President and a man, because they happen to disagree on methods, but agree in purpose, is more interested in partisanship than anything else. The way to find out certain things is to send a ratified treaty to the President. He is not in a position to say what his reservations are. He made the treaty. I stood with the Democrats who stoutly opposed reservations, and I believe that I made as many speeches against reservation as any man in the country."

Commends President's Treaty.

The speaker then outlined the great scope of the treaty's effect once it was in force, and continued:

"I believe that the President got a better treaty than any one had a right to expect. We were in a different position at the Peace Conference than the other nations. They had suffered more. Why, if they had added up all of the things they had lost through the war the total of all Germany's credits would not have compensated them.

"It was perfectly natural that they should ask for all that they could get. Our attitude was different. We sought nothing material out of the peace compact; our only thought was to make future wars impossible. Our President fought single-handed against the interests of all the other nations and I repeat that he brought back a treaty better than any one had reason to expect.

"My position from the outset was that any changes that might be needed in the treaty or the League might better be made after both were in force. The treaty wasn't perfect, but it was the best that could be obtained. That was the attitude of those in favor of the treaty in the Senate, but we were defeated; we did not have a majority in the Senate.

"I think," he continued, with increased earnestness, "that it is incomparably better that a compromise should be reached by both parties that will result in ratification. That will take the treaty out of politics. I would like to have the treaty ratified by a big majority—that would have a great effect abroad. I am also hopeful that sentiment from without will coerce"—he raised his voice—"the Senate into compromise and ratification. That is what I want to see. I am saying this thing because I am more free than some Senators. I have had people differ with me for so long that I would feel uncomfortable if I found myself anything but a minority.

Opposes Fourteen Months' Delay.

"I do not think that the Democratic Party can go before the country carrying the burden for fourteen months' delay to the Peace Treaty. I did not want the party to hide behind a provision of the Constitution"—a reference to the three-quarters of the Senate in agreement claim—"to filibuster for fourteen months while the world waits. I would not defend the right of a minority to block the will of the majority.

"My faith in popular government does not depend on the people wanting what I want; I believe in the popular government of what the people want. The three-quarters provision refers to war, and God forbid that it should be more difficult to get out of a war, than to get into one.

"Then, as to the differences down in Washington. I think they exaggerated things. One of the first things I learned in college was that heat expands things. I think the heated debates down in Washington may have expanded things."

Referring to the preamble offered by the Republicans, and the chances that it would inspire foreign nations to make demands on their own behalf, he said:

"I think that the Republicans must concede the withdrawal of that reservation. I do not doubt that when the time comes they will drop that preamble. I think that we have very much exaggerate the importance of Article X. I think that we must get together and get the outside influence to work and break the shell that surrounds that section of the treaty. Why, some of our people talk as if changing Article X. would destroy the treaty. This talk is not big enough to base a campaign on.

"These are some of the things they've quarreled about down in Washington. I don't think they are big enough to base a campaign on. What the people want is more speed and less phraseology. One side says 'We'll take it to the people,' and the other side says 'Go ahead.' That is a fine attitude to take with the world on fire.

"Nobody who takes the map and studies it doubts that neither party is going to get three-quarters of the members of the next Senate. There are only one-third going out, and there are States which the Republicans won't get, and there are States which the Democrats can't possibly carry. My friends, I love my party too well to be silent when there is danger of its committing this crime." —"apparently an allusion to continued delay on the treaty—"and I love my country too well to remain silent when it overlooks this unprecedented opportunity.

"It is a shame," he went on, "an outrage, a disgrace that we can't get together and settle this. We can't permit the thrusting of this issue into the next campaign to the confusion of other issues, great ones, that must be settled."

He Denounces Profiteering.

"Take profiteering. My friends, I think that the darkest blot on this war was conscienceless profiteering. Profiteering going on while our boys were over there bleeding, profiteering at home bleeding the people. The bleeding overseas halted, but the bleeding here has continued."

He told of instances of profiteering that he personally had heard about, told of the number of millionaires that had been created out of the war, and then, digressing to the coal strike, asserted that the coal operators had made "tremendous" profits and had held firm when the miners sought their increases.

"We must give the people the machinery to protect themselves from profiteers," he continued. "The Government says to the average citizen, 'You can't use violence, no matter what this man has done to you.' And the Government by this statement assumes a solemn obligation to protect that man. But, may I ask, where are the courts, the tribunals, where people can go for protection from profiteers? I think that there ought to be established in every city, town and village trade commissions to deal with this matter.

"Another great issue is the question of the suppression of free speech. I think that every man has a right to express himself, no matter whether one agrees with him or not. The man who advocates, however, the overthrow of the Government by force—there is not a spot under this flag for him. These are questions that can't afford to wait while we talk about the treaty for fourteen months.

"There is, then, the great issue of private ownership, or monopoly, and Government ownership. I think that wherever there is a question about competition being impossible—I think it ought to be Government owned. The progress from private ownership to Government ownership has been steady and consistent.

Says Monopolies Are Massing.

"Wherever the people have taken charge, they have demonstrated that they can reduce the price and give better service. You can't afford to have a private monoply—they extort, they rob and they corrupt politics. Today we have all the great private monopolies massing for one great assault on the right of the people to attend to their own affairs, their own business."

Mr. Bryan bitterly condemned the advertising campaigns of some industries, and declared:

"Whenever there is a fight between a great franchise holding corporation and the people, the people's side isn't heard.

"Now, these are questions that must be heard. I recognize the embarrassment of presenting a case like this to an audience like this. But, you must remember that this audience isn't the American people—the American people also includes farmers and workers.

"But these are things that I feel I must speak about. I will join with you to destroy the man who seeks the destruction of this country by force, and I want you to join with me to destroy the man who seeks to destroy this country by money. I believe that the plutocrat carries the germ of revolution in his bite as surely as does the mosquito carry the germ of yellow fever."

Turning then to "another great issue," Mr. Bryan put forth the initiative and referendum. He enumerated the States that had embraced the doctrine and declared his belief that the mass of people wanted it. He thought that this matter also should be thrested out in the forthcoming campaign.

Owen for Political Amnesty.

Another speaker who pleaded for an immediate settlement of the issue was Senator Robert L. Owen of Oklahoma, who called an informal conference of the Senators from his party three days after the Jackson Day dinner in the hope that some plan for a compromise with the Republicans might be evolved. He spoke also in favor of the wiping out of old war animosities, of amnesty for certain political prisoners, and criticised certain bills before Congress which, he said, were framed to eradicate sedition and anarchy but might be used by some men in official life for the stripping away of some of the liberties of the American people.

James W. Gerard, ex-Ambassador to Germany, who has announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for the Presidency, reiterated his remark made at the Jackson Day dinner that some settlement of the treaty ought to be made at once and that "whoever keeps peace from the world—the responsibility is his." Joseph W. Folk, ex-Governor of Missouri, asserted his opinion that "the treaty should be Americanized by reservations and then promptly ratified."

One of the guests at the dinner was Homer S. Cummings, the Democratic National Chairman, who jokingly protested as he came into the hall that he should not be assigned to a place at the same table with Mr. Bryan and a Presidential possibility such as Mr. Gerard lest too great an official air be given to the function. He sat at one of the tables not on the dais, although one of the places at the long speakers' table was occupied by William F. McCombs, the former National Democratic Chairman.

On Mr. Bryan't right sat Mayor Hylan, and others at the table included Dr. Royal S. Copeland, the Health Commissioner, and members of the present city administration. Eleven seats from Mayor Hylan sat his inveterate foe, Public Service Commissioner Lewis Nixon. The presence of Mayor Hylan and Commissioner Nixon at the same table caused some comment in view of their verbal exchanges upon traction problems.

BORAH ASKS WOOD FOR TREATY VIEWS

Also Wants to Know if He Believes It Should Be Campaign Issue.

REQUESTS DEFINITE ANSWER

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18—The political situation, and the efforts which are being made to reach a compromise on the League of Nations in the Senate were further complicated tonight when Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, representing the group of "irreconcilables" in Congress and other elements who want the treaty of peace killed, called on Major General Leonard Wood, candidate for the nomination as President on the Republican ticket, to state his views as to the advisability of America participating in the proposed League of Nations and to let the country know whether he favors or disapproves the proposal to place the treaty of peace before the electorate as a campaign issue.

Mr. Borah's request was made in the form of a letter, similar in many respects to that which was addressed recently to Governor Lowden, of Illinois. It goes a step further, however, in that it brings up the question of making the treaty a campaign issue, the result, no doubt, of what President Wilson had to say in his now famous letter to the Jackson Day Dinner. Senator Borah and his followers in the movement to "smoke out" Presidential candidates in regard to the treaty and the League of Nations are in favor of making the treaty an issue, as they, at least, are satisfied that the voters of the country would register a protest against it, in its present form.

Coming at a time when a number of Democratic and Republican Senators who favor compromise and the elimination of the treaty from the campaign are endeavoring to reach agreement which they hope may be acceptable to both President Wilson and Senator Lodge, Republican Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate, the action of Senator Borah is at least embarrassing. There is much speculation as to the course General Wood will pursue—whether he will ignore the letter, make definite answer to the questions, or present a reply, general in nature, which does not commit him in regard to the question of making the treaty a campaign issue. As yet he has given no intimation of his intention.

Senator Borah, in his letter, scolds about the efforts which are being made to reach a compromise and keep the League of Nations out of the political campaign. It is evident that Mr. Borah and his followers are determined, if possible, to defeat any compromise which will settle the question.

Text of Senator Borah's Letter.

"Washington, Jan. 17, 1920.

"General Leonard Wood, 46 Mount Vernon Street, Boston, Mass.

"My Dear General: The only practical method under our system of government by which the people can have a voice in determining great national questions and policies is in the election of their agents—their President and their members of Congress. We have no plan for a Federal plebiscite. If the people are to be consulted, the great and solemn referendum ' must take the form of an election, in which election the agents receive their instructions. This justifies what otherwise might seem presumption, to wit, asking those who are candidates for office their views upon important questions.

"We have before us at this time the question of whether we as a people or nation shall abandon the long-established and heretofore unquestioned foreign policy of no entangling alliances or leagues with foreign powers—whether we shall enter upon a course which will devolve upon us the duty of having a part in all the conflicts and disturbances of the Old World, or whether we shall adhere to our foreign policy so long and so consistently followed.

"You will agree with me that no graver question could be submitted to the people, and that none could arise more intimately associated with their future weal or woe. It is not an ordinary matter of treaty making. It involves the question of a great national policy in which is wrapped up the deepest interest of the people, and, as some of us believe, the question of the life or death of our institutions.

"It is not the concern of a few diplomats or of a President and Senate, but it is the concern of the people, upon whose shoulders must rest the burden of this new task.

"Every effort is now being made to deprive the people of any voice in the matter. Under the pretense that it is the mere making of a treaty such as the fathers contemplated when they provided for the making of treaties, it is proposed to fasten this new and hitherto most objectionable policy upon the people of this country, to bind them to this new task without permitting them to be heard in any way whatever. The utmost excitement now prevails in certain quarters for fear this great question will reach the people in the next election. Those who most earnestly insist that the people are for it are among the most desperate lest the people be permitted to vote upon it. Men rush to the Senate forum or public rostrum and declare the people want the League, are overwhelmingly for it, and then spend the rest of the day trying to concoct some scheme by which to deprive the people of any opportunity to be consulted. Their acts, if not their speech, betrayeth them.

"As you are a candidate for President, I feel there is no impropriety in asking you, and I feel you will be glad to state, your position and your views fully upon these questions:

"First—Are you in favor of giving the people an opportunity of passing upon this question in the only way how, as provided by Congress, they can pass upon it, by bringing it before them as an issue in the approaching campaign?

"Do you think it would be fair to the people of the country under the pretense of making a treaty to adopt a scheme which would result in the abandonment of our traditional foreign policy without taking their judgment upon the matter?

"Second—May we ask your views upon this entire matter, aside from your views as to the propriety of submitting it to the people? Would you as a candidate and as a President, if you were elected, seek to maintain the foreign policies of this Government heretofore prevailing or would you be willing to abandon them?

"Would you lend your influence and your power as President to maintain and preserve the policy of no entangling alliances with foreign powers and no interference of foreign powers with American affairs or would you be willing to have the United States enter into an alliance or partnership or league with European and Asiatic nations?

"You are known to be a man of positive views. Your calling and your training are conducive to directness and candor. I anticipate, therefore, that we shall have no difficulty in understanding your position when you have had time to make reply.

"Very respectfully,

"WILIAM E. BORAH."

There were no definite developments today to indicate that a speedy agreement upon a compromise would be reached, but those Senators of both great political parties who are determined to keep it out of the campaign if they possibly can accomplish that end have not given up hope.

Speculate on Bryan's Efforts.

Considerable speculation has been engaged in lately as to the effect which the words and actions of William Jennings Bryan may have upon the chances of a compromise being reached. While some are asserting that Mr. Bryan has done much good, there are others who hold to the belief that Mr. Bryan's injection of his personality into the fight will, at least, not result in influencing President Wilson to give ground.

In this connection a significant story is related.

On the afternoon of the Jackson Day dinner, the advance copies of the President's letter were to have been handed to the newspaper correspondents at the White House at 4 o'clock. At that hour announcement was made that there had been a delay and that it would be 4:30 o'clock or perhaps 5 o'clock before the advance copies would be available.

As it turned out, these advance copies of the President's letter were not made available until after Mr. Bryan, who was at the Lafayette Hotel, a few blocks away, had given to the press copies of the address which he was to deliver at the dinner. As a result Mr. Bryan was in absolute ignorance concerning what the President intended to say, until after he was on record, with no chance of modifying his remarks.

The delay in giving out the advance copy of the President's letter may have been caused by the fact that no word had been received at the White House at 4 o'clock that Mr. Bryan's address had been distributed, but there was considerable comment in this connection, as reflecting the feelings of the President in regard to Mr. Bryan's entry into the situation.

As the situation now shapes up there is no definite information available that either President Wilson or Senator Lodge will give ground in regard to Article X. of the League of Nations. All suggestions in regard to the attitude which either will assume if a compromise is arrived at by any considerable element of the Senate has come from others than the President or Mr. Lodge.

This unsettled situation has served to complicate the political situation, which is now further complicated by the action of Senator Borah and his followers in demanding to know where Presidential aspirants stand in regard to making the treaty an issue in the campaign.

Candidates are reticent about going too far in committing themselves, as they are at a loss to tell whether in the end the treaty will or will not be forced into the campaign as an issue.

Owen Again Urges Compromise.

Senator Owen, Democrat, of Oklahoma, who is reported to be among the Democratic aspirants to the Presidency, although he has not formally announced his candidacy, kept up his activities today by issuing a statement urging the factions to get together on a compromise. Senator Owen is one of the candidates who is openly advocating compromise and to that extent, at least, following the Bryan leadership as opposed to the White House leadership.

Senator Owen says that he believes the treaty should be immediately ratified with or without reservations in order to save Europe from commercial and financial disaster which will immediately be reflected on the United States. Our exports must stop unless financed. If our exports stop an industrial and financial reaction at home is unavoidable. Our banks will suffer very severely if European securities continue to depreciate and foreign exchange goes to chaos, he said, as they hold hundreds of millions of European securities and European exchanges. At the same time he denies any split in the Democratic ranks.

CHINA SOCIETY APPEALS.

Urges Senate to Uphold Shantung Reservation to Treaty.

The China Society of America has sent the following appeal to the members of the United States Senate:

"The China Society of America respectfully petitions and urges the members of the United States Senate to firmly uphold the essential features of the Shantung reservation to the Paris Peace Treaty adopted by the United States Senate Nov. 15, 1919, in order to presreve the honor of our country which induced China to enter the war, and also to maintain the vital interests of the United States, which will be seriously endangered if we fail to make clear our absolute right to freedom of action in the future."

GEN. WOOD PLEADS FOR LAW AND ORDER

AMERICANISM CHIEF NEED

Says We Want a Big Navy, Not a Floating Death Trap.

BOSTON, Jan. 18.—Major Gen. Leonard Wood, speaking to members of the American Legion today, called for a large navy, and asserted that "all we have now is a floating death trap."

"We want," he said, "a first-class navy, and we want it always ready. We cannot make it in a hurry. We cannot have it with a divided fleet. We cannot fill ships with untrained men and say we have a navy. It is not a navy at all; it is a floating death trap.

"We want a large navy," he added, "and an army large enough to police the nation in times of peace. We need a good navy, highly trained men, and good ships." He also advocated a large merchant marine.

General Wood urged the adoption of a "law and order slogan," asserting that "it's no use talking politics these days. There will be no politics, no confidence, no business opportunities, no successful or happy labor unless you have law and order and respect for the rights of property and the rights of others.

"We are going to govern this country by Americans. When I say Americans I do not mean necessarily people whose families have been here many generations, but real Americans, the people who have adopted and are trying to live up to our standards and ideals."

Elements of disorder were well organized, General Wood said, "and the danger within our house comes not alone from the radical element, but as much perhaps from our own indifference. We must deal more carefully with our immigration. We should look into its quality before it comes on board ship on the other side. What is the use of deporting through one door and allowing the rabble to come in unquestioned from the other?"

BISMARCK'S DISMISSAL FIGURES IN MEMOIRS

Publisher, Contesting Injunction, Says the Whole Story Should be Told.

STUTTGART, Jan. 17.—In the course of further revelations of the contents of the third volume of the Bismarck memoirs in injunction proceedings in court here today, the attorney for the publishers declared that the parting scene between the young Emperor William and Bismarck was one of the most graphic and momentous in German history.

The attorney charged that the opposition to publication of the volume was not aimed as much against the letters of the former Emperor as against the entire volume. He claimed that now that the contents of the "Willy-Nicky" letters are known, the publishers are duty bound to issue the concluding link of the memoirs. The publishers' receipts would be devoted to charity, he said.

In the letter in which Wilhelm, then Prince, told Bismarck of his proposed manifesto to the rulers of the federated States, the heir to the throne said he intended to emphasize his succession to the Crown by the Grace of God as an accomplished fact, and declared that this would be made so plain that the allied rulers would be given no opportunity to quibble over it.

Bismarck advised the Prince to keep himself aloof from the court preacher, Adolph Stoecker, who was the leader of elements which were in contradiction to the principles of Frederick the Great.

PRAYER BOOK SAVES A LIFE

Stops Bullet Fired by Intruder Who Attacked Two Women.

During an unexplained quarrel, a man whose name the police refused to disclose while they are searching for him yesterday stabbed Mrs. Frances Cierco in her apartment at 538 East Fourteenth Street. Intercepted as he was making his escape, the man fired point blank at Huat Super, janitor of the apartment, whose life doubtless was saved by a prayer book in his coat pocket. The bullet struck the book and dropped, spent, into the janitor's vest pocket. Next Mrs. Super came within the man's range and he shot her in the left breast. The two women were taken to St. Vincent's hospital in serious condtion. The bullet was taken out of Mrs. Super's body and she will recover.

Mrs. Cierco's husband said the assailant was his friend and that he could not understand what brought about the trouble. He was absent at the time.

ASSOCIATION VOTES FOR BROADWAY BUSES

Referendum Shows 77 Per Cent. of Members Want Street Car Tracks Removed.

The Broadway Association yesterday announced the result of the referendum vote of the association regarding the transportation and traffic conditions on Broadway which was concluded last week. Practically 77 per cent. of the members favored the removal of street car tracks from Broadway and the substitution of a modern motor bus system. About 15 per cent. wanted the trolley cars retained, while the remainder did not vote.

Nearly two weeks ago the Transportation Committee of the association, consisting of John David, Chairman; Frank G. Carrie, Thomas D. Green, Glenn A. Tisdale, and J. E. Harrington prepared a referendum that summarized the transit conditions of Broadway, and submitted the following three questions to the vote of the members:

1. Are you in favor of a through line operated from Bowling Green to Kingsbridge for a single fare without transfer?
2. Are you in favor of the continued use of the present type of green car used on Broadway south of Forty-fourth Street?
3. Are you in favor of the removal of the street car tracks and the substitution of a modern bus system operating on Broadway?

Major Henry G. Opdycke, Managing Director of the Broadway Association, in discussing the vote on the referendum said: "The result of the vote shows that the merchants and business men of Broadway are thoroughly dissatisfied with the present transportation conditions."

The question of fares, or who would operate the vehicles, did not enter into the matter.

Steve Brodie

Steve Brodie did.

The entirely conventional advertisement is usually without distinction. It lacks what one advertising firm calls the "interrupting idea."

Suppose tomorrow Wrigley advertised like Tiffany and Tiffany appropriated Wrigley's little green spear men. Would the unconventional add or detract?

In advertising, as in the arts or letters, only the brave may risk a departure from the time-honored form.

It is quite possible that if the dominating personality of our great enterprises wrote their own advertisements, an unconventional personality could be thus revealed without being either banal or bizarre.

FRENCH MINISTERS RESIGN IN A BODY

at the Elisée Palace to pay a formal visit to Mme. Poincaré.

One of the last acts of M. Clemenceau as Minister of War was the appointment last night of General Mordacq, head of the Military Cabinet of the Ministry of War, as Commanding General of the Thirtieth Army Corps of the Rhine Army of Occupation.

CLEMENCEAU BEATEN BECAUSE TOO STRONG

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 18.—Alfred Capus says in The Figaro today:

"Our Parliamentary Government, after being imbued with heroism by Clemenceau, now finds again its habitual climate and once more takes up its jogging pace."

As we say in America, that sentence "hits the nail on the head," in explaining the election of Paul Deschanel to the Presidency of France. For the "Tiger" was defeated because he was the "Tiger."

If that seems a paradox to American readers they should consider for a moment the operation of the machinery of the French Government, so different from that of the United States, however much we may talk of the "two great sister Republics." For after the smoke and confusion of the Presidential week, which witnesses the fruition of the secret plottings of Clemenceau's enemies, a survey of the battle makes it plain that the Premier lost the Presidency because he was too strong in personality and methods.

Bear in mind that Deschanel had no positive program. You may ask what was the tocsin call of national policy which bore Deschanel to victory. You may ask, and ask, and the echo of your asking is the only reply you will get. For the platform of Deschanel was to beat Clemenceau—that and nothing more.

The argument of Clemenceau's gray hairs bore some weight. The argument that he was not a courtier who could entertain in pretty style visiting Kings and Ambassadors, and did not dance, counted with some persons. That he was the foe of the Bolsheviki lost him some votes. Dissatisfaction with the new taxes and disappointment over the treaty provisions had a good deal of influence. But Briand, who engineered the coup against the "Tiger," found that all these arguments could not gather enough votes to defeat the Premier. The final argument which appears to have won over enough senators and deputies to give Deschanel his 408 votes in Friday's caucus was that Clemenceau was too forceful to put in the Elysee, that his force would curtail the powers of Parliament.

None of the arguments I have listed against Clemenceau would form what we would regard in America as legitimate political munition. Not that Deschanel had proclaimed any platform proposing to remedy the evils his foes laid at Clemenceau's door, for he had not. Nevertheless, they were ordinary political material which would have been used in a Presidential campaign, had it been an election by the people as in the United States.

To understand the force of the argument of Clemenceau's strength carried, it must be borne in mind that Parliament can always reprimand the head of the Government when he is Premier by refusing a vote of confidence. That gives Parliament control of the situation. But with a forceful head of the Government in the Elysee, with a seven-year lease on the job, Parliament could not control the situation.

In the past the President has, as Capus says, "jogged along." It was the Premier who ran the Government, and Senators and Deputies could always take the Premier to task or throw him out. But with Clemenceau as President he would be boss, for not only would Clemenceau have been his natural forceful self in the Elysee, but he entertained very strong opinions in the direction that the President of France should be, as the President of the United States, directing head of the Government. And he had said as much.

As long as he might have remained in the Elysee he would have been boss. Now the decision was in the hands of Senators and Deputies who are for the most part professional politicians, and who did not wish any such change. They wanted a President, who, like Poincaré and most of his predecessors, would make pretty, innocuous speeches, pin decorations on deserving folks, kiss distinguished cheeks and pick a new Premier whenever the politicians wanted a change of Government.

Deschanel is an estimable man. He is a brilliant writer. He is a statesman of experience in internal affairs of France, and a student of foreign affairs. He is an Academician. He is polished and accomplished and distinguished. But he is a different sort of a man from Clemenceau. He conforms better to the French ideals of what the President ought to be, or, rather, of the ideas of the French politicians of what the President should be. And, furthermore, from the political point of view, he is M. Briand's President.

I do not know of any more interesting sidelight on the election of Deschanel than that the Royalists and Bolsheviki both voted for him. He has never been the friend of the radicals. He has always written and spoken against them. He certainly does not favor the royalist dream of restoration of the monarchy. With regard to both he has occupied the same position, technically, as Clemenceau.

Humanite, the organ of the radicals, says:

"It was the duty of the Socialists to make a maximum effort against the President of the Council, and they did. For a long time he has declared war without mercy on our party. The other day he said at Strasbourg that between him and us it was a question of force, and in his mouth we know what those words mean. And then, three weeks ago, he uttered brutal words against the Russian Revolutionists."

And then removing the last doubt that they acted in a spirit of revenge the organ of the radicals adds:

"In the place of Clemenceau it is Deschanel who is going to the Elysée, It is useless to say we do not expect anything from the new President of the Republic. We worked to bar the path of a man of evil and we succeeded."

From all the journals of Paris M. Deschanel receives today the customary bouquets of roses. But the President-elect will find many thorns among them, for nothing is more certain than that the nature of his election places upon M. Deschanel a heavy handicap.

Maurice Barrés in the Echo de Paris says of Clemenceau: "The 'Parliamentaires' did not call him. They refused to put him in the Elysée, but no one can dislodge him from his place in history, where he is installed in the midst of his poilus. Anyhow, there was no need for the Assembly to hand him this certificate of second prize. Great citizen, you have the eternal gratitude of France—you who crushed the manoeuvres of treason and miraculously gathered the strength of the nation to win the victory.'"

After the withdrawal of Clemenceau, Deschanel was the only candidate, and Clemenceau's former supporters voted in large measure for him, to give the impression of a united France.

Although it expresses the hope that Deschanel will make a great President, the Echo de Paris says:

"At the bottom of the Presidential election of yesterday there rests ingratitude, which troubles the people of France. I know well it is to be explained by thousands of reasons of good irony. But that the public does not understand political irony has long ago been said. It will then be a dangerous path for the new President to affront the friends of Clemenceau, and I am convinced that Deschanel will make no such mistake. Our democracy does not wish to have the appearance of having to strip itself of its glory."

"Gustave Henré, in La Victorie, says that in any other circumstances the election of Deschanel would have caused great satisfaction throughout France. Everybody knows he is neither a Bolshevik nor a Defeatist, nor a friend of Germany, and that he has good qualifications for the Presidency.

"But, all the same," says Hervé, "we cannot let pass without vehement protest the blow which has been given to the man who will appear to our descendants as the Danton of the World War. It is distasteful to see oblique manoeuvres and underground work against a man who meets his enemies face to face. And what seems wrong to more than one Frenchman is that we appear to show black ingratitude to him who was one of the principal authors of the history and one of the principal saviors of his country.

"We do not even wait until the ink is dry upon the Treaty of Versailles to put Clemenceau in the background at the risk of passing before the whole world as a people of ingrates and fools. It is this unfortunate thing which today robs us of a satisfaction which at any other time would have greeted the election of President Deschanel."

In giving these quotations I do not mean to lessen the strong expression of praise for Deschanel's accomplishments and for his impeccability of character. France would like to approve of the politicians' choice of Deschanel but she finds it hard to praise the defeat of Clemenceau.

As for "the Tiger," it seems that he is through. He went to the Elysée this morning and handed to President Poincaré his resignation, together with that of the rest of his Cabinet, and it was accepted.

There is much speculation as to whether Clemenceau will continue to represent France on the Peace Conference; but, lacking a definite announcement, the general opinion this afternoon seems to be that he would not consent to perform that duty in the circumstances.

The Supreme Council will meet tomorrow morning, when there will in all probability be a formal announcement on this point. In the meanwhile, Poincaré and Deschanel are working over the new Cabinet.

PREDICT UNITY IN FRANCE.

Paris Papers See Signs in Election of Sinking of Partisanship.

PARIS, Jan. 18.—Press comment on the Presidential election limits itself this morning to M. Deschanel's qualifications for the office without drawing comparisons between him and Premier Clemenceau, who a week ago was considered as good as elected.

M. Clemenceau's newspaper, l'Homme Libre, says the enormous majority M. Deschanel obtained will "show the world that France intends to pursue the execution of the Treaty of Versailles and preserve the same attitude before the Allies and enemies of yesterday."

"The latter," it continues, "should not allow hope to spring up because of M. Deschanel's entry to the Elysée Palace. Accepted clauses of the treaty will be applied and the French Government will sustain the young League of Nations."

"L'Humanite thus refers to Premier Clemenceau: "One of our most determined enemies is struck down, and a feeling of relief throughout Socialist organizations will be general."

It is proposed by the Avenir that President Poincaré should at once represent France on the Supreme Council and continue to exercise that function when M. Deschanel has assumed office.

Aristide Briand, former Premier, is especially mentioned by this morning's newspapers as the future head of the French Cabinet. Jean Barthou, former Minister of Justice, and Alexandre Millerand are also considered. Raoul Peret, Vice President of the Chamber of Deputies, will become President of the Chamber as a result of M. Deschanel's election to the Presidency.

Newspapers generally greet the election of M. Deschanel as a very fortunate event, and express the belief that it evidences a desire for national unity independent of partisan politics. The Petit Parisien says all parties united in the vote, while the Gaulois says Parliament desired to assert the union of all Frenchmen.

With the exception of the A B C, which lately has been publishing a series of bitter anti-French and anti-British articles, this morning's newspapers are loud in their praise of Paul Deschanel, the French President-elect.

El Imparcial calls him a great friend of Spain and says: "The election of this great figure gives special satisfaction to Spain because it means there will be no interruption to the friendly relations between the two countries, which, instead, will daily grow more cordial."

La Libertad says: "The French Presidency, which heretofore has been merely a decorative position, will be different with M. Deschanel in the chair."

ROME, Jan. 17.—The withdrawal of Premier Clemenceau from the Presidential contest in France created much interest here. In Vatican circles the belief was expressed that under the moderate policies of President-elect Deschanel a re-establishment of relations between France and the Holy See would not be difficult of accomplishment.

Yarmouth on Way to Havana From New York Springs Leak Off Cape May.

BOSTON, Jan. 18.—The British freighter Yarmouth, which left New York for Havana yesterday with a cargo of liquor, reported in radio messages today that she was sinking. She gave her position at latitude 39 north, longitude 74 west, and said that she was "twenty-four miles northeast of light vessel No. 3," or about thirty-five miles east of Cape May, N. J. The message added that the forward ballast tank was leaking into the engine room. A heavy mist prevailed. The Yarmouth registers 725 tons.

SEES EUROPE'S NEED MUCH EXAGGERATED

SHOW NATIONS RECOVERING

Increase in United States Imports Is Marked, While Exports Also Gain.

The need for huge loans for Europe has been much exaggerated and the industrial recovery of Great Britain, France, Italy, Belgium, and Czechoslovakia is shown by 1919 trade reports to have been highly encouraging, according to the current issue of The American Exporter.

It is pointed out that in the eleven months ended on Nov. 30, our exports to markets other than Europe increased over the same period of the preceding year by 19 per cent., as against an increase to Europe of 36 per cent. For the single month of November America's exports to other markets than Europe increased 11 per cent. over the preceding year, and exports to Europe increased 64 per cent.

"When the armistice was signed our trade with the Allies was so one-sided that Great Britain's purchases from us were eighteen times as much as her sales to us, those of France eighteen times, and those of Italy over fifty times as much," says the article.

"Now Great Britain is only buying from us five times as much as she sells us, France slightly less than four times as much, and Italy the same. This reduction is due, not to a falling off in our exports, for the exports to these countries have increased, but to a very marked increase in the importation from Europe made possible by the recovery of trade and industry abroad.

Loans Offset Trade Balance.

"Another significant fact is that from the time we entered the war until Dec. 1 we have actually loaned to Great Britain, France, Belgium and Italy through Government advances or publicly marketed loans more than enough to offset the collective adverse trade balance against them for the same period.

"This is shown by the following table:

"United States trade with and loans to Great Britain, France, Belgium, and Italy, April 1, 1917 to Nov. 30, 1919:

Imports by U. S.	881,479,599
Excess of exports	$8,886,592,240
Excess of loans and imports over exports	$769,929,409

"Twenty-nine per cent. of the exports of the United States are now taken by Great Britain, and 41 per cent. of our exports are now taken by the British Empire. The condition of Great Britain is, therefore, the most important single influence upon our export tarde.

"Perhaps the most significant illustration of the strength of Great Britain's present position is the fact that in December, 1919, she was exporting goods to the value of 68 per cent. of her imports. Great Britain's exports per capita in 1919 amount to $101.51. They exceeded by over 41 per cent. those of the United States, which as calculated from our eleven months' trade amount to $72.48.

"In her domestic trade Great Britain is experiencing the same prosperity as is the United States, as the following facts indicate: Bank clearings show an increase of 32 per cent. over 1918, which in turn shows an increase of 10 per cent. over 1917."

France in 1910 exported goods to the value of 4,116,451,000 francs, as against 4,457,879,000 francs in 1913, and imported in 1919 goods worth 18,475,706,000 francs, as against 5,569,538,000 in 1913. The exports of Belgium in 1919 were 590,824,000 francs, as against 2,053,543,000 in 1913. Regarding Italy, the statement says:

"Returns show that by August, Italy was exporting goods at the rate of 40 per cent. of her imports, compared with only 18 per cent. in April, an average of 20 per cent. in 1918, and 68 per cent. in 1913. Italy's imports during the calendar year 1919 may be estimated at 17,683,486,488 lire, and her exports at 3,592,037,792 lire.

"According to the latest reports, all expectations as to the success of the Italian loan recently floated were surpassed at the close of the first week after the lists had been opened. Subscriptions had by Jan. 11, passed the 8,000,000,000 lire mark, and it is believed that the total will exceed the amount of 15,000,000,000 lire, which was set as the goal."

"HUMBLE PIE"

In Merrie Old England, when the lord of the castle feasted on venison, it was the custom to have a "humble pie" made for the servants.

The "humbles" were the heart, liver and other small parts of the deer.

Today "humble pie" is unknown—at least at CHILDS. But mince pie—full of delicious meat and goodies galore—is all the rage.

Real old-fashioned mince pie and mellow, fragrant coffee — a mid-winter treat.

OUSTS STOCKYARDS UNION.

Chicago Federation of Labor Upholds Gompers Program.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—Adherents of the Gompers conservative labor program today won a decided victory when the Chicago Federation of Labor voted to accept the resignation of the membership of the Stock Yards Labor Council from that organization. This involves 30,000 members.

Some months ago the stock yards organization was suspended from the Amalgamated Meat Cutters' and Butchers' Workmen of North America, holding a charter under the A. F. of L., after a long fight. The fight came to a head when Martin T. Murphy, J. W. Johnstone, and John Kikulski, leaders of the radical element, declared the ill-fated stock yards strike. The council was later suspended by the national officials of the Amalgamated, and the Chicago Federation of Labor was notified that continued support of the council would mean suspension of the Chicago Federation by the A. F. of L.

The American Legion again came in for some criticism by the federation today, when President Fitzpatrick said: "I think that the American Legion is a political creature of the Republican Party, manipulated by Marshall Field and Sprague and other millionaires. It is composed of officers and such privates who want to curry favor with their bosses."

Albert Jones, organizer for the Private Soldiers' and Sailors' Legion, who was given the floor, declared the American Legion is a "scab organization," and asked support of the association he represented. The matter was turned over to the Executive Committee.

URGES A NEW COMMISSION

Hope Expressed That One Appointed by the League Will Bring Harmony in Poland.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Pressing necessity for the re-establishment of normal conditions in Poland is emphasized by the report of Henry Morgenthau, former Ambassador to Turkey, who was a member of the American commission which was sent to investigate conditions in Poland. Associated with Mr. Morgenthau were Brigadier Gen. Edgar Jadwin and Homer H. Johnson. General Jadwin made a report in regard to the allegations of pogroms.

Mr. Morgenthau in his report recommended that the League of Nations or the principal world powers should send to Poland industrial and economical experts to rehabilitate that country. Here is Mr. Morgenthau's report:

AMERICAN COMMISSION TO NEGOTIATE PEACE. MISSION TO POLAND.

Paris, Oct. 3, 1919.

To the American Commission to Negotiate Peace:

Gentlemen:

1. A Mission consisting of Mr. Henry Morgenthau, Brigadier General Edgar Jadwin, and Mr. Homer H. Johnson was appointed by the American Commission to Negotiate Peace to investigate Jewish matters in Poland. The appointment of such a Mission had previously been requested by Mr. Paderewski, President of the Council of Ministers of the Republic of Poland. On June 30, 1919, Secretary Lansing wrote to this mission:

"It is desired that the Mission make careful inquiry into all matters affecting the relations between the Jewish and non-Jewish elements in Poland. This will, of course, involve the investigation of the various massacres, pogroms and other excesses alleged to have taken place the economic boycott and other methods of discrimination against the Jewish race. The establishment of the truth in regard to these matters is not, however, an end in itself. It is merely for the purpose of seeking to discover the reason lying behind such excesses and discrimination with a view to finding a possible remedy. The American Government, as you know, is inspired by a friendly desire to render service to all elements in the new Poland, Christians and Jews alike. I am convinced that any measures that may be taken to ameliorate the conditions of the Jews will also benefit the rest of the population, and that, conversely, anything done for the community benefit of Poland as a whole will be of advantage to the Jewish race. I am sure that the members of your Mission are approaching the subject in the right spirit, free from prejudice one way or the other, and filled with a desire to discover the truth and evolve some constructive measures to improve the situation which gives concern to all the friends of Poland."

Mission Two Months in Poland.

2. The Mission reached Warsaw on July 13, 1919, and remained in Poland until Sept. 13, 1919. All the places where the principal excesses had occurred were visited. In addition thereto, the Mission also studied the economic and social conditions in such places as Lodz, Krakau, Grodno, Posen, Chelm, Lublin, and Stanislawow. By automobiling over 2,500 miles through Russian, Austrian, and German Poland the Mission also came into immediate contact with the inhabitants of the small towns and villages. In order properly to appreciate the present cultural and social conditions, the Mission also visited educational institutions, libraries, hospitals, museums, art galleries, orphan asylums, and prisons.

3. Investigations of the excesses were made mostly in the presence of representatives of the Polish Government and of the Jewish communities. There were also present in many cases military and civil officials, and wherever possible officials in command at the time the excesses occurred were conferred with and interrogated. In this work the Polish authorities and the American Minister to Poland, Mr. Hugh Gibson, lent the Mission every facility. Deputations of all kinds of organizations were received and interviewed. A large number of public meetings and gatherings were attended, and the Mission endeavored to obtain a correct impression of what had occurred, of the present mental state of the public, and of the attitude of the various factions toward one another.

4. The Jews entered Poland in large numbers during the twelfth and thirteenth centuries, when they migrated from Germany and other countries as the result of severe persecutions. Their language was German, which subsequently developed into a Hebrew-German dialect, or Yiddish. As prior to this immigration only two classes or estates had existed in Poland (the owners and the tillers of the soil) the Jewish immigrant became the pioneer of trade and finance, settling in the towns and villages. As time went on it became generally known throughout Europe that Poland was a place of refuge for the Jews, and their numbers were augmented as the result of persecutions in Western Europe. Still more recently as a result of the expulsion of the Jews from Russia on account of the enforcement of the Pale of Settlement and of the May laws of 1882, their number was further increased.

5. Notwithstanding the fact that Poland has been a place of refuge for the Jews, there have been anti-Jewish movements at various times. The present anti-Semitic feeling took a definite political form after the Russian revolution of 1905. This feeling reached an intense stage in 1912, when the Polish National Democratic Party nominated an anti-Semite to represent Warsaw in the Russian Duma and the Jews cast their vote for the Polish Socialist and carried the election. The National Democratic Party then commenced a vigorous anti-Semitic campaign. During the German occupation this campaign was temporarily reduced. At the end of the great war the chaotic and unnatural state of affairs in which Poland found itself, gave good ground for a condition of social unrest, which together with the world stimulated tendency toward national self-determination, accentuated the feeling between Jewish and non-Jewish elements. The chauvinistic reaction created by the sudden acquisition of a long coveted freedom ripened the public mind for anti-Semitic or anti-alien sentiment, which was strongly agitated by the press and by politicians. This finally encouraged physical manifestations or violent outcroppings of an unbalanced social condition.

6. When in November, 1918, the Austrian and German armies of occupation left Poland there was no firm government until the arrival of General Pilsudski, who had escaped from a German prison, and it was during this period, before the Polish Republic came into being, that the first of the excesses took place. The use of the word "pogrom" has purposely been avoided, as the word is applied to everything from petty outrages to premeditated and carefully organized massacres. No fixed definition is generally understood. There were eight principal excesses, which are here described in chronological order:

1. Kielce, Nov. 11, 1918.

Shortly after the evacuation of the Austrian troops from Kielce, the Jews of this city secured permission from the local authorities to hold a meeting in the Polski Theatre. The purpose of this meeting was to discuss Jewish national aspiration. It began shortly before 2 o'clock and filled the theatre to overflowing. During the afternoon a small crowd of Polish civilians largely composed of students gathered outside of the theatre. At 6:30 P. M. the meeting began to break up, and when only about 300 people remained in the theatre, some militiamen entered and began to search for arms. A short while thereafter and while the militiamen were still in the building, a crowd of civilians and some soldiers came into the auditorium and drove the Jews toward the stairs. On the stairs there was a double line of men armed with clubs and bayonets, who beat the Jews as they left the building. After the Jews reached the street they were again beaten by the mob outside. As the result of this attack four Jews were killed and a large number wounded. A number of civilians have been indicted for participation in this excess, but have not as yet been brought to trial.

2. Lemberg, Nov. 21-23, 1918.

On Oct. 30, 1918, when the Austrian Empire collapsed, the Ukrainian troops, formerly in the Austrian service, assumed control of the town. A few hundred Polish boys, combined with numerous volunteers of doubtful character, recaptured about half the city and held it until the arrival of Polish re-enforcements on Nov. 21. The Jewish population declared themselves neutral, but the facts that the Jewish quarter lay within the section occupied by the Ukrainians and that the Jews had organized their own militia, and further, the rumor that some of the Jewish population had fired upon the Polish volunteers stimulated among the Polish volunteers an anti-Semitic bias that readily communicated itself to the relieving troops. The situation was further complicated by the presence of some 15,000 uniformed deserters and numerous criminals released by the Ukrainians from local jails, who were ready to join in any disorder, particularly if, as in the case of wholesale pillage, they might profit thereby.

Upon the final departure of the Ukrainians, these disreputable elements plundered to the extent of many millions of crowns the dwellings and stores in the Jewish quarter, and did not hesitate to murder when they met with resistance. During the ensuing disorders, which prevailed on Nov. 21, 22, and 23, sixty-four Jews were killed and a large amount of property destroyed. Thirty-eight houses were set on fire, and owing to the paralysis of the Fire Department, were completely gutted. The synagogue was also burned and a large number of the sacred scrolls of the law were destroyed. The repression of the disorders was rendered more difficult by the prevailing lack of discipline among the junior officers to apply stern punitive measures. When officers' patrols under experienced leaders were finally organized on Nov. 23, robbery and violence ceased.

On December 24, 1918, the Polish Government, through the Ministry of Justice, began a strict investigation of the events of Nov. 21 to 23. A special commission, headed by a Justice of the Supreme Court, met in Lemberg for about two months, and rendered an extensive formal report which has been furnished the Mission. In spite of the crowded dockets of the local courts, where over 7,000 cases are now pending, 164 persons, ten of them Jews, have been tried for complicity in the November disorders, and numerous similar cases await disposal. Forty-four persons are under sentence ranging from ten days to eighteen months. Aside from the civil courts the local court-martial has sentenced military persons to confinement for as long as three years for lawlessness during the period in question. This Mission is advised that on the basis of official investigations the Government has begun the payment of claims for damages resulting from these events.

3. Pinsk, April 5, 1919.

Late in the afternoon of April 5, 1919, a month or more after the Polish occupation of Pinsk, some 75 Jews of both sexes, with the official permission of the town commander, gathered in the assembly hall at the People's House, in Kupieeka Street, to discuss the distribution of relief sent by the American Joint Distribution Committee. As the meeting was about to adjourn it was interrupted by a band of soldiers, who arrested and searched the whole assembly, and after robbing the prisoners marched them at a rapid pace to gendarmerie headquarters. Thence the prisoners were conducted to the market place and lined up against the wall of the cathedral. With no lights except the lamps of a military automobile, the six women in the crowd and about twenty-five men were separated from the mass, and the remainder, thirty-five in number, were shot with scant deliberation and no trial whatever. Early the next morning three wounded victims were shot in cold blood as soon as life revealed itself in them.

The women and other reprieved prisoners were confined in the city jail until the following Thursday. The women were stripped and beaten by the prison guards so severely that several of them were bedriddden for weeks after, and the men were subjected to similar maltreatment.

It has been asserted officially by the Polish authorities that there was reason to suspect this assemblage of Bolshevist allegiance. We are convinced that no arguments of a Bolshevist nature were mentioned in the meeting in question. While it is recognized that certain information of Bolshevist activities in Pinsk had been reported by two Jewish soldiers, we are convinced that Major Luszynski, the Crown Commander, showed reprehensible and frivolous readiness to place credence in such untested assertions, and on this insufficient basis took inexcusably drastic action against reputable citizens whose loyal character could have been immediately established by a consultation with any well known non-Jewish habitant.

The statements made officially by Gen. Listowski, the Polish Group Commander, that the Jewish population on April 5 attacked the Polish troops, are regarded as devoid of foundation. We are further of the opinion that the consultation prior to executing the thirty-five Jews, alleged by Major Luszynski to have had the character of a court-martial, was by the very nature of the case a most casual affair with no judicial nature whatsoever, since less than an hour elapsed between the arrest and execution. It is further found that no conscientious effort was made at the time either to investigate the charges against the prisoners or even sufficiently to identify them. Though there have been official investigations of this case none of the offenders answerable for this summary execution has been punished or even tried nor has the Diet Commission published its findings.

4. Lida, April 17, 1919.

On April 17, 1919, the Polish military forces captured Lida from the Russian Bolsheviki. After the city fell into the hands of the Poles the soldiers proceeded to enter and rob the houses of the Jews. During this period of pillage 39 Jews were killed. A large number of Jews, including the local rabbi, were arbitrarily arrested on the same day by the Polish authorities and kept for twenty-four hours without food amid revolting conditions of filth at No. 60 Kamienska Street. Jews were also impressed for forced labor without respect for age or infirmity. It does not appear that any one has been punished for these excesses, or that steps have been taken to reimburse the victims of the robberies.

5. Wilna, April 19-21, 1919.

On April 19, Polish detachments entered the City of Wilna. The city was definitely taken by the Poles after three days of street fighting, during which time they lost thirty-three men killed. During the same period some sixty-five Jews lost their lives. From the evidence submitted, it appears that none of these people, among whom were four women and eight men over 50 years of age, had served with the Bolsheviki. Eight Jews were marched three kilometers to the outskirts of the City of Wilna, and deliberately shot without the semblance of a trial or investigation. Others were shot by soldiers who were robbing Jewish houses. No list has been furnished the mission of any Polish civilians killed during the occupation. It is, however, stated on behalf of the Government that the civilian inhabitants of Wilna took part on both sides of the fighting, and that some civilians fired upon the soldiers. Over two thousand Jewish houses and stores in the city were entered by Polish soldiers and civilians during these three days, and the inhabitants robbed and beaten. It is claimed by the Jewish community that the consequent losses amounted to over 10,000,000 roubles. Many of the poorest families were robbed of their shoes and blankets. Hundreds of Jews were arrested and deported from the city. Some of them were herded into box cars and kept without food or water for four days. Old men and women were carried away without trial or investigation. Two of these prisoners have since died from the treatment they received. Included in this list were some of the most prominent Jews of Wilna, such as the prominent Jewish writers Jaffe and Niger. For days the families of these prisoners were without news from them and feared that they had been killed. The soldiers also broke into the synagogue and mutilated the sacred scrolls of the law. Up to August 3, 1919, when the Mission was in Wilna, none of the soldiers or civilians responsible for these excesses had been punished.

6. Kolbussowa, May 7, 1919.

For a few days before May 7, 1919, the Jews of Kolbussowa feared that excesses might take place, as there had been riots in the neighboring towns of Rsoszow and Glasgow. These riots had been the result of political agitation in this district, and of excitement caused by a case of alleged ritual murder in which the Jewish defendant had been acquitted. On May 6 a company of soldiers was ordered to Kolbussowa to prevent the threatend trouble. Early in the morning of May 7 a great number of peasants, among whom were many former soldiers of the Austrian Army, entered the town. The rioters disarmed the soldiers and three peasants had been killed. They then proceeded to rob the Jewish stores and to beat any Jews who fell into their hands. Eight Jews were killed during this excess. Order was restored when a new detachment of soldiers arrived late in the afternoon. One of the rioters has since been tried and executed by the Polish Government.

7. Czestochowa, May 27, 1919.

On May 27, 1919, at Czestochowa, a shot fired by an unknown person slightly wounded a Polish soldier. A rumor spread that the shot had been fired by the Jews and riots broke out in the city in which Polish soldiers and civilians took part. During these riots five Jews, including a doctor who was hurrying to aid one of the injured, were beaten to death and a large number were wounded. French officers, who were stationed at Czestochowa, took an active part in preventing further murders.

8. Minsk, Aug. 8, 1919.

On Aug. 8, 1919, the Polish troops took the City of Minsk from the Bolsheviki. The Polish troops entered the city at about 10 o'clock in the morning, and by 12 o'clock they had absolute control. Notwithstanding the presence in Minsk of General Jadwin and other members of this mission, and the orders of the Polish Commanding General, forbidding violence against civilians, thirty-one Jews were killed by the soldiers. Only one of the number can in any way be connected with the Bolshevist movement. Eighteen of the deaths appear to have been deliberate murder. Two of these murders were incident to robberies, but the rest were committed, to all appearances, solely on the ground that the victims were Jews. During the afternoon and in the evening of Aug. 8 the Polish soldiers, aided by civilians, plundered 377 shops, all of which belonged to the Jews. It must be noted, however, that about 90 per cent. of the stores in Minsk are owned by Jews. No effective attempt was made to prevent these robberies until the next morning, when adequate officers' patrols were sent out through the streets and order was established. The private houses of many of the Jews were also broken into by soldiers and the inhabitants were beaten and robbed. The Polish Government has stated that four Polish soldiers were killed while attempting to prevent robberies. It has also been stated to the mission that some of the rioters have been executed.

7. There have also been here and there individual cases of murder not enumerated in the preceding paragraphs, but their detailed description has not been considered necessary, inasmuch as they present no characteristics not already observed in the principal excesses. In considering these excesses as a whole, it should be borne in mind that of the eight cities and towns at which striking disorders have occurred, only Kielce and Czestochowa are within the boundaries of Congress Poland. In Kielce and Kolbussowa the excesses were committed by city civilians and by peasants, respectively. At Czesechowa both civilians and soldiers took part in the disorders. At Minsk the excesses were essentially the fault of one officer. In Lemberg, Lida, Wilno, and Minsk the excesses were committed by the soldiers, who were capturing the cities and not by the civilian population. In the three last cities the anti-Semitic prejudice of the soldiers had been inflamed by the charge that the Jews were Bolsheviki, while at Lemberg it was associated with the idea that the Jews were making common cause with the Ukrainians. These excesses were, therefore, political as well as anti-Semitic in character.

The responsibility for these excesses is borne for the most part by the undisciplined and ill-equipped Polish recruits, who, uncontrolled by their inexperienced and oftimes timid officers, sought to profit at the expense of that portion of the population which they regarded as alien and hostile to Polish nationality and aspirations. It is recognized that the enforcement of discipline in a new and untrained army is a matter of extreme difficulty. On the other hand, the prompt cessation of disorder in Lemberg after the adoption of appropriate measures of control shows that an unflinching determination to restore order and a firm application of repressive measures can prevent, or at least limit, such excesses. It is therefore believed that a more aggressive unitive policy and a more general publicity of reports of judicial and military prosecutions would have minimized subsequent excesses by discouraging the belief among the soldiery that robbery and violence could be committed with impunity.

Excesses Not Premeditated.

8. Just as the Jews would resent being condemned as a race for the action of a few of their undesirable co-religionists, so it would be correspondingly unfair to condemn the Polish nation as a whole for the violence committed by uncontrolled troops or local mobs. These excesses were apparently not premeditated, for if they had been part of a preconceived plan, the number of killed would have run into the thousands instead of amounting to about 280. It is believed that these excesses were the result of a widespread anti-Semitic prejudice aggravated by the belief that the Jewish inhabitants were politically hostile to the Polish State. When the boundaries of Poland are once fixed and the internal organization of the country is perfected the Polish Government will be increasingly able to protect all classes of Polish citizenry. Since the Polish Republic has subscribed to the treaty which provides for the protection of racial, religious and linguistic minorities, it is confidently anticipated that the Government will whole-heartedly accept the responsibility, not only of guarding all classes of its citizens from aggression, but also of educating the masses beyond the state of mind that makes such aggression impossible.

9. Besides these excesses there have been reported to the mission numerous cases of other forms of persecutions. Thus, in almost every one of the cities and towns of Poland, Jews have been stopped by the soldiers and have had their beards either torn out or cut off. As the Orthodox Jews feel that the shaving of their beards is contrary to their religious belief, this form of persecution has a particular significance to them. As a result many of them are afraid to travel. The result of all these minor persecutions is to keep the Jewish population in a state of ferment and to subject them to the fear that graver excesses may again occur.

Economic Boycott of Jews Felt.

10. Whereas it has been easy to determine the excesses which took place and to fix the approximate number of deaths, it was more difficult to establish the extent of anti-Jewish discrimination. This discrimination finds its most conspicuous manifestation in the form of an economic boycott. The National Democratic Party has continuously agitated the economic strangling of the Jews. Through the press and political announcements, as well as by public speeches, the non-Jewish elements of the Polish people is urged to abstain from dealing with the Jews. Land owners are warned not to sell their property to the Jews, and in some cases where such sales have been made the names of offenders have been posted within black bordered notices, stating that such venders were "dead to Poland." Even at the present time, this campaign is being waged by most of the non-Jewish press, which constantly advocates that the economic boycott be used as a means of ridding Poland of its Jewish element. This agitation has created in the minds of some of the Jews the feeling that there is an invisible rope around their necks, and they claim that this is the worst persecution that they can be forced to endure. Non-Jewish laborers have in many cases refused to work side by side with Jews. The percentage of Jews in public office, especially those holding minor positions, such as railway employes, firemen, policemen and the like, has been materially reduced since the present Government has taken control. Documents have been furnished the mission showing that Government owned railways have discharged Jewish employes and given them certificates that they have been released for no other reason than that they belong to the Jewish race.

11. Furthermore, the establishment of co-operative stores is claimed by many Jewish traders to be a form of discrimination. It would seem, however, that this movement is a legitimate effort to restrict the activities and therefore the profits of the middleman. Unfortunately, when these stores were introduced into Poland they were advertised as a means of eliminating the Jewish trader. The Jews have, therefore, been caused to feel that the establishment of co-operatives is an attack upon themselves. While the establishment and the maintenance of co-operatives may have been influenced by anti-Semitic sentiment, this is a form of economic activity which any community is perfectly entitled to pursue. On the other hand, the Jews complain that even the Jewish co-operatives and individual Jews are discriminated against by the Government in the distribution of Government-controlled supplies.

Jews Regarded as Aliens.

13. In considering the causes for the anti-Semitic feeling, which has brought about the manifestations described above, it must be remembered that ever since the partition of 1795 the Poles have striven to be reunited as a nation and to regain their freedom. This continual effort to keep alive their national aspirations has caused them to look with hatred upon anything which might interfere with their aims. This has led to a conflict with the nationalist declarations of some of the Jewish organizations which desire to establish cultural autonomy financially supported by the States. In addition the position taken by the Jews in favor of Article 93 of the Treaty of Versailles, guaranteeing protection to racial, linguistic and religious minorities in Poland, has created a further resentment against them. Moreover, Polish national feeling is irritated by what is regarded as the "alien" character of the great mass of the Jewish population. This is constantly brought home to the Poles by the fact that the majority of the Jews affect a distinctive dress, observe the Sabbath on Saturday, conduct business on Sunday, have separate dietary laws, wear long beards, and speak a language of their own. The basis of this language is a German dialect, and the fact that Germany was, and still is, looked upon by the Poles as an enemy country renders this vernacular especially unpopular. The concentration of the Jews in certain districts or quarters in Polish cities also emphasizes the line of demarcation separating them from other citizens.

14. The strained relations between the Jews and the non-Jews have been further increased, not only by the great war, during which Poland was the battleground for the Russian, German, and Austrian armies, but also by the present conflicts with the Bolsheviki and Ukrainians. The economic condition of Poland is at its lowest ebb. Manufacturing and commerce have virtually ceased. The shortage, the high price, and the imperfect distribution of food are a dangerous menace to the health and welfare of the urban population. As a result hundreds of thousands are suffering from hunger and are but half-clad, while thousands are dying of disease and starvation. The cessation of commerce is particularly felt by the Jewish population, who are almost entirely dependent upon it. Owing to the conditions described, prices have doubled and tripled and the population has become irritated against the Jewish traders whom it blames for the abnormal increase thus occasioned.

15. The great majority of Jews in Poland belong to separate Jewish political parties. The largest of these are the Orthodox and Zionist and the National. Since the Jews form separate political groups, it is probable that some of the Polish discrimination against them is political rather than anti-Semitic in character. The dominant Polish parties give to their supporters Government positions and Government patronage. It is to be hoped, however, that the Polish majority will not follow this system in the case of positions which are not essentially political. There should be no discrimination in the choice of professors and teachers, nor in the selection of railroad employes, policemen, and firemen, or the incumbents of any other positions which are placed under the civil service in England and the United States. Like other democracies, Poland must realize that these positions must not be drawn into politics. Efficiency can only be attained if the best men are employed, irrespective of party or religion.

16. The relations between the Jews and non-Jews will undoubtedly improve in a strong democratic Poland. To hasten this, there should be reconciliation and co-operation between the 86 per cent. Christians and 14 per cent. Jews. The 86 per cent. must realize that they cannot present a solid front against their neighbors if one-seventh of their population is discontented, fear-stricken, and inactive. The minority must be encouraged to participate with their whole strength and influence in making Poland the great unified country that is required in Central Europe to combat the tremendous dangers that confront it. Poland must promptly develop its full strength, and by its conduct first merit and then receive the unstinted moral, financial and economic support of all the world, which will insure the future success of the republic.

Wants New Commission Named.

17. It was impossible for the Mission, during the two months it was in Poland, to do more than acquaint itself with the general condition of the people. To formulate a solution of the Jewish problem will necessitate a careful and broad study, not only of the economic condition of the Jews, but also of the exact requirements of Poland. These requirements will not be definitely known prior to the fixation of the Polish boundaries, and the final regulation of Polish relations with Russia, with which the largest share of trade was previously conducted. It is recommended that the League of Nations, or the larger nations interested in this problem, send to Poland a commission consisting of recognized industrial, educational, agricultural, economic and vocational experts, which should remain there as long as necessary to examine the problem at its source.

18. This commission should devise a plan by which the Jews in Poland can secure the same economic and social opportunities as are enjoyed by their coreligionists in other free countries. A new Polish constitution is now in the making. The general scope of this national instrument has already been indicated by the special treaty with the allied and associated powers, in which Poland has affirmed its fidelity to the principles of liberty and justice and the rights of minorities, and we may be certain that Poland will be faithful to its pledge, which is so conspicuously in harmony with the nation's best traditions. A new life will thus be opened to the Jews, and it will be the task of the proposed commission to aid them to profit thereby and to win the same appreciation gained by their co-religionists elsewhere as a valued asset to the Commonwealths in which they reside. The friends of the Jews in America, England, and elsewhere, who have already evinced such great interest in their welfare, will enthusiastically grasp the opportunity to co-operate in working out any good solution that such a commission may propound. The fact that it may take one or two generations to reach the goal must not be discouraging.

19. All citizens of Poland should realize that they must live together. They cannot be divorced from each other by force or by any court of law. When this idea is once thoroughly comprehended, every effort will necessarily be directed toward a better understanding and the amelioration of existing conditions, rather than toward augmenting antipathy and discontent. The Polish nation must see that its worst enemies are those who encourage this internal strife. A house divided against itself cannot stand. There must be one class of citizens in Poland, all members of which enjoy equal rights and render equal duties.

Respectfully submitted,
(Signed) HENRY MORGENTHAU.

Credits

The credit of a customer properly established with a bank, balances substantially maintained and the account otherwise conducted in a business-like manner, a sound bank does not as a rule make inquiries as to what the accommodation inquired for by the customers from season to season is to be devoted to.

If the application for credit in whole or in part comes at an unusual season the customer ordinarily, and as a matter of course, states to his bank what it is for—a job lot of goods or an exceptional order, perhaps. The point is that having full confidence in the customer, the bank cannot consistently express suspicion by making the inquiry alluded to.

No man borrows money and pays interest on it for amusement. It is therefore a difficult and delicate matter for a bank to draw a fine line between essential and non-essential borrowings, but it is not so difficult to determine when borrowings are for purely speculative purposes, and it is these that the Federal Reserve Board desires to restrain, curtail, and reduce in all fields.

There is need for conservation of mercantile credit at this time both for domestic and foreign requirements, and the Harriman National Bank is confident that it speaks not only for its own customers, but for all business men in approving the extension of accommodation only to essential needs.

PROFESSOR CLEARS EVE OF ADAM'S DOWNFALL

Asserts Babylonian Tablets in Pennsylvania University Say It Was Noah Who Ate Apple.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 18.—Evidence purporting to show that a woman did not cause the downfall of the human race was produced today by the Museum of the University of Pennsylvania in the form of a new set of translations by Dr. Stephen Herbert Langdon of Babylonian tablets.

Dr. Langdon is now Professor of Assyriology at Oxford and was for three years curator of the Babylonian section at the university museum here, where he studied and translated many ancient clay tablets from the ruins of Nippur. The new book is the fourth in a series on the religious life of the Sumerians, who inhabited lower Babylon.

According to one of the stories of the flood in the collection Noah ate the forbidden fruit after he landed from the Ark. His salvation from the deluge was accomplished, according to this version, by a feminine deity. There is no mention of Eve, according to Dr. Langdon..

counsel in case the Judiciary Committee does not allow them to appear on behalf of the public.

Dr. Stephen S. Wise, at the Free Synagogue, declared that the Assembly, in suspending the five Socialist members, was "not only guilty of lawlessness, but of putting a premium on such lawlessness and violence as spell revolution." "Ours is becoming a Government of men and hysteria," he said, "of panic and prejudice.

"The members of the Legislature who have been indicted because of their association with a particular political party," he said, "ought to stand resolutely and inflexibly against any attempted examination of their opinions and views. America has not yet instituted a system of inquisition, and these men ought not for a moment to suffer themselves to be put upon the rack. Theirs ought to be the position: "We are no more under necessity of justifying our political views than are our accusers."

"Mindful of the seriousness of my word, I declare the action of the New York Legislature in suspending its Socialist members after they had been duly elected a much more gravely anarchistic act than anything these men have said or done. That Speaker Sweet and his associates are guilty of anarchy requires no proof, for they have given it."

Unparalleled, Says Dr. Holmes.

John Haynes Holmes, speaking before the Community Forum last evening, described the suspension of the Assemblymen as "something unparalleled in the history of the world's democracy." He predicted that, if the five members were permanently deprived of their seats, the liberal and radical elements in the country would as a result be brought closely together.

"Are the men responsible for this abominable act," he cried, "to be regarded as true Americans, and how long are they to be tolerated by a patient and long-suffering public?"

Mr. Holmes told a questioner that if the Socialist members of the Assembly are not seated the result would be the formation of a third party having for its slogan "The right of the people to be represented." The Socialist Party, he said, was generally misunderstood, and advocated not a political but an economic revolution.

Louis Waldman, Samuel Orr, and Samuel De Witt, three of the suspended Assemblymen, spoke last night at a mass meeting of the Essex County Socialist Party in Newark. Assemblyman Waldman referred to Speaker Sweet as "the most courageous coward" in the country, and also attacked Minority Leader Adler.

At Grace Methodist Church in West 104th Street last evening, M. Amos, Assemblyman from that district, explained his attitude in regard to the suspension of the five Socialists. The suspension was staged so quickly and dramatically by the majority leaders, he said, without the dissent of minority leaders, that it appeared to the remainder of the Assemblymen that the Socialists had been investigated and were believed to be guilty by leaders of both parties.

HEARING BEGINS TOMORROW.

Assemblymen Will Not Be Seated Pending Inquiry.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 18.—All doubt that attempts to reseat the five New York Socialists pending investigation would prove ineffective was removed tonight with the arrival here of Speaker Sweet, Attorney General Newton and his associates, Martin W. Littleton and John B. Stanchfield, and Senator Lusk.

Attorney General Newton and Mr. Stanchfield and Mr. Littleton conferred tonight at the Ten Eyck Hotel. The Attorney General later said the investigation would begin on Tuesday morning, and that so far as he knew the Judiciary Committee would refuse to allow the Bar Association Committee, headed by Hughes, to participate in the proceedings, unless they have received a retainer from the Socialists.

"There is no doubt in my mind," he said, "of the constitutionality of the Assembly's action. The Constitution makes the Assembly sole judge of its members, and no matter how rank its decision may be the courts cannot question it."

It developed tonight that the Attorney General might add an up-State lawyer to his associates, probably Judge Nathan Miller of Syracuse.

Reservations have been made at a hotel here for Morris Hillquit, chief counsel to the Socialists, his associates and the five Assemblymen. They are expected tomorrow night.

M. CORTOT'S LETTER TO THE AEOLIAN CO.

November 1, 1918.

Gentlemen:

I really do not know what to say of your magnificent Duo-Art piano, which has not already been said, and in the most enthusiastic manner, by all my eminent fellow-pianists. I am entirely in accord with their opinion when they say that no instrument approaches the Duo-Art piano in mechanical perfection, and in the fidelity of musical translation.

But, I go even further, and believe sincerely that your marvelous creation is of the most lively interest for the development of musical taste. I see in the Duo-Art an instrument which must create new devotees of our art; an instrument capable of developing even in those considered as rebellious to musical sentiment, an enhanced comprehension of its highest manifestations.

Surely the Duo-Art piano has a beautiful mission to fulfill; it is a superb contribution to the art of music.

With all my congratulations believe, Gentlemen, the expression of my most devoted sentiments.

(Signed) ALFRED CORTOT.

ALFRED CORTOT
Famous French Pianist, Instructor in the Conservatoire de Paris, Chevalier of the Legion d'Honneur, Chief of the Service d'Études Artistiques in the Clemenceau ministry.

The DUO-ART PIANOLA
CORTOT is another of the group of over forty world-famous pianists who record their interpretations exclusively for this wonderful instrument

NEXT TUESDAY afternoon at Aeolian Hall, the musical public of New York will have an opportunity to hear one of the most famous pianists of Europe. In that beautiful, dim-lit auditorium the genius and skill of Alfred Cortot will thrill and inspire hundreds of people.

To many of these people after the concert, Cortot will be only a memory. The emotion which his superb playing aroused will quickly fade.

To others, the wonderful French virtuoso will remain an intimate and permanent channel through which the beauties of the world of music will flow into their homes and lives.

These will be the people who own Duo-Art Pianolas; whose homes are equipped with the most modern piano, the most wonderful musical instrument of all time.

The letter from Alfred Cortot, published above, shows his estimation and appreciation of the Duo-Art. The enthusiasm it reflects is based on its reproduction of his own, as well as the playing of others. No critic could be more exacting, no approval more convincing than that of the pianist himself, whose playing the Duo-Art reproduces.

What the Duo-Art Is

The Duo-Art is a development of the Pianola, just as that instrument was a development of the piano. It includes both Pianola and Piano. That is, it may be used as either.

For hand playing and practice it is the best piano made. For Pianola, or music-roll playing, no so-called "player-piano" in the world equals it.

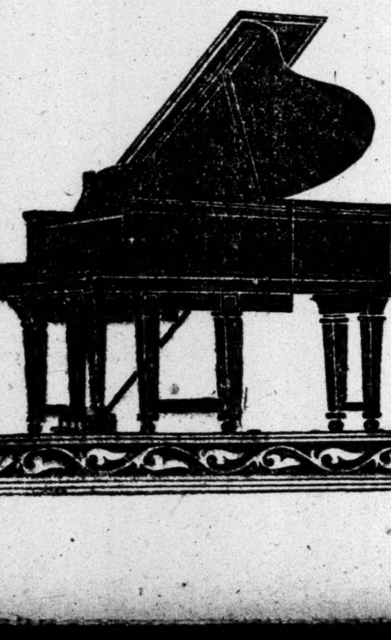
But the Duo-Art is the Pianola carried to new and extraordinary lengths. A wonderful reproducing feature has been added.

Special music-rolls, made by pianists while actually playing, reproduce their playing with absolute fidelity in every detail. No subtlety of touch or phrase is lost, no element of individuality. As the pianist plays, the Duo-Art plays. There is no difference.

All the Greatest Living Pianists

The greatest pianists in the world have made and are making Duo-Art rolls. Paderewski, Hofmann, Bauer, Gabrilowitsch, Ganz, Grainger, Novaes and dozens of other famous virtuosi have recorded their interpretations in these rolls.

To own a Duo-Art is to command the presence in one's home of these musicians. No such privilege has ever been offered to the music-lover before. While in addition, there are hundreds of rolls of dance and popular music made by the best performers of music of this type.



A SUGGESTION—Hear Cortot in person at Aeolian Hall, on January 20th. Then come to Aeolian Hall at your convenience and hear the Duo-Art reproduce his wonderful art

DUO-ART PIANOS cost from $875 upward. Obtainable in Grand and Upright models. Very moderate monthly terms. Liberal allowances on other instruments

DESCHANEL AND CLEMENCEAU.

Mr. Paul Deschanel, elected on Saturday President of France, is one of those accomplished, industrious politicians, orators, writers, academicians in whom France is always rich. Not of the first brilliancy, he possesses those respectable talents that make more friends than genius. The post of President of the French Republic is of limited scope. To a considerable extent he is a ceremonial and a symbol. "Marianne" has committed no enormous trust to his hands. His is a place of eminent distinction, but mostly otiose so far as original power and action are concerned. Doubtless, Mr. Deschanel will be equal to all demands of the office, wherein all the friends of France will hope for him seven years of safe and dignified life.

Mr. Clemenceau has been collecting enemies with reckless gayety for half a century. The Chamber of Deputies and the Senate swarm with the victims of his wit, his energy, his trained skill with pen and sword; Mr. Deschanel has tasted both. Upsetter of Cabinets, deracinator of Premiers, how many retaliations and revenges he has invited! Tit for tat is played. Is it the active and ardent Mr. Briand whom we catch a glimpse of behind the scenery of the new performance, so rich in surprise to most of us?

Well, Georges Clemenceau was taken by France when great and desperate work was to be done. It would have pleased the world to see another honor given him, rounding out his splendid and stormy career. But the politicians have ruled otherwise. It was their right.

Health and good fortune to President Deschanel! To Georges Clemenceau leisure to write his memoirs, sure to be enjoyed so well by our happier descendants! Meanwhile, may we remind him that the United States would love to see him over here, would find no other man's company more welcome?

PEACE, NEW STYLE.

The Paris Temps, discussing the opening of trade relations with the Bolsheviki, expresses the hope that Lenin will not be allowed to import munitions and export propaganda. He will certainly try to do both, and it will require the exercise of a good deal of vigilance to keep him from having some measure of success. Even Mr. Hoover, who thinks that the removal of the blockade will weaken Bolshevism in Russia itself, warns us that "our frontier and port "officers must redouble their vigor "against the export to us of Bolshevist agents, propaganda, and money "for subsidizing criminals to create "revolution."

There is a certain novelty in a peace which may permit partial demobilization of armies, but will necessitate material increases in the Secret Service forces of every nation. To keep out Bolshevist agents, Bolshevist literature, and bundles of money forged by the Bolsheviki will require work, and much work; nor will it be altogether easy to prevent interested persons from sending war materials to Russia. It may be called peace, but it will be a strange peace; a peace between Governments which remain irreconcilable enemies, when every nation must be constantly on its guard against the persistent intrigues of Moscow. The danger in any relaxation of vigilance is illustrated by Mr. Palmer's statement on the connection between propaganda from Moscow and the Spartacus movement in Germany—particularly the riots of a year ago.

Ambassador Joffe came to Berlin in 1918 ostensibly as the diplomatic representative of a friendly Power before the German Government, but he brought with him ten million rubles—a sum more respectable then than now—which he used to promote the overthrow of that Government. It is, as yet, in conformity with the best traditions of Bolshevist diplomacy.

If by some economic miracle Bolshevism should maintain itself indefinitely in Russia without spreading to other nations, the Bolsheviki might learn, in the course of some centuries, the expediency of confining diplomats to diplomatic functions and of abstaining from propaganda against Governments with which they are at peace. It is purely a matter of expediency; in some thousands of years the world has learned that, on the whole, it does not pay to shoot heralds bearing flags of truce or to imprison Ambassadors, and conversely that it does not pay for the bearers of flags of truce to shoot their entertainers, or for Ambassadors to try to upset the Governments to which they are accredited. There have been exceptions, of course, most notably the imperial German diplomatic service; nevertheless Governments have generally abstained from certain inconvenient practices because retaliation was too easy.

But much that humanity spent thousands of years in learning has lately been discarded, and some of the forward-looking would set us back to a point where we should have to begin our education all over again. For the present a Bolshevist diplomat is always potentially and often in practice an agent of sedition. He may not carry out the theories of his Government because he thinks it would be inconvenient or unwise; but it is hard to be sure. Peace with Soviet Russia means the overrunning of every country in the world by agitators of the sort lately deported on the Buford; and every one of them, as well as the native revolutionaries with whom they co-operate, can look for help to Moscow.

THE STRUGGLE FOR TRADE OVERSEAS.

Our friends who are situated a little too far north, and also those a little too far to the south—that is, in both ways off the route most favored by nature and development for foreign trade—should not be impatient with the slowness of the decease of this port. Some of them would be glad to grow at the rate New York is alleged to be dying. New York's proportion of the nation's trade fell to 45 per cent. in 1919, but it increased its exports 36 per cent. compared with its previous record, and its imports rather more, the gain in dollars being less than two billions going and coming. Naturally, the rest of the country does the business New York cannot do, and New York would rather see it done that way than not done. But New York would feel anxious about itself if it grew the way some of its rivals grow.

Take, for example, the co-operation—not conspiracy, of course—in restraint of New York's trade by which the nation's ships are sent to Southern ports to take freight sent there by the Director General from territory easterly of Indiana. The railways coming to all Northern ports, including Canada's, plainly tell the Director General that they will not, any longer than Government operation compels them, submit to doubling their land haul at the same rate as to New York. They originate the business, and they propose to route it by the shorter and better way over their own lines. They resent giving the long haul off their lines to competitive roads, and they are offended that the order was issued without a hearing.

The Director General's reply was not apologetic. He declared that the division of rates would offset the loss by diversion of traffic, and urged that the Eastern roads of the United States had little to complain of, since their position was better than that of Canada's on the same terms with them. He added, what nobody doubted, that the general welfare was the prime consideration, and that the increasing difficulty of moving export freight through the North Atlantic ports justified artificial methods of diverting business to where there was less obstruction. It is true that New York cannot do all the business offered because it offers loads both ways, outward and inward. That is a consideration superior to any artificial inducement to ports which can offer exports, but which are shunned by imports. It will be in vain for American shipping to be sent South for exports which they can get anywhere just now, when 37 per cent. of homeward freighters are said to come in ballast. If New York's growth rested on such sands, we should have cause for uneasiness. Still, New York would be wise to feel no false confidence. The congestion here is such that valuable freight long lies in the open, often without so much as tarpaulin covering. Damage and theft are such that insurers are restless. Strings of lighters a thousand feet long are sometimes moored to a single pierhead, awaiting unlading or looting. The co-operation is wretched between land and water carriers, and the Director General might have found work to do in improving it. It would have been harder than the diversion of freight by edict, but it would have been more lasting and profitable in the long run.

It is to be remarked that the British steamships find no attraction in the bribe to business through the Canadian and Southern ports. It was announced on Saturday that the Cunard line is to spend $30,000,000 on a New Jersey terminal, giving it rail connections without lighterage. It proposes the erection of eight 1,000-foot two-story steel piers on 3,500 feet of water front running southward from opposite Forty-second Street, Manhattan, to the Erie piers. The Cunard is said to have no intention of removing its passenger business from Manhattan, and it is putting up one of the finest business buildings in the city. If the Cunard were doing this at Galveston or New Orleans, the diversion to them of trade preferring to come here would be more disturbing. As it is, we wish them joy of the business, so long as they have it.

The Cunard's enterprise has broader significance than the stimulus to New York. It shows that England is going to do business with the United States in a manner which will test the complacency of New York as the competition of domestic undertakings cannot. England threatens to be as long dying as the Port of New York, and offers no apologies. The British recoil from war prostration extorts recognition, even praise, from those whom it threatens in one sense, even while it promotes their plans in other ways.

COUNTRY AGAINST CITY.

Mr. Anderson of the Anti-Saloon League has given out a document to which the signatures of something like a thousand up-State clergymen have been obtained. It is a somewhat formidable allocution to the churches of New York City, demanding that they not only acquiesce in but show enthusiasm for up-State views on prohibition; couched in rather unfraternal language, perhaps, and a little more mandatory than is usual in correspondence between brothers in the ministry. But that is an ecclesiastical matter on which secular comment is of no particular value. What is important is the meaning behind the letter.

One feels that the author of this epistle is somewhat unjust to a good many churchmen of New York who have worked for prohibition; but justice seems to have been considered as little as accuracy. It is a document with a purpose. It refers to New York City as "the centre of nullification and seditious activity" against prohibition. That is not true; objection to prohibition is not sedition; violation of the prohibition laws, though criminal, is not seditious. And it is not true that New York City is the centre of opposition, which, so far as manifested, has centred about New Jersey and Rhode Island. But, though untrue, these statements are admirably suited to the purpose of the document.

Its purpose is the same as the recent attack on New York made by Mr. Wayne B. Wheeler, which he fortified by quoting a poem which may be an accurate description of the doings of some of our visitors from the interior, but which describes New York not much more fitly than it does Westerville, Ohio. There again accuracy was of little importance. Probably Mr. Wheeler thought his description was accurate, just as Mr. Anderson no doubt regards New York as a sink of iniquity which cannot be purified even by his sanative presence therein. The purpose is the thing. There is a strong, sometimes a violent, prejudice against the city, against New York as the metropolis, in many parts of the country. To some extent this is spontaneous, to a large extent created or fostered by deliberate propaganda. But it is there, and its presence is a bad thing for both the city and the country. The leaders of the Anti-Saloon League are losing no time in taking advantage of the prejudice and turning hatred of New York to their own ends. It is a familiar method; even in county local option the county seat was usually voted dry by the back townships, and the farmers' supposed resentment toward town dwellers was counted on to furnish solid support for prohibition.

Now it is being done on a large scale. It will do no good to New York City or to the nation at large, but that is a matter which probably does not interest the Anti-Saloon League.

POSTMASTER OF BOSTON.

It was in 1867 and 1868 that Representative Thomas A. Jenckes of Rhode Island made his famous reports recommending the establishment of the merit system resting upon competitive examinations. In 1871 came the first Civil Service Commission, headed by Mr. G. W. Curtis. In 1875 President Grant was forced by the politicians to suspend the operation of the civil service rules. What marvelous progress has been made since the foundation of the Civil Service Association in 1877 may be judged by the appointment of an Independent Republican as Postmaster of Boston. In accordance with Mr. Wilson's executive order for the appointment of first class Postmasters by competitive examination, a board was sent to Boston to examine candidates for the vacancy caused by the death of Postmaster Murray.

There were candidates in fat numbers, among them the Assistant Postmaster, and a sometime Democratic Mayor of Boston and Representative in Congress. Surely the lot of examination might be good to deserving Democrats. The Postmaster General doesn't adore civil service reform. He favored the selection of the Assistant Postmaster. The Civil Service Commission insisted that a candidate must have served in an executive capacity for seven years. Finally, of sixty-odd candidates the examiners certified three. Mr. Roland Baker's name was first. He is a retired business man of 55. Certified name No. 2 was that of a former Treasurer of Boston; No. 3 was that of a former State Treasurer. All were men of unusual character, ability, and experience.

Boston is Senator Walsh's "home town." In the old days he would have named his man for Postmaster and the President would have meekly ratified the choice. Senator Walsh will not seek to prevent the confirmation of Mr. Baker. He will, however, attack the selection of a candidate for Postmaster in a great city by means of competitive examination. He holds that "the party in "power must assume responsibility "for the administration of Post Of-"fices in large cities, which, accord-"ing to his view, are policy-making "offices." Well, can there be a better way of fulfilling that responsibility, of insuring efficient administration of the great Post Offices, of serving the city and the country well, and, incidentally, of keeping the party in power in good reputation, than the absolutely fair and non-political selection of first class Postmasters by competitive examination?

DE KOVEN AND "ROBIN HOOD."

It was Reginald de Koven's lot to write the opera which proved to be at once the best and the most popular of his works at the outset of his career. His subsequent productions were able and often distinguished; but they were overshadowed by the fame of "Robin Hood." It was a further misfortune, perhaps, that "Robin Hood" itself was judged as deriving from the influence of Gilbert and Sullivan, and therefore of secondary importance.

The fact is, of course, that "Robin Hood" stands, and has always stood, in a class by itself. Its mood of youthful romance and adventure, its atmosphere of the open sky and the open road, are as far removed from the Gilbertian tradition as is the Forest of Arden. If a comparison is necessary, it must be with Shakespeare and "As You Like It." The significant point, however, is that "Robin Hood" is essentially native. In its normal wholesomeness, its normal romance, and its normally rollicking good spirits, it is warp and woof of that vanished America which we quaintly call Victorian.

In Rip Van Winkle Mr. de Koven had a character and a theme of vast potentiality and promise—the only one of our legends that has impressed itself widely upon the world. Whatever the opera may prove to be, it is our good fortune that he lived to finish it.

PRINCE AND "PRESIDENT."

There is a certain resiliency about Mayor Hylan which might lead evil-minded men to suppose that he is not an unqualified idealist. About two months ago he welcomed the Prince of Wales in a very pretty speech and awarded him the freedom of the city. Just to prove that he is not narrow-minded, he bestows the same signal honor upon Mr. de Valera, who calls himself "President of the Irish Republic."

After all, life must be very pleasant to Mayor Hylan. Some Mayors might be disposed to welcome the Prince of Wales as being the personal representative of Great Britain. It is also conceivable that Mr. de Valera's intimate friends, men with very special tastes, might like to give the professor some small token of their affection and esteem; but it is very rare to find a man who has the same warm feeling of admiration for both the Prince of Wales and "President" de Valera. What infinite possibilities life must hold out to a man of Mayor Hylan's catholic tastes. So broad-minded, so infinitely tolerant, he must find the problems of life transparently simple. It is hard indeed to see why the identical speech Mayor Hylan made to the Prince of Wales should not have gone down equally well with "President" de Valera.

That very difficult feat of neutrality which the United States was called upon to perform for over two years must have been a perfect joke to the Mayor. He has purged his mind of the critical faculty and has lashed his colors to the mast of toleration. In the troublous days ahead of them it may be some consolation to the Prince of Wales and the high priest of Sinn Fein to remember that they have one bond in common—the freedom of the City of New York bestowed upon them by its Mayor.

FOR MUNICIPAL GUN PRACTICE.

The recent episode at the Manhattan Savings Institution is respectfully called to the attention of the City Government. An enterprising citizen of this city confronted the paying teller with the muzzle of a revolver and a demand for $5,000. The teller responded by drawing from his hip something that was put there with no reference to the drought, and instantly four other bank employés joined the gunplay. The hold-up man ducked their bullets, hiding behind a counter. In the momentary deadlock that ensued one of the clerks made two desperate efforts to telephone the police, but he could not even attract the attention of "Operator." Then the President of the bank emerged with the sixth revolver and the hold-up man practiced his calling to the extent of holding up his hands. When all this had been successfully transacted a policeman arrived.

On the part of the bank employés it was a shining example of preparedness. Subsequent inquiries revealed the fact that the bank has a shooting gallery in the cellar, in which its office force is instructed in drawing a bead.

Local cracksmen have long ceased to obscure their activities beneath the mantle of night, being, in fact, among our most prominent, numerous, and successful advocates of daylight saving.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

War Strain as Seen in Civilians. Criticism of people seeking consolation for cruel bereavement and assurance that death is not a final parting cannot be harsh or even unsympathetic, however opposed to reason and experience may be the measures they adopt to attain this end, or however demonstrable the delusions into which they may fall. In considering what they do and the pathetic credulity these people display, it must be remembered that the soldiers on the firing line were far from being alone in enduring the breaking strains caused by the war, and that what is called—in nine cases out of ten erroneously—"shell shock" takes many forms, far from all being found in the military hospitals.

One, and neither the least important nor the least regrettable, of the war strain manifestations among civilians is to be seen in the behavior of those who are turning to the professed transmitters of messages from the dead for the alleviation of their grief. Many are doing this now who, before the war, would not have thought of utilizing a device then thoroughly discredited, or, if they did, would have been careful not to let the fact be known outside the small circle of believers in mediumistic powers. At present there is little or no hesitation in proclaiming belief in those powers, and the mystical in all its variants has acquired a vogue that cannot but be disquieting to all who appreciate the meaning of such a return to the errors of a darker age. There is, of course, nothing in the slightest degree new or original in these supposed dealings with the departed. They were centuries and centuries old when the Fox sisters gave them first notoriety in this country, and there is probably not a country in the world which has not passed again and again through such a period of spiritistic divagation as the war has brought to most of the nations engaged in it.

Exploration of Ground Well Known. Quite the strangest feature of the current revival of imagined trafficking with the dead is the belief of those engaged in it that they are taking a long step forward, and that those who do not follow them are being left behind in the progress of the race. As a matter of fact, the long step is backward, and the imagined progression is a reversion. The spiritism of the day does have, indeed, some marks of modernity, but these are all superficial—mere embroideries, as it were, of the ancient superstitions—and in essentials the new mysticism does not differ from that of the Middle Ages or of the remoter times when, at many a famous fane, the gods spoke through the mouths of convulsed and entranced priestesses.

Between the former and the present believers, however, there is a single real difference—in the one case faith was justified by the absence of refuting knowledge, in the other the believer is obliged to ignore available proof that the phenomena he ascribes to another world all arise from sources close at hand.

Quite needless weight is granted to the acceptance of spirit communications by men like Lodge and Crooks and Doyle. They are intelligent, unquestionably, and in their own domain of science or art trustworthy, but out of it they are far from being experts, and it is only necessary to read British memoirs and biographies to realize that the English, longer than almost any other civilized people, have retained their liking for ghosts, and still treat them as something to be proud of—as retainers which only old families can have. "White Ladies" abound in Great Britain, and derision of such visitants is resented by people otherwise sane and sensible.

Ready to Save or 'to Destroy. An announcement made by the du Pont de Nemours Company is to the effect that its chemists have found a new, or rather an improved, anaesthetic. Coming from an organization commanding all the resources of chemical knowledge, this is important news, for, enormous as is the value of the anaesthetics already available for use in surgery, none of them is perfect and none is as free from danger as will be the ideal bringer of unconsciousness and abolisher of pain.

It would be held strange if a company most of whose activities have been in the line of providing means of destruction should have been able to give the world a better protection than it previously had from the hurts the company's other products often inflicted. But that is, or is becoming, a familiar inconsistency of science. The same art that helps to kill is often turned to the saving of life or the mitigation of suffering.

The Prohibition Word.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I would advise "Temperance," who inquires about a prohibition Bible, to purchase a copy of the Koran, which contains the written word of Mohammed, the Prophet of Prohibition. JOHN ANDERSON.

New York, Jan. 15, 1919.

WINTER FANCY.

In these barren shut-in days
Fancy lures me many ways;
Fancy, with its necromancy,
Prodigal the part it plays.

For it shows me how the Spring,
From the south-land journeying
With the northward-faring bluebird,
Will return on azure wing.

Tells me tales of pimpernels,
Where the white wake-robin dwells,
And reveals the hoarded honey
Hidden in the wild-phlox cells.

Of its wealth bids me to share
Orient aromas rare,
All the ecstasies of April
With its daffodilian air.

Come, then, Fancy, bide with me
Till the hour when I shall see
The eternal vernal rapture
In its clear reality!

CLINTON SCOLLARD.

TO URGE TRACTION INQUIRY.

Assemblyman Lee to Introduce Bill for Legislative Commission.

Declaring that legislation is necessary for any solution of the traction problem in the cities of New York State and that the Legislature should have the benefit of full and accurate information to enable it to act wisely, Assemblyman Warren I. Lee, of the 18th District, Kings, will introduce in the Assembly tonight a proposal for the creation of a legislative commission for the purpose of undertaking a State-wide inquiry into the traction situation. It will be composed partly of legislators and partly of citizens. Assemblyman Lee said:

"The traction situation is acute not only in New York City, but in up-State cities. At the last session several measures purporting to be for the relief of the situation were introduced. These included the Carson-Martin bill, giving the Public Service Commission authority to readjust rates based on existing franchises, and the Fowler bill, providing for municipal ownership of public utilities. I believe that before the Legislature acts on these or any similar proposals it ought to have fuller information as to the necessity for such legislation and the adequacy or practicability of the measures proposed."

Assemblyman Lee said that for obvious reasons the problem could not be satisfactorily handled by the Board of Estimate under the direction of the Mayor and the Controller, and, anyway, its jurisdiction does not extend beyond the city. He added:

"The Legislative commission as proposed in the measure which I shall introduce will consist of three Senators, three Assemblymen, two citizens to be appointed by the Governor, two to be appointed by the Speaker of the Assembly and two by the temporary President of the Senate. This will give opportunity for the inclusion on the commission of representative and experienced citizens who will bring to the commission a standing that it might not otherwise have."

SENATE PRETEXTS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am a Republican, and my father before me, but this cannot make me forget how awful a thing war is, and what we supposed we were fighting for. We said we were fighting against war and all unrestrained aggression of one nation against another.

Victory came, and a league of nations was devised to make sure the fruits of that victory. Despite grief and loss, we felt exalted for a little while at the prospect of "the parliament of man, the federation of the world."

But we have been "held up" by a Republican Senate on two pretexts. One is that Wilson was discourteous to the Senate and committed other offenses for which he must be chastised, and the other that the proposed treaty will limit the sovereignty of the United States and the constitutional powers of the Senate.

Suppose Wilson has acted as badly as they say, might it not be better to leave him to the verdict of history rather than let the Turkish massacres go on and risk the coming of another great war?

And is it not true that every significant treaty has limited the powers of the contracting nations? We are willing to limit our powers if other nations will do the same.

Let him not be unduly puffed up, for a grain of sand can stop the clock, but if this League of Nations is defeated, directly or by reservations, so that another war comes, the one to blame will not be the Kaiser.

A French Critic of Our Army.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Senate Bill 3688, outlining a complete reorganization of the army, has been duly read and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs. The House bill, not yet, I believe, officially published, will soon appear. These bills will probably show a wide divergence of view as to the proper basis for army reorganization, and both will, before long, be under discussion in the Congress and elsewhere. Permit me, through you, to recommend all those who desire to form an intelligent opinion on this most important subject to read Colonel E. Requin's recent book entitled "America's Race to Victory." Colonel Requin, a thoroughly trained French staff officer, was attached to the French Military Mission in Washington, almost from our entry into the war. He therefore was in a position to see our defects in organization at first hand and to appreciate both our difficulties and our achievements. His work bears the indorsement of both General Foch and General March. It is replete with helpful suggestions and gives a most vivid picture of our military effort, both at home and abroad. It can be read in a few hours, and no legislator or voter should reach a definite conclusion as to the merits or demerits of the plans for army reorganization now under consideration until he has read the keen comments of this friendly and well equipped foreign student of our military architecture.

Why a Dry Bill Failed.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Referring to your statement in your editorial article "Natural Law in the Spirituous World," to the effect that the Prohibition Commissioner has not yet prohibited fermentation in the human stomach, it is said that some years ago the temperance party introduced a bill in the Massachusetts Legislature to permit the search of the person for liquor, it having been alleged that many undesirable citizens were accustomed to carry bottles of liquor concealed in hip pockets or other depositories, and to sell liquor therefrom, causing great mental anguish to the prohibitionists. The bill had the support of many legislators, and was rolling along toward passage when its progress was suddenly arrested by a member from Western Massachusetts, who offered an amendment "that in searching the person for liquor the use of the stomach pump should be prohibited." The reaction brought about by this means killed the bill.

Let Us Keep Faith.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Those Senators who have defeated the ratification of the Peace Treaty should write, it appears, as the epitaph on the grave mark of every American soldier in France: "Here lies an American who died fighting against the League of Nations; who died to keep his nation and the world from obtaining a lasting peace." Just to think of the slander the action of the Senate has cast on the motive of our heroic dead who lie beneath the sod of France! Let America be true to her noble dead, let her faith keep faith with them, or she will richly deserve the contempt of all civilized mankind.

The Lesson for Prohibition Sunday.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

One of your correspondents has asked where he could find a "Prohibition Bible." "There ain't any such" thing yet. There will be when our friends have succeeded in changing the definition of "wine" to mean unfermented grape juice.

In this connection it is interesting to know that, on the first Sunday after the Eighteenth Amendment becomes operative, the Holy Gospel for the day is the account of our Lord's first miracle in Cana of Galilee, when he relieved the embarrassment of the bridegroom, and added so much to the joy of the occasion, by making an excellent wine in sufficient quantity.

HONOR FOR WASHINGTON.

Conference Representatives Lay Wreaths on Tomb at Mt. Vernon.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Only the most practical subjects will be considered at the International Group Committee meeting of the Second Pan-American Financial Conference, which begins tomorrow. This was decided at a meeting of the group Chairmen in the office of the Secretary of the Treasury today, those present being Frank A. Vanderlip, Chairman of the Argentina Committee; Paul M. Warburg, Chairman of the Chilean Committee; Joshua W. Alexander, Secretary of Commerce; Lewis E. Pierson, Irving National Bank, New York City, Chairman of the Paraguayan Committee; Eugene Meyer, special representative of the Secretary of the Treasury with the Uruguayan Committee; Edwin F. Sweet, special representative of the Secretary of the Treasury with the Chilean Committee; John W. Thomas, Chairman of the Committee on Honduras; Robert S. Brookings, St. Louis, Chairman of the Mexican Committee; Franklin Q. Brown, New York City, Chairman of the Cuban Committee.

The organization meeting of the Group Committee, comprising the sixty official delegates and nearly three hundred United States bankers and exporters, will be held tomorrow.

All the official delegates to the conference and their aids motored to Mount Vernon this morning. Argentina, Bolivia, Colombia, and Venezuala put handsome wreaths on the tomb of George Washington. Bolivia presented two wreaths.

While the conference itself will hold its initial session in the Hall of the Americas at the Pan American Building, questions such as international loans, improvement of railroad and steamship lines, modernizing public utilities in Latin-American cities, the building of roads and timely aid to private business will be considered by the nineteen group committees in which 300 financial leaders of the United States will confer with the delegates. In these committees are such men as James A. Farrell, President of the United States Steel Corporation; Edward N. Hurley, former Chairman of the Shipping Board; Joseph P. Grace of W. R. Grace & Co.; John Hays Hammond, the mining engineer; Frank A. Vanderlip; James Speyer; Major Gen. William C. Gorgas; President Goodnow of Johns Hopkins University; J. G. White, engineer; former Governor Manning of South Carolina and W. Cameron Forbes, former Governor General of the Philippines.

Secretary Glass will preside at the opening session. President Wilson has written a message which will be read to the delegates. Secretary Lansing and Director General John Barrett will make address of welcome. A representative of each of the visiting delegations will make appropriate response.

At the evening session of the conference the topic will be "the improvement of ocean and land transportation facilities."

At the Tuesday evening session William G. McAdoo will preside and speak of international finance. John Bassett Moore will speak on the "Work of the International High Commission."

APPEAL FOR ARMENIANS.

Gen. Harbord Says Thousands Will Die Unless America Saves Them.

Major General James G. Harbord, who headed the American Military Mission which recently made an exhaustive investigation into conditions in Armenia and other sections of the Near East, made an appeal yesterday for relief of the thousands of persons in the Near East who, he says, must perish this Winter unless American relief is continued. He credits American philanthropy with having kept alive a large proportion of destitute people in these regions who otherwise would have perished, but holds that the work that has begun must be continued.

"Colonel Haskell, Allied High Commissioner for Armenia," says General Harbord, "reports that more than 800,000 are destitute in the Caucasus alone. There are practically no foodstuffs available in that section except those brought in by the American Relief Administration. In addition to food supplies, the hospitals, orphanages, soup kitchens, and other institutions of the Near East Relief must be supported.

"Most of the refugees are huddled in concentration camps. These people are normally industrious and thrifty. Now they are helpless. There are many thousands of children, many of whom have lost both parents and do not even know their own names."

APPEAL FOR HOSPITAL FUND

The 46 Institutions Need $100,000 More to Complete Quota.

The annual report of the United Hospital Fund, made known yesterday, emphasizes the inadequacy of hospital facilities in Greater New York. With the report a statement from Albert H. Wiggin, Treasurer, was issued showing the status of the million dollar fund, the campaign for which was held last Fall. Approximately $900,000 has been obtained.

"One hundred and eighty thousand people, on an average, are sick in New York every day," the report says," and yet it is estimated that only one in ten of those who need hospital treatment get it. The great congestion in living quarters hinders recovery in the home, carries disease to others, and often breaks down the housewife, who tries to act as nurse in addition to her other cares."

To Meet Deficit on Federation of Philanthropic Societies.

Because the dollar pledged for philanthropy four years ago is worth but 48 cents, the Federation for Support of Jewish Philanthropic Charities will launch a campaign today to make up a deficit of $1,700,000, according to an announcement made yesterday by Felix M. Warburg, Chairman of the federation. The money is to go to increase the budgets of the ninety institutions affiliated with the federation.

The campaign will be known as the "Safeguard Federation" drive and more than 100 committees will begin active canvassing today. "Few business enterprises are run as economically and effectively as the federation," said Mr. Warburg.

"Federation, through the Jews of New York, supports ninety philanthropic institutions," said Mr. Warburg. "It makes one appeal for ninety charities. It includes every phase of philanthropic work, and we feel that every individual in this city, who is not himself dependent upon charity, should be a supporter of it, to the extent of his means."

GOVERNOR AIDS SMITH FUND

College's $4,000,000 Drive Opens with Gifts Totaling $25,000.

Is your name Smith? If so, within the next few days you will probably be approached by some fair graduate of Smith College who will ask you to contribute to the $4,000,000 fund to increase the salaries of the Faculty members and to provide for other expenses of the institution which bears your name. Governor Alfred E. Smith was the first of the thousands of Smiths in this country to send a contribution, which was included in pledges and gifts totalling $25,000 with which the campaign opened Saturday.

The drive in New York City is being conducted under the direction of Mrs. Harold Irving Pratt and Miss Mary Van Vleeck, and two thousand canvassers are seeking subscriptions. Part of the money which is to be raised will be used to construct new buildings at the college.

HARVARD MEN MUST PASS BROAD TEST

REQUIRES SELF-EDUCATIO

Elective System is Restricted b New Rules—Other Features of President Lowell's Report.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 18.—Changes in the curriculum and in methods of instruction, some of them suggested by the experiences of Harvard' 13,000 students and graduates who serve in the war, are outlined in the annua report of President A. Lawrence Lowel made public today at Harvard University. The report pointed out that th war had shown the value of genera education as well as "the necessity o expert knowledge and therefore of specialized training."

One of the important announceemnts i that "all the divisions under the Faculty. Except those dealing with mathematics and the natural sciences, hav voted to make the experiment" of giving" a general final examination i the undergraduate's field of concentration." President Lowell points out tha it has been the custom of colleges t give the examination in one course o instruction, and that it is the aim under the new scheme to treat "the student as the unit in education, as th real object to be considered, in short as an end in himself."

"The adoption of a comprehensiv final examination in the student's mai field of work has attracted wide attention, and would seem to be a notabl advance in American educational methods," says the President's report. "I is not, like the final examinations formerly held in our schools and colleges, a mere review of what he has been taught. That had its merits and defects; but was simply an attempt to make sure that the pupil had not forgotten what he had learned.

"The object of this examination i different, for it is designed to include much that has not been covered in class. It is a general examination on the subject, and the student must read for himself what his courses have not touched. The aim is to fasten his attention on the subject as a whole, rather than on isolated fragments of it; to lead him to co-ordinate the information he obtains, whether from his courses or elsewhere; to master the subject and make it his own; and to impress upon him the responsibility for his own education, for real value belongs only to self-education, acquired by personal effort. Teachers can help a man to obtain it, but cannot stuff it into him readymade.

"In connection with the general examination on the field of concentration a change was adopted in the requirements for distribution. As at first established this required that six courses should be taken in subjects remote from the main field of study, and the courses were divided for the purpose into four groups. But the grouping proved in practice somewhat artificial, and led to difficulties without wholly accomplishing its object. Moreover, there was a difference of opinion about the number of courses that ought to be required in this way.

"The conclusion now reached is based upon the principle that no man ought to be given a degree, certifying a liberal education, who has not in college read some good literature, and learned something of history, of the conceptions of modern science and of the methods of abstract thought. The regulation adopted provides therefore that every student must take at least one course in literature, one in history, one in science, and one in mathematics or philosophy.

"The departure from the unrestricted elective system, by rules for the distribution and concentration of studies, and for a general examination upon the latter, rests upon the principle that the duty of the college to its undergraduates is not confined to offering them an opportunity for self-improvement which they may take, neglect or use in any way they please; but involves a responsibility for encouraging the students to take advantage of that opportunity, and for developing so far as possible their capacity for a useful and fruitful life."

The report says that, perhaps due to the fact that many students were unable to continue their education during the war, many of the professional and technical schools have record attendances this year. Among these are the Law School, the School of Business Administration, and the Medical School.

The increasing difficulty of holding capable instructors also is pointed out.

Plans for the continuation of the new School of Engineering also are outlined, as well as the proposal for the new School of Education to be opened next September. An endowment fund of $2,000,000 has been raised, a staff has been assembled in the Department of Education and curriculums are being drawn up for the instruction of students who desire to take up teaching in the public schools as a profession or other duties in supervision of public education.

President Lowell suggests also that some assistance be given to members of the faculty who might be deemed capable of writing authoritative books in their special fields. Many capable instructors, he says, are unable to write because most of their time is taken up in work of instruction and in keeping up with changes in their special fields so that they are unable to write. He urges that some aid, at least clerical assistance, be given to picked men so that the public may have the fullest use of their powers and abilities.

The report also gives figures upon the service of Harvard students and alumni during the war and in the Boston police strike. During the war 7,056 were in the army, 1,636 in the navy and 317 in the allied military service. The number in the ambulance service was 118 and 4,248 in war work as civilians. The number commissioned was 6,565 or 72.8 per cent. of the total, showing the demand of college men for officers. About 144 men served during the police strike.

WALSH ASKS FOR TEST.

Wants to be Delegate to Convention on Opposition to Treaty.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Jan. 18.—The breach between President Wilson and Senator David I. Walsh has become so wide that the Senator will ask the voters of Massachusetts to pass on his opposition to the treaty by going before them as a candidate for delegate to the National Democratic Convention.

Walsh men propose to fight the candidacy of every man who seeks to go to the convention in support of the Administration's stand on the league and treaty. It seems likely that an anti-Administration delegation will go to the convention from this State.

The Walsh following will oppose McAdoo, Baker, Palmer, or any other candidate supporting the President, it is said.

To Announce Girl Scout Returns.

Officers of the Girl Scouts will give a luncheon today at noon at the Hotel Biltmore, at which the final results of the nation-wide drive last Fall for leaders, members and funds, will be announced by Mrs. Jane Deeter Rippin, National Director. John Drinkwater will be the chief speaker.

IRISH 'BONDS' BRING PRAISE AND PROTEST

QUINN DENOUNCES SCHEME

Irish Alderman Assails de Valera and Hylan, and Says Agitation May Bring Us to War.

With more than three hours of oratory and only one volley of hisses for Great Britain, the Sinn Fein campaign for ten million American dollars for Ireland's independence got under way yesterday at the Lexington Theatre, Lexington Avenue and Fifty-first Street. Today, under the spur of a thousand-dollar personal subscription from Archbishop Patrick J. Hayes, who gave his full sanction to the drive, a small army of canvassers will get out to sell the certificates, which are not an obligation and bear no interest until six months after British troops are out of Ireland.

At the close of the meeting John J. Rooney, Chairman for Manhattan, declared that $500,000 was "in sight already," and pledged his team to raise $1,000,000. Joseph J. Feinnegan, reporting for Brooklyn, pledged $1,000,000 for his borough, while John S. O'Leary, in charge in the Bronx, gave his own check for $5,000 and said he thought the Bronx would yield $250,000. Representatives of Richmond and Queens pledged their boroughs for $100,000 and $200,000, respectively.

Alderman W. F. Quinn, himself an Irishman, last night issued a statement bitterly attacking the loan, and characterizing "this so-called 'Irish Republic' bond issue" as a "fraudulent scheme." The Mayor, for his part in the opening ceremonies, was labeled "a cheap, petifogging demagogue."

The start of the campaign brought out enough local Sinn Feiners to fill the theatre and sound a mighty chorus whenever a speaker got "Ireland" and "freedom" into oratorical correlation. The start and the enthusiasm also gave more of a start than enthusiasm to a small negro lad who appeared at the stage entrance with a mountain, or at least a hillock, of roses for de Valera. The dusky rose bearer arrived just as the first burst of sound welled welkinward, and only Sir Oliver Lodge, or one with second sight, could have told whither he disappeared. He didn't wait even to subscribe.

"Devoid of Violence."

W. Bourke Cockran presided and introduced the fighting chaplain of the 165th Infantry, the Rev. Father Francis P. Duffy, who pronounced a benediction. Mr. Cockran then outlined briefly the history of the birth of the "Irish Republic" and referred to the cause as "a revolutionary movement, rapidly approaching triumph, but devoid of violence and interested only in law and order and freedom." He declared that "justice demands the emancipation of Ireland."

Mr. Cockran then read letters indorsing the campaign, written by Governor Alfred E. Smith and Archbishop Hayes. The Governor conveyed his best wishes for the drive, and the Archbishop, after calling attention to his check for $1,000, wrote in part:

"After a very satisfactory conference with Mr. Eamon de Valera, President of the Irish Republic, I am convinced that his program for the agricultural, industrial, and commercial development of Ireland is entirely practical and constructive.

"If England would but approach in a large Christian spirit the dilemma the Irish problem has evolved, Erin would prove more than generous and noble as a friendly neighbor, would never permit herself to be the pawn of any foreign power, and would be foremost to maintain the highest standards of Christian civilization. With these world facts before us, Ireland would be welcomed as one of the most conservative forces of our distressed times."

Mrs. James O'Rahilly, widow of The O'Rahilly, who was one of the leaders of the Irish uprising, Easter Week, 1916, and was shot while resisting the British authorities, spoke next. It was her first public speech, and in it, though obviously suffering nervousness, she told incidents of the uprising.

Then came "President" de Valera. When the former professor of mathematics in Dublin University stepped to the front, the Sinn Fein orange, white and green went into action throughout the house. And the cheering, without assistance from the band, lasted six and a half minutes. Then followed a series of tigers for all and sundry connected with the loan.

The Professor started his remarks in Gaelic, but soon turned to English, as better suited to emphasize need for funds.

Promises Profit in the End.

"We have issued bonds," he said, "and these bonds are bonds of the Irish people. These bonds will be profitable in the end. Those who buy them will have a personal share in the Republic of Ireland. We aren't so much interested in the bonds as we are in the by-products of them, such as the devoted help they will inspire."

Dr. de Valera credited Arthur Griffiths with being the father of Sinn Fein, and got an ovation when he concluded.

The next to appear was Warren Shaw Fisher. He wore a uniform with four stars on each shoulder and everybody thought he must be a high-up member of the United States Army, but it developed that the stars marked him as Commander in Chief of the United American War Veterans. It was he who provoked the hisses for Great Britain. After asserting that his organization was thoroughly in favor of Sinn Fein plans, although certain politicians were not, Mr. Fisher, reading from a prepared manuscript, said:

"This political element in both parties is a menace to Americanism and has and is fed on British gold—as they would deliver America into bondage, and tear down the American flag from the high seas at the point of treason—so have been bought to fight your cause. We, as Americans, have banded together to fight for fair play and justice. One of our principles is to challenge Great Britain for the mastery of the high seas. In this cause are we organizing our marine posts in the seaport cities, and through our work shall our emblem float in every port and in every city throughout the world, despite the traitors who would drag it down."

According to the letterhead of the United American War Veterans, national headquarters are at 417 Lexington Avenue, and the officers include Lieutenant Grover P. Heinzmann, J. Kennedy Lewis, Captain W. R. Ramsey, Captain Charles O. Gumaelius, and Brig. Gen. Samuel T. Ansell, U. S. A., retired. On behalf, he said, of the organization Commander in Chief Fisher presented a silk Sinn Fein flag to de Valera.

Justice Danial F. Cohalan and Dr. David Klein, rabbi of Temple Beth Elohim, 916 Southern Boulevard, the Bronx, also spoke.

Alderman Quinn's Protest.

Anderman Quinn's protest against the loan drive and his attack on Mayor Hylan read:

"Proud of my Irish ancestry and the great part Irishmen have played in the establishment of our country and the proud achievements of Irishmen all over the world, still at this time I feel it somebody's duty to protest against the financial appeal being made by he so-called 'President' of the mythical 'Irish Republic,' De Valera.

"This man no doubt is sincere in his dream of freedom, and as there is nothing dearer to an Irishman's heart than the freedom of the Old Sod his appeal no doubt will have tremendous effect.

"No more generous race exists than the Irish, and it's a pity to see the duly elected representative Mayor of this city pandering to a proposition to relieve Ireland's descendants in this country of $10,000,000. At first this Irish 'Republic' bond issue was considered a joke, but when a cheap, pettifogging demagogue like the Mayor we have in City Hall allows himself to become a party to a fraudulent scheme such as this so-called 'Irish Republic' bond issue is, it is about time to raise a protest against such cheap claptrap political panhandling for votes, and tell the people the truth.

"A bond issue is a financial lien against tangible property. The misty dream of a deluded agitator is not and never can be called security for a bond issue. If this man De Valera is sincere let him tell the truth about these subscriptions for Irish freedom. It is not a subscription to a bond issue but a financial gift to the man who thinks he is going to free Ireland by travelling around the United States, having his expenses paid by appealing to the sweetest sentiments of the most generous race on earth, aided and abetted by a bunch of political bunco steerers who have been fooling the Irish and Irish descendants in this city for years. But I am happy to say the Irish will no longer be fooled by their kidding methods.

May Involve Us in War.

"Good Americans, including Irish and Irish descendants, don't forget that this man De Valera is doing almost identically the same thing in this country that we are deporting the so-called radicals for. Not a native of Ireland, I understand, three thousand miles away, he is going to solve all their problems. How ridiculous, and still therein lies a danger, for with $10,000,000 he may do enough harm to embroil the United States in a war with Great Britain.

"We have our own problems, particularly the audacious attempt of alien radicals to overthrow our form of Government for what they consider freedom and liberty—a Soviet form of Government—but which we know is nothing more than organized Governmental recognition of legalized murder, robbery and a return to all primeval passions of barbarism.

"Irishmen, do not be deluded by any such nonsense. If you are interested in the freedom of Ireland do not permit yourself to be carried away by impractical dreamers capitalizing sentiments that are near and dear to you."

The Happiness of Service.

By DR. BERTHOLD A. BAER

"I will be most happy to serve you," said Mr. Frank E. Campbell, proprietor of The Funeral Church.

A look of surprise came into the eyes of his hearer, for he wondered whether Mr. Campbell meant exactly what he said.

Yet, Mr. Campbell had his words chosen wisely.

Some people find more pleasure in taking than in giving. Others find their satisfaction in having, in possessing. Still others delight in being served.

"I am happy, for I have been chosen to serve," wrote President Roosevelt.

"I am happy to serve my country," said General Pershing.

"I should indeed be happy to be able to be of service to you," wrote Senator Johnson.

Service is a prerogative.

The railroads are indispensable to our whole economic life, and railway securities are at the very heart of most investments, large and small, public and private, by individuals and by institutions.
WOODROW WILSON

THE war could not have been won without railroads. Transport—by rail and sea—is an indispensable arm of national defense.

Carrying capacity, from the wheat fields and the mines and the steel mills to the front lines in France, was the measure of our power in war.

And it is the measure of our power in peace.

Industrial expansion—increasing national prosperity—greater world trade—are vitally dependent on railroad growth.

The limit to the productive power of this country is the limit set by railroad capacity to haul the products of our industry.

The amount of freight carried on American rails doubled from 1897 to 1905—since that year it has doubled again.

It will double still again.

To haul this rapidly growing traffic the country must have more railroads—more cars and engines—more tracks and terminals.

Sound national legislation, broad-visioned public regulation, will encourage the expansion of railroads, without which the nation cannot grow.

ACCIDENT DESPOILS GOULD OF VICTORY

MEET IN TUXEDO MATCH

An unfortunate accident marred the exhibition court tennis match played at the Tuxedo Tennis and Racquet Club yesterday morning between Jay Gould and Walter Kinsella, and deprived the former of an almost certain victory, with a strong possibility of a decision in straight sets. Gould had won the first two sets by identical scores of 6—3, and was leading at 6—5, with the vantage point in his favor, and only a single tally needed to decide the match, which was to have been the best three out of five. Kinsella placed one close to the wall opposite the galleries, and the world's champion, after a great run, succeeded in getting his racquet on the ball. But as he slid forward, he lost his balance and pitched head first into the wall, one foot doubling under him as he fell.

When Kinsella and Robert Moore, for whose benefit the match was played, rushed to help him to his feet, blood was pouring from a deep cut over his left eye. Gould was scarcely able to walk to the locker room, where Dr. Rushmore, a local physician, who had been among the spectators, stitched up the wound, which was found to be serious, extending all the way above the eyebrow and down to the right temple, and almost reaching the bone. Although weak from the loss of blood, the amateur re-appeared later in the afternoon, when Jock Soutar and Edward Rogers, the racquet professionals, staged an exhibition, which was won by the former in three out of five games, the winner allowing his rival a handicap of six aces in each game.

Yesterday's meeting between Gould and Kinsella had attracted wide attention because of their recent match in Philadelphia for the open championship of the United States, in which the amateur won seven out of eleven sets. On this occasion they were both somewhat below the superb form which they showed then, having devoted much of their time to squash tennis of late, but the superiority of Gould was again impressively demonstrated.

Robert Moore imself acted as marker for the match, which began soon after 11 A. M., with Gould serving. Both contestants were rather slow in getting under way, and Kinsella in particular had difficulty in controlling his early serves. He double faulted almost immediately, and eventually lost the opening game when Gould found the dedans with a fine shot.

To avoid the difficulties attendant upon an unofficial meeting at scratch, they had agreed to divide handicaps, Kinsella receiving one-half of fifteen for a bisque. The professional was credited with his free tally on the even games throughout, while Gould selected the psychological moments cleverly for the claiming of his bisque, which played a significant part in each set. In general the effect was nearly that of scratch play.

The point score up to the last game was as follows:

										P.	G.
Gould	4	2	4	0	4	4	7	0	8	33	6
Kinsella	2	4	0	4	2	2	5	4	6	29	3

										P.	G.
Gould	0	4	5	4	4	0	4	3	4	28	6

												P.	G.
Gould	4	1	4	4	1	2	4	2	1	4	4	31	6
Kinsella	1	4	1	2	4	4	2	4	4	2	2	30	5

Soutar's victory over Rodgers was won in brilliant style by scores of 15—10, 16—15, 15—16, 7—15, 15—12. The world's racquet champion was in rare form, and the allowance of six aces per game to his opponent was not enough to stop him for more than two games out of the five.

BROOKLYNITES WIN AT NETS

The Brooklynites were successful in all the other matches of the day, two in singles and one in doubles, which, with their clean sweep of four straight on Saturday, gave them a decision of 7 to 2 for the entire week-end meeting.

The summaries of yesterday's play follow:

TO RACE OFF SANDY HOOK.

The America's Cup Series to be Started in July, Is Report.

According to a message received here from London yesterday by The United Press, the series of international yacht races for the America's Cup will be started during the week of July 18 next over the Sandy Hook course. These facts were made known to a United Press correspondent by Sir Thomas Lipton, whose Shamrock IV. will attempt to lift the cup. Sir Thomas declared himself as satisfied with the arrangements, though he had favored an earlier sailing. In his original challenge he asked that the Sandy Hook course be selected, but it has been understood here that the race would be decided off Newport.

The United Press correspondent declares that Sir Thomas, after showing the cable dispatch accepting his challenge, said:

"That's fine. Of course the date of the first race is three weeks later than I suggested. However, this is unimportant. What pleases me most is the concession made in agreeing to race over the Sandy Hook course. The Newport course, which is favored by many American yachtsmen, would have meant a serious disadvantage to me, as it would require a considerable knowledge of local conditions on the part of the racing pilot. My pilot, the man who acted for me in my three previous races, has frankly told me that he would much prefer the Sandy Hook course."

The run was held as a practice event for athletes who plan to enter the coming Sea Gate marathon. Despite the dangerous, slippery footing and the penetrating cold, nine distance runners participated. W. Gover of the Morningside A. C. broke trail for the first four miles, at which stage Knox moved into the leading position and set the pace thereafter. The former Blue and White cross-country Captain covered the course in 58:02, leading C. Sherman, a clubmate, by more than 150 yards.

Comment on Current Events in Sports.

Another Chance for Boxing.

Undaunted by the failure of the boxing bill which was presented to the State Legislature last Winter, followers of the glove game will launch another campaign this week to have the sport legalized in the State of New York. The bill under consideration differs but slightly in its provisions from those which marked the Gibbs bill of 1919, which was generally regarded as pretty close to the ideal. That effort failed in a rush of eleventh-hour business after being passed by the Senate, but the sponsors of the new bill are satisfied that the Ross bill, to be presented this week, will not be pigeonholed until the Assembly has at least given it careful consideration.

Boxing has been carried on under State supervision in New Jersey and under local restrictions in Pennsylvania and Connecticut without encountering any scandal extensive enough to cause a general demand for a change. The same can be accomplished here if care is exercised in the appointment of commissioners to supervise the activities of the promoters and boxers. The game in itself is sound enough to gain Government sanction in army circles, and the worst that can be said about boxing in New York in other years is that it was unfortunate in its associations, and sometimes in its control.

Few tears were shed when the old boxing law was repealed, as the public had become disgusted with numerous actions of unscrupulous persons connected with the sport. At the same time, there was a general feeling among those interested in boxing that poor judgment had been exercised in the choice of a board to supervise the game. That mistake might have been rectified without obliterating the game itself, which was not the cause of the sorry condition of affairs.

At any rate, the lesson has been taught to the promoter and the boxer, and improved conditions may be expected if the Ross bill becomes a law. The State will realize a considerable revenue from the sport, as the new bill provides for a tax of 10 per cent. Ten-round bouts are long enough, the decision feature will tend to obviate stalling by participants and the restrictions in regard to clubs and boxers are all that could be asked. There is no dearth of capable candidates for the three commissionerships, and care in selecting the triumvirate would go far to make boxing in New York a success.

Tad Jones and Yale.

Yale's football hopes have been administered a most effective stimulant. When, last week, Tad Jones formally accepted the invitation to return to New Haven next Fall and assume supreme command of the gridiron forces, a weighty load was lifted from the minds of student and alumnus alike. Ever since the Bulldog was steeped in defeat last Autumn—trampled upon by both Princeton and Harvard in its two most important games—Jones has been looked upon as the man to wield the magic wand that would rehabilitate Yale on the football map. And, as in 1916, he has decided to answer the call of the university at which he became famous as a player.

With Jones as pilot of the destinies of the Yale eleven, it is a foregone conclusion that the Blue will be taught a wealth of progressive football. Its team next Fall should be well coached, not only in the fundamentals of the game, but in the intricacies and technique of modern formations and evolutions. Yale was in a similar position four years ago when Jones rushed to the rescue. He took command of a squad which generated little promise in the hearts of the Blue's partisans, but he whipped it into shape, taught it football and was blessed with sufficiently good material to enable the team to go forth and defeat both Princeton and Harvard. It was a signal triumph for Jones's methods.

In taking hold of the reins at New Haven. Jones's success will be measured in no meagre degree by the material he has to work with. Assuming that it will be at least fair, it is reasonable also to assume that it will not be lacking in football knowledge. When coaching at Syracuse in 1909 and 1910, and later at Pawling School, and still later at Exeter Academy, and then at Yale, Jones showed that he not only knows football and is able to keep abreast of the progress in play, but that he has the happy faculty of being able to transmit his knowledge to his charges. Further, he will be accorded the whole-hearted support of undergraduates and alumni in his efforts, which is an item that is not to be weighed too lightly.

International Golf.

A bridge is to be established across the Atlantic this Summer, not of steel and concrete, but of golfers from Britain and America who are planning a veritable procession, first one way and then the other, in search of one another's titles. There have been seasons with an international flavor to the golfing in this country, but nothing like what is assured for 1920. From English shores such amateurs as Harold Hilton; such pros as Harry Vardon, Edward Ray and J. H. Taylor, and such women as Mrs. G. M. Martin, Miss G. Ravenscroft and Mrs. W. A. Gavin have journeyed hitherward for titles. In exchange, Walter J. Travis, Jerry Travers and others have gone from this side to capture British amateur championships.

It remains to be seen if the American invaders can balance the scoreboard this season. Certainly, an imposing array of talent is already packing for the trip across. Four of the leading pros of the United States have announced their intentions of entering for the British open, chief of whom are Walter C. Hagen and his ever lively rival, Jim Barnes. Last week Jock Hutchinson, invariably a money winner at open tournaments, joined the clan, and the Southland will be represented by J. Douglas Edgar, who celebrated his first season in America last year by winning the Canadian open with the record low total of 279 strokes.

Abe Mitchell and George Duncan, two of the greatest British pros, are to embark immediately after their big event for a wallop at the U. S. open, and now comes the news that Harry Vardon, who won our open title in 1900 but who lost to Ouimet in 1913, is also coming. He recently wrote his old schoolboy chum, Phil Gauden, now of Skokie, Ill., that he had abandoned plans for a trip to South Africa and Australia to make a voyage to the United States.

In the amateur ranks only Bobby Jones, runner-up last year, has given voice to any definite intention of going abroad. He expects to get under the wing of his friend, Edgar of Atlanta, and to be coached for a chance at the British amateur. Davie Herron is being urged, but has made no statement. The American women will be represented by their best performer, Miss Alexa Stirling. The champion plans a trip to the homeland of her ancestors, Scotland, and hopes to enter the British Ladies' tournament for a try at Miss Leitch's honors.

To Boom Timber-Topping Sport.

Racing enthusiasts who are particularly interested in the welfare of steeplechasing are expecting this branch of sport to enjoy a decided boom next season among both amateurs and professionals. They have been especially encouraged by the fact that a definite step toward such needed improvement has been taken with the appointment by A. Henry Higginson, Chairman of the Hunts Committee, of a committee to make plans for the coming season. This committee has been instructed to consider among other things better courses and larger purses.

As far as the professional side of this sport is concerned, however, much depends on the co-operation of the various racing associations which have steeplechase courses. Steeplechasing fell off badly during the years of the war, owing to the fact that many owners withdrew from the sport temporarily. As a result the courses were not kept up as in former years, purses became smaller and there was not much left to encourage racing men to maintain jumpers.

The men and women who own jumpers are already doing what they can to revive the sport. There will be more horses available for the cross-country events this year than in several years, as the result of the activities of owners last year. There will also be enough riders for the professional racing. What is chiefly needed now is some assistance from the racing associations which control Belmont Park, Aqueduct and Saratoga, to improve the courses, provide suitable training courses and facilities and encourage the steeplechase enthusiasts with more generous purses. It is part of the duty of the committee to confer with these associations, and there seems no reason to doubt that the associations will lend the necessary aid.

Therefore, the coming season should see some good cross-country racing, but the future of the sport seems to depend more upon the activities of the amateurs. As was pointed out by one of the speakers at the meeting in the Commodore Hotel last week, the amateur association must seek to interest the farmers again in steeplechasing to the end that there shall be a revival in the breeding of thoroughbreds for this kind of sport and a consequent development of gentlemen riders. It is the community interest in the farming section that the amateur organizations must depend upon, and in turn the professionals must depend to some extent on the amateurs for replenishment of their ranks.

Most men are apt to think that if a fabric's all-wool, that's all there is to it. When, as a matter of fact, there are a lot of all-wool fabrics that are a heap worse than cotton mixtures.

First, there's the wool itself—mustn't be too wiry or harsh.

Then there's the weave. If too loosely woven, the fabric's sleazey. And so on.

Just as important to know how woolens are constructed as to know they're all-wool.

The best of everything men and boys wear. Also Sporting Goods and luggage.

MET. SKATING TITLE CAPTURED BY BOYD

WINS MILE AND HALF MILE

Victories by Narrow Margins Carry Total of 10 Points—Murphy and Schmidt Tied for Runner-Up.

Leslie Boyd, an 18-year-old skater of the Tremont Skating Club, carried off the Metropolitan ice skating championship title yesterday morning in the series of races conducted on the outdoor ice at the Tremont Skating Rink, the Bronx. The youngster, taking premier laurels in both the half-mile and mile titular races, compiled the winning total of ten points, leading his rivals for the championship, which was decided on a point basis.

William Murphy of the 181st Street Ice Palace and Charles Schmidt of the Peerless Skating Club, Fort Lee, N. J., finished the series of four races deadlocked for runner-up position. Each skater earned six points for his efforts. George Pickering of the Verona Lake Skating Club finished fourth, with five markers; Donald S. Baker, the Brooklyn Ice Palace star, was fifth with four, and Bobby Hearn, 181st Street Ice Palace, and Joe Miller, New York A. C. crack, took up the tail end of the standing, tied for sixth position, with three points each.

The races, comprising one of the most extensive events ever conducted on a local rink, attracted a crowd of about 500 spectators, who braved the penetrating cold of the early morning to witness the title contenders in action. In all events, even the trio of open races which were added to the program, interesting competition and keen finishes were provided.

Boyd's familiarity with the turns on the home track played an important part in his two sensational victories, which gained for him the title of Metropolitan ice skating champion. The Bronx youngster's knowledge of the course, together with his exceptional ability on the shining blades, enabled him to speed past rivals at critical stages of both races and proceed to victory by scant margins. In the half-mile title test Boyd glided past the judges at the finish a matter of about three yards ahead of Bobby Hearn, while in the mile event the Bronx skater's margin of victory was approximately the same.

Boyd followed the pace in both races until the skaters were rounding the last turn into the homestretch, when he suddenly shot out like a bolt and flashed his glistening heels to opponents.

OUTCASTS DEFEAT OAKS.

Gain Ground in Indoor Polo Tourney by 7½ to 5½ Victory.

The Oaks indoor polo trio dropped into second place in the January tournament at Durland's Riding Academy as a result of its defeat yesterday by the Outcasts. The latter team, overcoming a handicap of three goals, triumphed over the Oaks by a margin of 7½ goals to 5½. This setback interrupted the Oaks' winning career and threw the team out of a tie for first place with the White Owls, who are now heading the list with two victories. The Oaks have scored two victories and suffered one defeat. The Outcasts have one victory and a reverse and are holding third position. The Foxhunters with one defeat are fourth, and the Bluebirds, with two setbacks, are fifth.

A brilliant rally in the second period, in which Murray Wilder, the Outcasts' back, scored three spectacular goals, enabled the Outcasts to emerge victorious after one of the closest games of the tournament. Through the first period the Oaks, with a sustained offensive and clever defensive play, held the upper hand and at the whistle were leading by 5¼ to 2½ goals. J. Henley, No. 2 for the Oaks, scored a brace of goals, but was penalized a half point for foul. For the Outcasts F. Gilman registered twice, but suffered a penalty similar to Henley's.

The superb defense of the Oaks crumbled in the face of the Outcasts' concentrated attack in the second period, and gradually the high handicap trio gained the lead and maintained the upper hand to the end.

The lineup:

OUTCASTS (7½).	OAKS (5½).
1—M. Karminsky.	1—William Loeb.
2—F. Gilman.	2—J. Henley.
Back—M. Wilder.	Back—Dr. Biers.

Handicaps—Outcasts, 9 goals; Oaks, 6. Goals—First period: Karminsky, Gilman (2), Loeb, Henley (2). Second period: Karminsky, Gilman, Wilder (3). Penalties—First period: Gilman, ½ goal for foul; Henley, ½ goal for foul.

SCHWED WINS AT TRAPS.

Makes High Scratch Score in Shoot of Inwood Country Club.

Fred Schwed was the principal winner over the traps of the Inwood Country Club yesterday. The day was cold and the wind was high, making good shooting difficult. Schwed won the high scratch prize, with a card of 39 out of a possible 50 targets. He also scored on the Monthly and the Inwood trophies. Had it been possible, he would also have won the high handicap prize, and he was the only gunner with a full score of 50 targets. However, this event ended in a tie between S. Well and F. Weralt, both of whom had totals of 43 targets. The shoot-off went to the former gunner.

The scores:

O'NEIL IS HIGH GUNNER.

Leads N. Y. A. C. Marksmen at Travers Island with Score of 94.

Banging away at clay pigeons with the mercury almost touching the zero mark was the sport offered to the members of the New York Athletic Club yesterday. It was the coldest day of the season on the firing line at Travers Island. Regardless of the conditions, twenty-five gunners managed to break enough bluerocks to call it a good day's work.

J. O'Neil was the high scratch gunner of the day. He took the shoot with a card of 94 out of a possible 100 targets. He was also the only gunner to score a leg on the Buermeyer Cup, a weekly scratch shoot at 50 targets. His score was 48. The high handicap gunner was A. Rowland. R. L. Spotts won a scratch special and a handicap special was taken by R. B. Cole.

TAMMANY TO FIGHT EVIL OF BOLSHEVISM

Campaign to Preserve Constitutional Liberties and to Disclose Red Peril is Planned.

ADDRESSES TO BE MADE

Pulpit Will Be Asked to Co-operate —Two More Radicals Released and More to Follow.

A campaign to promote and preserve Constitutional liberties and to disclose the danger of Bolshevist doctrine will be undertaken by the Society of Tammany, according to an announcement made yesterday by John R. Voorhis, Grand Sachem of the Hall. The decision to begin a campaign was reached at a recent meeting, and a committee appointed to formulate a plan will report at the society's next gathering.

"The committee's plans," disclosed the statement, "provide in the first place for an appeal to every appropriate agency for co-operation and assistance. All the other patriotic societies will be communicated with and urged to join in the meetings of the society or to follow its example and hold meetings and put forth efforts of their own. Educational institutions, public, private, and parochial, will be approached and arrangements made for addresses to the public, many and often, on the burning questions of the day—the efforts of aliens in heart, and mind, and thought, to undermine and destroy our Government. Speakers will be furnished for this and all similar work.

"The pulpits of all sects and denominations will be requested to take their stand with the forces ranged on the side of law and order, of decency, of righteousness, of security and against the forces of murder, arson and pillage. Posters and advertising devices will also be resorted to for proclaiming the truth on these vital subjects.

"It seems to be necessary to show to some who are misguided and misled, though perhaps in occasional instances well meaning and with praiseworthy ambitious, that such a thing as the so-called Soviet Government in Russia can find no excuse or pretext for existence in this land of plenty, this land of opportunity. It is apparently a fitting time to call the attention of the visionary and chimerical dupes of the emissaries of false promise to the cold fact that Russia, under Soviet rule, is more brutally and cruelly oppressed than ever it was in the worst days of the autocratic Czars, while famine and destitution add their horrors to the woes of a sorely stricken people."

Two more names were added yesterday to the list of radicals released on bail from Ellis Island. The men released were Fred Uhlic, address unknown, and Abraham Serebieny of 1,242 New York Avenue, Brooklyn, whose wife and two young children were reported to be ill.

Beginning today, a regular "budget" of thirty names will be submitted to the Ellis Island officials until all of the radicals have been bailed out. This plan was evolved by Charles Recht and Rose Weiss, attorneys at 47 West Forty-second Street, representing 451 of the 515 cases on the island. Thirty cases is the greatest number the island's clerical staff can handle a day, and each morning the attorneys will journey there with $30,000 in cash and Liberty bonds.

"It is the common belief among the alleged Reds," said Miss Weiss, "that few, if any, will be called for deportation hearing. Most of them expect that the cases against them will be dropped. The alleged Reds were taken in wholesale arrests by the Department of Justice agents, who believed that the immigration officials of the Department of Labor would be able to supply the evidence necessary to deport them. These cases are totally different from those who were sent out on the transport Buford. It will be found that few of the men now on the island have any idea of the meaning of the Communist Party platform."

OLIVE SHIPMENT SEIZED.

Test Being Made for Poison That Caused Six Deaths.

Health Commissioner Copeland announced yesterday that since the death of the sixth victim Saturday of olive poisoning there had been no further developments. He predicted that there would be no more fatalities from the eating of olives of this particular shipment.

The Health Department, he said, had discovered eighteen cases of this shipment and had taken charge of them. Cultures of the fruit are being taken to ascertain if they contain any of the poison that caused the death of the six persons.

It was said last night at St. Mary's Hospital, 405 West Thirty-fourth Street, that the condition of Joseph Delbene, 8 years old, one of the family of eight poisoned by olives, was favorable. The serum sent to the hospital from Fordham Hospital had been injected into the boy last night.

Dr. Copeland Favors Loop.

Dr. Royal S. Copeland, Health Commissioner, has advised the Thirty-Fourth Street Board of Trade that he considers its proposition for a subway loop around the theatrical, shopping, hotel and railroad district of New York necessary to the public health.

"The present congested condition is a matter of great concern to the Health Commissioner in times of epidemic," Dr. Copeland said. "It is needless to say that personal and intimate contact is responsible for the dissemination of communicable diseases."

DELAY STRIKE IN HOTELS.

Stationary Engineers and Firemen's Board to Confer with Proprietors.

H. B. Montefering, Chairman of the Joint Committee of International Stationary Engineers and Firemen, said last night that the committee at a meeting yesterday afternoon had decided to postpone the strike of the engineers, firemen, oilers and helpers, so far as the hotels are concerned, until after a conference with a committee of the Hotel Men's Association requested for this afternoon. The union officials had originally set 8 o'clock this morning as the time of the strike where their demands had not been met.

According to Mr. Montefering some sixty apartment house and office building owners yesterday agreed to comply with the demands, and as about 50 per cent. of those involved in the controversy are employed in hotels only about 1,000 or 1,500 men would strike if it goes into effect in the office buildings and apartment houses, as planned.

The men ask for a 30 per cent. increase in wages, a six-day week, an eight-hour day and recognition of the union. Those involved in the strike have not previously been organized.

COUNCIL AWAITS JUGOSLAVS' REPLY

AN INSULT FROM D'ANNUNZIO

PARIS, Jan. 18.—Premier Clemenceau will attend Monday's meeting of the Supreme Council of the Peace Conference and will help draw up a definite list of German officers and soldiers demanded by the Allies for trial on charges of violating the laws of war. Premiers Lloyd George of Great Britain, Nitti of Italy, and Hugh C. Wallace, and Baron Matsui, respectively American and Japanese Ambassadors to France, will be present at the session.

If, by that time, the Jugoslav Government has replied favorably to the virtual ultimatum sent to Belgrade by the Council, relative to the Adriatic question, it will be acted upon. If the Jugoslavs refuse to meet the Council's demands, M. Clemenceau will leave the matter to be settled by his successor. It is improbable that the Premier will take any part in decisions regarding the future form of the Council, and its replacement by an ambassadorial conference, as his action would bind the man who assumes his duties in the French Government.

Toward the end of Saturday afternoon, after the Presidential elections, little green papers fluttered down on Paris from the air. They contained a message from Gabriele d'Annunzio, the Italian insurgent leader at Fiume, brought by Lieutenant Carminiani of the poet's air squadron. The Lieutenant left Fiume at 7:30 o'clock in the morning, accomplishing the flight by way of Venice, Turin, Chembéry, Lyons, and Dijon. He crossed the Alps at a height of 4,000 meters.

The message was a greeting to the Latin brothers of the Italians at a moment when "the outworn politicians are trying to raise against young France a headstrong old chief who does not appreciate and wounds the freshest forces of the new life. If the injustice against Italian Fiume and the Italian towns of Dalmatia is consummated a combat 's inevitable and blood must be shed."

Questions regarding the future representation of France at the Peace Conference are brought up by the retirement of M. Clemenceau. He is not only head of the French delegation, but President of the Conference, and three French plenipotentiaries, Stephen Pichon, Capt. André Tardieu and Louis Klotz, are members of the Clemenceau Cabinet and will retire with him. The fifth member of the French delegation, Jules Cambon, is not in the Cabinet. M. Clemenceau will assure continuity of diplomatic negotiations until a new Ministry is formed, when he will resign as plenipotentiary.

Mr. Lloyd George and Signor Nitti will return to their capitals after Monday's meeting to await the formation of a new French Cabinet before resuming consideration of pending problems. Notable in the list is the question of the future status of Turkey.

In his speech from the throne at the opening of the Turkish Parliament last Monday the Sultan referred to "Turkey's mistake in entering the war on the Teutonic side," according to reports of the speech just received here from Constantinople. The speech, read by the Minister of the Interior because of the indisposition of the Sultan, dwelt at length on the fact that while the armistice had been in effect for fourteen months, the forces of the Allies still occupied certain parts of the Empire.

Greek occupation of Smyrna, the Sultan said, increased the difficulties, but he added:

"It is unnecessary at this time to explain the gravity of our situation. Prudence, clear-sightedness, firmness and patriotism ought to lead us to safety and success. Justice is the foundation on which all human society rests."

Reports that the Brazilian Ambassador at the first meeting of the League of Nations had demanded that his country be represented on the commission to fix the boundaries of the Sarre Valley region, printed in Paris newspapers Saturday, are categorically denied by the Brazilian Embassy. It was reported that Brazil's demand was rejected, while Japan "asserted her rights and prevailed." The Embassy says Brazil was invited to name a representative on the commission, but "deemed it a duty to refuse an honor it had not sought."

According to the Paris edition of The New York Herald, President Wilson asked for a delay by the League of Nations in the matter concerning the Sarre Valley until the United States had appointed delegates to the League, but nevertheless the Sarre Commission was appointed without reference to the United States.

Belgrade Predicts Dalmatian Riots.

"According to advices from Buccari (five miles east of Fiume), representatives of the town of Fiume yesterday held a meeting and adopted a resolution recommending that d'Annunzio leave Fiume as soon as possible.

"Intelligence from Spalato reports on good authority that Arditi and volunteers at Zara are preparing to fire the town at the last moment should it be given up to Jugoslavia. The arrival of an Italian warship is expected, and the Italians are preparing to resist at all costs whenever our troops arrive."

ROME, Jan. 18.—The convocation of the Senate has been postponed from Jan. 20 to Jan. 26 in order to await the return of Premier Nitti from Paris. Reports that the compromise on the Adriatic situation does not include Italian sovereignty over the territory is causing disappointment. The Giornale d'Italia says it cannot believe this to be true and asks why Italy should yield on Dalmatia without getting Fiume.

The Idea Nazionale says it trusts that any arrangement concerning Fiume will not prejudice other important questions of an international character, while the Tribuna expresses the hope that Italy may at least enjoy the benefits of peace.

Influenza Scourges Poland Striking Hundreds Dead Daily

PARIS, Jan. 18.—Influenza, in a form so virulent as to baffle the medical authorities, is sweeping through Poland, according to American Red Cross reports. The disease is marked by the suddenness of attack and the high percentage of fatalities. Hundreds of persons are dying daily in Warsaw, the reports show, while three-fourths of the hospital attendants have been stricken.

Red Cross doctors who had experience with influenza epidemics in the United States and France say they are amazed at the almost instant infection upon exposure and the quick development of the disease. Death in many cases occurs within twenty-four hours. Women and young people appear to be particularly susceptible.

There is almost a constant succession of funerals at Warsaw, many of them being held at night, the pall-bearers carrying torches, in accordance with the Polish custom.

This is the third influenza epidemic Poland has suffered.

ARCHBISHOP SPURNS INVITATION OF DRYS

Hayes Calls It Extraordinary That Prohibition Should Be Put Above Other Laws.

Tells Anderson Obedience Is the Very Breath of Catholic Church Discipline.

Patrick J. Hayes, Catholic Archbishop of New York, will not attend the meeting of clergymen of New York and vicinity to be held today under the auspices of the Anti-Saloon League in the Metropolitan Life Insurance Building. In a reply to the invitation sent to him by William H. Anderson, State Superintendent of the league, Archbishop Hayes said it was "extraordinary that the Federal prohibition amendment should be singled out for particular attention above other statutes equally binding."

Here is the letter of Archbishop Hayes:

Dear Sir: In reply to your communication of Jan. 5, asking me to be present, or be represented, at a meeting of the clergy of New York City and vicinity, under the auspices of the Anti-Saloon League, I wish to say that I cannot see my way to accept your invitation.

Permit me to assure you that the Catholic Church awaits no such occasion to lay stress on the plain duty of obeying the law of the land. Obedience to authority in Church and State is the very breath of Catholic discipline.

It is extraordinary that the Federal Prohibition Amendment should be singled out for particular attention above other statutes equally binding. The American people can be trusted to obey every constitutional law.

I think that the function of the churches is to teach the virtue of obedience and then leave the enforcement of law to the properly constituted agencies of Government.

Respectfully,

PATRICK J. HAYES,
Archbishop of New York.

Mr. Anderson declined to make any comment on the letter yesterday but said he would read it at the meeting and would "have something to say afterwards."

Among the speakers expected at the meeting are John F. Kramer, Federal Prohibition Commissioner; Charles O'Connor, State Prohibition Commissioner, and Rabbi Stephen S. Wise.

Lawyers associated with the brewing interests yesterday took exception to the reports that even "near beer" would come under the ban after Jan. 31, because no provision has been made by the State Excise Department to grant licenses for the sale of beverages containing less than one-half of one per cent. of alcohol.

It was pointed out that not only in certain "dry" sections of New York State but in Southern prohibition States as well, no Federal taxes and no State taxes have been imposed on the manufacture and sale of beer containing less than one-half of one per cent. of alcohol.

An apparent conflict in the liquor tax law of the State was pointed out. While under "Definitions" it was held that liquor included "all distilled or rectified spirits and wine, fermented or malt liquors," under the section concerning "trafficking in liquor" it is indicated that liquor was meant to describe beverages that contained one-half of 1 per cent. of alcohol or more.

For many years the Federal Government has taxed the manufacture or sale of any beverage containing one-half of 1 per cent. of alcohol or moreThe State Excise law, it was said, under "trafficking in liquor," referred specifically to liquors subject to Federal tax.

Clergymen in some city churches preached on prohibition yesterday. At the Throop Avenue Presbyterian Church, Brooklyn, the Rev. William Carter said it was no longer a question of prohibition but of law, order, and the upholding of the Constitution. "If any one says now to me, 'I do not believe in prohibition!' I ask them just one question: 'Do you believe in the Constitution?' We have been insisting that radicals and aliens shall not trample on the Constitution but obey it! God forbid that we shall have to insist on loyal Americans doing the same thing!"

A man who said he was Edward Foy of 163 Bleecker Street, Brooklyn, drank a generous portion of ginger with his coffee in a Brooklyn restaurant yesterday and then informed the police that he owned the Woolworth Building. In the Flatbush court Magistrate McCluskey decided that Foy had been sufficiently punished by the ginger and permitted him to go on a suspended sentence.

MARSHALL WOULD OUST NATURALIZED REDS

Vice President Declares That They Can Be Deported Under Present Laws.

DAYTONA, Fla., Jan. 18.—Expulsion of foreign-born agitators, including naturalized aliens, adoption of the English language throughout the nation, and more religion among the people of the United States, were advocated by Vice President Marshall today in an address at the dedication of the Peabody Auditorium at Daytona Beach. Naturalized aliens, he asserted, could be deported under existing laws.

"When such a man took the oath of naturalization," said Mr. Marshall, "he swore to uphold the institutions of our Government. If he does not do this he swore to a lie, and we ought to take away his papers and deport him, and I believe there's enough law in the country to do it."

BABY BORN AS FIRE RAGED IN HER HOME

THREE BLAZES IN THE BRONX

McKinley Square Casino Destroyed, with Loss of $100,000 — Hot Coffee for Firemen in Cold.

Three brisk fires in the Bronx yesterday gave the firemen a bitter day's work in the cold, drove many fimilies shivering to the streets, and resulted in the complete destruction of one of the borough's social landmarks, the McKinley Square Casino at 169th Street and Boston Road, formerly the Crotona Casino. During one of the fires a girl baby was born while its father and the firemen united in a winning battle to keep the flames in abeyance.

Apparatus and men responding to three alarms were needed to confine the Casino blaze, the largest of the three fires, within the building, and even then the blaze was not conquered until the walls had tumbled in and nothing remained of the two-story brick structure but smoking ruins.

Two firemen were hurt in the course of the fight, George Stewart of Engine Company 45 having his foot crushed by a piece of falling cornice stone, and Stephen Van Austin, driver for the same company, getting minor injuries when he was caught in a shower of bricks. Stewart was taken to Lincoln Hospital, and Van Austin was removed to his quarters after treatment.

When the fire threatened to spread to the adjoining apartment house at 771 East 169th Street it was discovered that three of its occupants were suffering with influenza. Lest they be driven into the cold, imperilling their lives, they were hurried to Lincoln Hospital. They were Anna and Lillian Larkin, sisters, and 6-year-old Ruth Hotz, whose mother, Mrs. Maude Hotz, required treatment for shock due to the excitement incident to her daughter's removal.

The fire started on the top floor just before 8 o'clock and not long after an affair of the Tiora Social Club had come to a belated end. While its origin remained in doubt, the usual theory that some one had been careless with a cigarette or cigar was evolved.

Albert Furst, lessee of the building, estimated the damage at $100,000. Other tenants made homeless were the Bronx First Synagogue, Auerbach's Dancing Academy and the Shirtwaist Makers' Union, who shared the building.

One of its effects will be the sudden necessity thrust upon the five Socialists suspended from the Legislature of finding another forum, as they were to have told their side of the controversy with the Assembly in the Casino tonight.

The feature of the second fire, which occurred in the afternoon in the haberdashery of Geller & Cohen, on the ground floor of the five-story apartment house at 855 East Tremont Avenue, was the birth of a baby girl on the third floor while the firemen downstairs fought to subdue the flames and the mother's husband, Raphael Jaret, stood guard at the threshold of his home with a bucket of water.

When the apparatus brought by a second alarm arrived, Dr. Archier, a Fire Department surgeon, learned of what was toward on the third floor and, after a whispered word to spur the men to extra effort, hurried there to assist a physician already in attendance. The plucky mother kept her nerve, despite the clatter and clang and the smoke that drifted into the apartment, and the six-pound youngster arrived in as excellent condition as though no unusual circumstances had attended its advent.

The building was so threatened for a time that all other tenants were ordered to the street, and Charities Commissioner James A. Hamilton, who chanced to be in the rooms of the Democratic County Committee, directly across the avenue, threw them open to the homeless ones, and sent word to a number of women, who rallied to their aid until relatives and friends had appeared to care for them.

The simultaneous shattering of all the windows when fire started last night in the drug store of Samuel Rosenzweig on the ground floor of the five-story apartment at the corner of Freeman Street and Vyse Avenue gave rise to a theory that it was of explosive origin, but this remained in doubt after the store had been burned out. There was intense excitement when the blaze spread quickly to the second and third floors, cutting off the stairways and forcing the tenants to use the fire escapes. All got out without injury. The fire did damage estimated at $10,000.

During all three of the fires and in the course of two minor ones which added to the day's hardships, neighbors were quick to come to the comfort of the firemen with hot coffee and sandwiches and (it was whispered) an occasional drop of such beverages as it is not unlawful to give to a friend in need.

FIRE ROUTS 200 FAMILIES.

Four alarms rang into Fire Headquarters in quick succession at 12:30 o'clock this morning and fire-fighting apparatus froma wide area hurried to Lexington Avenue and West 116th Street where fire was sweeping through the two-story Bernheimer Building, at 107-111 West 116th Street.

Deputy Chief "Smoky Joe" Martin, one of the first to get to the fire, ordered about 200 families hustled out of three big apartment houses at the rear of the Bernheimer Building. He also directed that reinforcements be hurriedly concentrated to check the flames bearing down on the branch of the Chatham and Phenix National Bank located in one of the dozen small stores in the ground floor of the building.

By the time the first of the firemen arrived the fire, fanned by a strong east wind, had gained considerable headway

With the blaze gaining headway in the west side of the building, firemen confined their energies to preventing a spread to the branch bank. The constantly growing crowd in the surrounding streets necessitated a call for police protection from three precincts. About 500 persons living in the apartments, which, for a time were threatened, took refuge in make-shift attire in neighboring buildings. Chief Martin, fearing that the wall of the building on the 116th Street side might fall, kept his men on the roof on the east side of the structure.

Severest Snowstorm in Years Blocks Roads.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Jan. 18.—The severest blizzard in years has prevailed in Central and Northern New York during the last forty-eight hours, demoralizing railway and trolley traffic, blocking country roads with huge drifts and causing much suffering.

COMMUTE PENALTY FOR EISNER MURDER

SAYS HE LOVES MONARCHY

BERNE, Jan. 18.—The sentence of death pronounced Friday upon Count Arco Valley for the assassination of Kurt Eisner, the Bavarian Premier, at Munich in February, 1919, has been commuted to life imprisonment, according to advices received today. The commutation of the sentence of the young student was ordered by unanimous vote of the Bavarian Cabinet.

"I hate Bolshevism. I love my Bavarians and hate the Jews. I am a faithful monarchist and a good Catholic. Above all, I respect and honor Bavaria. Therefore, long live the monarchy, long live Rupprecht!"

When the death sentence was imposed the Count was calm. He warned his friends who proposed to liberate him to desist from the attempt, which he branded as a piece of stupidity. He advised them to work for the building up of the fatherland. The Count's remarks provoked a storm of applause, which the court did not attempt to halt.

VIENNA DESPONDENT AS STREET CARS STOP

VIENNA, Jan. 18.—Vienna is in the throes of deepest exasperation, caused by the catastrophe in the development of the coal situation.

Beginning on last Friday the street cars were ordered stopped for an indefinite period, and likewise the theatres and concert halls were closed. The supply of gas and electric power and light still compels offices to remain closed, the light having been turned off. This state of affairs is now made still worse by the devaluation of the Austrian crown, which tonight is officially quoted at two hundred and fifty crowns for one dollar.

Austria's economic situation will become hopeless if speedy relief is not forthcoming. It is feared that economic misery may produce serious political developments.

BLACK FLAGS EXPRESS MAGYAR VIEW OF PEACE

One Budapest Paper Calls the Treaty 'Annihilating'; Another Says It Means Ruin.

BUDAPEST, Jan. 17.—Commenting on the terms of the Peace Treaty recently handed to the Hungarian Delegation in Paris, the Nemzetiujsag says: "The treaty condemns us to ruin. Young and old should swear, 'No, never.'" The Pesti Hirlap says: "It is an injustice which cries to heaven that of all the participants in the war, Hungary, the nation which contributed the least to bringing about the conflict, should be the most severely punished." The Pester Lloyd terms the treaty, "annihilating."

The Vilag says: "This treaty will fall to the ground, even if Paris does not acquire a better insight and Hungary does nothing but wait."

REDS REACH VIBORG; BORDER FIRE HALTS

DEATH THREAT RUMORED

Finland Furnishes All the Guard Necessary, and the Buford Prepares to Return Home.

VIBORG, Finland, Jan. 18 (Associated Press).—The Goldman-Berkman special train was sidetracked here today to await the British Prisoners' Relief Mission, which will cross the Russian frontier at the same time that the deported "Reds" from the United States make the trip. It is expected that all of them will proceed to Terijoki tomorrow.

It is reported from the front that the Bolsheviki have not fired a shot in twenty-four hours, indicating that orders have been received by them to suspend hostilities until the deported persons enter Russian territory.

The American Consular representatives decided not to go to the frontier and left the train yesterday. The correspondent of The Associated Press and another newspaper man are the only Americans on the train.

Having reached within a short distance of the Russian border, the deportees were confined to crowded cars today, where they whiled away the time singing revolutionary songs and hymns. Before crossing the line they will be handed the wireless messages addressed to them on the Buford.

One sent to Ethel Bernstein from New York under date of Dec. 21 and signed by Samuel Lipman, whose wife she is and who is under sentence of twenty years' imprisonment for violation of the Espionage Act, reads:

"I am going to the penitentiary at Atlanta for twenty years for my opinion on Russian intervention. You are being deported to Russia for yours. Though time and distance separate us my love goes out to you over the waves. The human heart of the world may yet demand that we be united by my deportation to Soviet Russia. Love to all comrades on board."

HANGO, Finland, Jan. 18 (Associated Press).—The special train carrying to the border of Soviet Russia Emma Goldman, Alexander Berkman, and 247 other radicals, deported from the United States as undesirable aliens, is speeding toward Terijoki, about two miles from the frontier. Finnish White Guards are stationed on each car platform. Thirty of the radicals are in each car.

The train having aboard the Bolsheviki and anarchists was held here last evening until positive assurance was received from the Soviets that they would permit them to cross the Russian border and that the Reds would not be molested. Grave rumors had come from the border that Berkman and Goldman and their comrades would be killed by the Russians, and while there was apparently no authority to confirm this threat, it was deemed advisable to take all precautions.

"The undesirables" disembarked yesterday afternoon from the Buford and were placed in box cars fitted up with plank benches, tables and beds. Each car contained seven boxes of army rations. The supplies include bully-beef, sugar and hard bread.

Emma Goldman conversed with the correspondent for a few minutes before she trudged down the long path to the train carrying part of her own baggage. She said:

"Naturally my emotions are conflicting. I am anxious about what is ahead in Russia, but I am leaving very much behind in America."

She suddenly amazed the correspondent by throwing her arms around his neck and giving him a resounding kiss before he could struggle away. Then she picked up her belongings and moved wearily in the direction of the train.

Details of trouble with the Reds while crossing have been disclosed since the vessel arrived at Hango, but the trouble was not of serious import. One grumbler put in a bill for $48 for alleged night work, demanding payment before leaving the ship.

Storms delayed the Buford's departure this morning.

Two representatives of the American Consulate at Helsingfors, who came to Hango to execute powers of attorney for 150 members of the party, are accompanying the train to the frontier. It is estimated that the members of the party have $250,000 on deposit in American banks. The powers of attorney, however, provide for the disposition of only $47,000.

ALL TROLLEYS STOP ON STATEN ISLAND

SAY IT WILL NOT RUN TODAY

Officials Uncertain for a Time After Process Servers Had Reached Superintendent.

Cars on the Midland City Railway Company, on Staten Island, stopped running at 1:15 this morning, despite a Supreme Court order served upon a representative of the company earlier in the evening, restraining the officials of the company from ceasing operation of the lines pending the hearing tomorrow on the application of the city for the appointment of a receiver for the company.

The order was served upon Harry J. Blackam, Transit Superintendent. The threatened suspension of service did not take place at midnight as the Company had notified the public, and Staten Island patrons believed that the order had precluded all possibility of such action. Later Mr. Blackam communicated with official of the company and immediately afterward the order to stop the cars was given.

As each care came into the terminal at St. George this morning, the conductor and motorman were ordered to take it to the barn and quit work.

Fifteen policemen were assigned to ride on the buses brought from New York to relieve the situation for the fifteen thousand or more persons who have been using the trolley cars. Deputy Commissioner William Mills, of the Department of Plant and Structure, will supervise the bus lines.

The restraining order was issued Saturday night and early yesterday a band of process servers descended upon the residence of the Vice President and General Manager, R. L. Rand, at 117 Central Avenue, St. George, and camped about the place in an endeavor to serve the order on him. Mr. Rand kept indoors all day and denied himself to callers. At 11 o'clock last night the court emissaries shifted to Superintendent Blackam's house and served the order on him without any difficulty.

For a time, though, Blackam hesitated about obeying the order against the commands of his superiors, and he tried to consult Mr. Rand and the company's counsel, Bertram Eadie, but neither could be reached by him and he finally decided the safest course was to order the cars to keep on running until the usual quitting time of 3:30 in the morning. At that hour he went off duty himself and the important decision of whether cars will carry commuters in the rush hours this morning will be up to General Manager Rand. This official could not be reached late last night to learn his opinion of the effect of the serving of the order on Blackam. It is possible that he may consider the service of no value, as Blackam is not a stockholder nor a director or officer of the company.

When the process men, earlier in the day, tried to serve the restraining order on Rand they found that his home was a veritable castle. They posted themselves about the house and waited, and walked up and down, and blew on their fingers, and waved their arms, and wished there was a place on the corner where something could be got, and never even saw General Manager Rand peeking through the curtains.

Failed to Reach Mr. Rand.

A score of times during the Polar day a process server would ring the doorbell and ask for Mr. Rand, but the maid always looked him straight in the eye and answered:

"He's in Asbury Park."

The newspapermen fared better. They sat around the stove for a while and then called Mr. Rand's house on the telephone and talked with him as long as they wanted to. Saying nothing about Asbury Park over the telephone, he stated the company's position as follows:

"I know nothing whatever about any court order restraining us from closing down the road, and I have certainly not been served with any such order. We shall close at 12.01 Monday morning."

"What will the commuters do?" he was asked.

"I am sorry for them, of course, but we gave them and the city fair warning. I personally have no choice in the matter. This road belongs to the H. H. Rogers Estate and they have instructed me to cease operations and I must obey."

Shortly before 11 o'clock last night the process servers journey to the home of Traffic Superintendent Harry J. Blackam on William Street. He accepted service without demur.

Plan to Run Buses.

Grover Whalen, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, accompanied by Deputy Commissioners Mills and Bowd and Police Inspector William Liebers, spent most of Sunday on Staten Island making a thorough tour of the transit system's territory and planning for the five bus lines which they expected to run. Mr. Whalen said:

"We shall have thirty buses in operation tomorrow and will take care of all the traffic at a uniform rate of 5 cents, regardless of the length of the carry. And we shall cover all the routes that the trolley cars did."

According to most of the citizens of Staten Island interviewed yesterday, the prevailing view of the patrons is that they want the trolley cars back and they are willing now to pay 7 cents for a ride in them. Some of the longest routes are eighteen miles long, too far for a nickel in a motor bus.

MAKE RED SOLDIERS WORK.

Moscow Orders Army in Urals Into Factories, But Will Maintain Discipline.

By ARTHUR E. COPPING.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DORPAT, Jan. 11.—The "demobilization of our Red army has commenced," a Bolshevist General has just eagerly told me. "At least," he added, "we have just learned from Moscow of the interesting innovation that the Revolutional Council for Defense has issued a proclamation announcing that in view of the great victories over the Soviet's enemies, the Third Army of the Russian Republic, now in the Urals, will be temporarily available for local civil work, and will receive the name of the 'first revolutionary army of labor.'"

The management will be in the hards of a new body representing the Army Council, the Upper Council and the industrial organizations of Commissariat of Communicatons.

It seems that chief of the new duties set forth is organized collection and transportation of provisions and provender; next comes factory and railway work, and thirdly building and reconstruction. Fourthly comes farm work with repairing or replacing of agricultural implements.

In this work of improving the economic condition of the country the proclamation point out that the soldiers are to work under local labor bodies and Soviets. Meanwhile Commissars must maintain discipline, and the Communists must by personal example show the way to work, but the organization of the army is to remain intact. Its revolutionary tribunals must, without mercy, punish idlers and robbers. Desertion from labor is considered as bad as desertion from the battlefield.

The number of men involved is approximately 100,000. In the Ural district indicated there are iron and copper mines and steel works.

Jitneys Leave Salem Streets As Police Back Coolidge Order

SALEM, Mass., Jan. 18.—Motor buses which have been competing with street railway traffic again disappeared from the streets here when Deputy Chief George C. Neale of the State Police served notice this afternoon that arrests would follow their further operation.

The banning of the jitneys was by order of Governor Coolidge, who yesterday directed the Public Trustees of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Company to restore traffic on the local division, after sixty hours' suspension because of jitney competition, and for the jitneys to be taken off the streets.

The Governor said that the jitney traffic was illegal.

SINN FEINERS GAIN IN BELFAST COUNCIL

RETURN THANKS IN GAELIC

Belfast City Hall for the First Time Hears Strains of "The Red Flag" Sung by Socialists.

BELFAST, Jan. 18 (Associated Press).—Up to Jan. 15 the Belfast Corporation consisted of fifty-two Unionists and eight Nationalists, but as a result of the elections which ended Saturday, in which the Laborites, Devlinites, and Sinn Feiners skilfully bunched votes, it has thirty-seven Unionists, five Nationalists, five Sinn Feiners, and thirteen Laborites. The politics of the last named party ranges from extreme Socialist to Labor Unionist and Orange.

In the Shankill district, a stronghold of Orangeism, a Socialist topped the poll, and of the remaining seven members one is a Socialist and another a Sinn Feiner. In Victoria, which is a safe Unionist Parliamentary seat, a Nationalist headed the poll and a Sinn Feiner and a Laborite were also elected.

The change was not restricted to the Unionists, as in Joseph Devlin's constituency in the Falls division of Belfast the Constitutional Nationalists polled two seats and a Nationalist has been returned, together with two Sinn Feiners and a Sinn Fein Laborite.

For the first time in history the Belfast City Hall was the scene of a speech in Irish, in which the Sinn Feiner, Mr. Carolan of Shankill, returned thanks for his election. For the first time, also, the City Hall heard the strains of "The Red Flag," which was chorused by exultant Socialists outside.

SINN FEIN CARRIES DUBLIN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUBLIN, Jan. 18.—The elections to fill the eighty seats on the Dublin Corporation resulted in the Sinn Fein carrying 41 seat, Labor 16, Municipal Reform 11, the Nationalists 9, Independents 2, Unionist 1. The distinction between labor and the Sinn Fein is very slight, and it may be assumed that the Republicans will control 5 seats on the new Corporation.

The old corporation was made up 51 Nationalists, 1 Laborites, 7 Sinn Feiners and 6 Unionists. The only Unionist returned is Sir Andrew Beattie, and he was second on the poll to Alderman Tom Kelly, the Sinn Fein candidate, on the first count. The first count gives the number of votes to each candidate whose return the elector wants more than any of the other candidates. On the first preference 1,058 electors voted for Beattie, while only 340 voted for Mrs. Sheehy Skeffington.

In another ward Lawrence O'Neil, the outgoing Lord Mayor and a Nationalist, polled 3,672 first preferences while the total first preferences of Sinn Feiners in this ward were only 2,636. The same thing happened in another ward where Stone, a Nationalist polled 3,180 preferences while the toal of the Sinn Fein candidates was 2,179.

The most interesting contest was in the Mount Joy area where Laurence Sherlock, ex-Lord Mayor, stood as a Nationalist. Sherlock presided at a recruiting meeting in Dublin, which was addressed by John Redmond and Asquith. This, in the eyes of the Sinn Fein was an unpardonable sin, and the ward was flooded with leaflets calling upon the electors to reject "the recruiting agent of a foreign Government now oppressing Ireland." Sherlock got 1,506 first preferences and was returned at the head of the poll on the first count.

The first meeting of the new Dublin Corporation takes place next Friday. It is generally expected it will refuse to take any action which will involve recognition of the British Government in any way, and is likely to make formal recognition of the existence of the 'Irish Republic."

DRESEL'S PRESENCE PERPLEXES BERLIN

BERLIN, Jan. 18 (Associated Press).—The presence in Berlin of an American diplomatic representative, while Germany is not represented in Washington, has created a situation that evidently is perplexing to Wilhelmstrasse. Ellis L. Dresel, commissioner of the United States, arrived here Saturday and is domiciled in the former American Embassy Building.

It is not expected that Mr. Dresel will present his credentials to the Foreign Office. He has the rank of "Government Commissioner," and outside of an unofficial call by an attaché, who is personally acquainted with Mr. Dressel, the Government does not expect for the time being to take cognizance of his presence in Berlin, although The Associated Press is informed that it is pleased to see the United States represented in the re-established diplomatic colony.

In view of the very emphatic statement emanating from Washington to the effect that the armistice conditions are still governing relations between the two countries, the question of a German representative in Washington has not been discussed, even to the extent of hinting at the man likely to be named for the post, to which the Government evidently is attaching great importance.

It is taken for granted that the selection of the German Government will not fall upon a Socialist—that he will be either a well-known Liberal or a man outside of active politics who is prominent in finance and industry.

Dr. W. S. Solf, former Foreign Secretary, is known to have cast a wistful glance in the direction of Washington, but he has now been appointed Ambassador to Japan, which is regarded as a more agreeable assignment than any of the Continental posts.

Baron von Lucius, temporary representative in Rome, and Baron von Rosenberg, former Ambassador to Russia, are the only noblemen in the new diplomatic list.

GOMPERS FIGHTS SEDITION BILL

Says Adoption of House Measure Would Cause Reign of Terror.

CALLS IT MENACE TO LABOR

Asserts It Can Be Used to Kill Free Speech and Assembly.

DEEMS LAWS ADEQUATE NOW

Asks Palmer Why He Has Not Prosecuted Offenders Under Existing Penal Code.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—The American Federation of Labor went on record today in opposition to the Sterling-Graham sedition bill now before the House in a statement issued by Samuel Gompers, asserting that the bill not only threatens the life of organized labor, but would create an autocratic censorship over the entire American press.

The enactment of the measure, Mr. Gompers holds, would spread a reign of terror over the United States, fill the country with spies and special agents of the Department of Justice, and breed suspicion on every hand.

Mr. Gompers's statement follows, in part:

"The American Federation of Labor will oppose with whatever power it may possess the pending Sterling-Graham peace-time sedition bill. The proposed bill, if enacted, would violate the Constitution and rob the whole American people of their most cherished and basic guarantees of free government.

"If the American people and, in fact, a majority of the members of Congress were awake to the dangers concealed in this bill, a storm of indignation would sweep the nation. It has been widely advertised that this measure protects free speech fully, but prevents advocacy of forcible revolution, Bolshevism and anarchy. In fact, it would perpetuate an autocratic censorship over the entire American press. It can be used to kill free speech and free assembly. It strikes a deadly blow at legitimate organizations of labor or any other progressive movement for the betterment of the masses which may be opposed by the advocates of privilege and reaction.

"The supreme danger of this bill lies in its vagueness and in the manner in which it may be administered; and to bring home these perils to liberty, I submit the following bill of particulars, which illustrates but in small part what may actually happen.

"Passing over sections 1 to 4 because they are covered by the existing Penal code, let us refer to Attorney General Palmer's contention that new laws are necessary to reach the individual who advocates opposition to the Government by violence. Then what is the meaning of Section 4 of the Penal Code, which reads:

"'Whoever incites, sets on foot, assists or engages in any revolution or insurrection against the authority of the United States, or the laws thereof, or gives aid or comfort thereto, shall be imprisoned not more than ten years or fined not more than $10,000, or both.'

"If revolution is afoot, why has not the Department of Justice made prosecutions under that section?

"Section 6 perpetuates the censorship of the Postmaster General over all newspapers and printed matter. The so-called Borah amendment, providing a court review of the Postmaster General's action, is sound in principle but is inadequate to afford protection as a practical matter to a publisher against the autocratic action of the Postmaster General. It would be criminal, for example, for a man to send a letter advocating resistance to an injunction issued by a Federal judge ordering workers on strike to go back to work. Moreover, this section can be used to prevent the organization of colored labor under the guise of inciting 'racial prejudice the intended or probable result of which appeal is to cause rioting, &c.' No doubt advocacy of, or opposition to, the cause of Irish freedom would in some sections be prohibited.

Sees Great Threat at Labor.

"Section 9 makes unlawful every association which seeks 'directly or indirectly' to make political changes by injury to private property. If a hostile Federal judge should decide that any particular strike has a political end in view and the striking union is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, the A. F. of L. would be compelled at once to expel the striking union or itself become unlawful. And it would at once become a crime punishable by up to twenty years' imprisonment or by up to $20,000 fine, or both, for any person anywhere in the nation to rent a hall or business office to any labor organization affiliated with the A. F. of L. to give or loan it money to send strike relief to starving women and children.

"The inevitable result of this bill, if enacted, would be to spread a reign of terror over the United States, fill the country with spies and special agents of the Department of Justice, fill the land with suspicion, and heresy hunting would quickly become a national industry. American citizens who love liberty and love America cannot stand idly by and permit this legislation to be enacted. Unless we oppose it our children and our children's children will regard us as cowards and poltroons, faithless to the heritage of our fathers and the struggles of the human race for liberty. If the principles of Magna Charta and the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States are not worth fighting to preserve I have wholly misconceived what patriotism and love of freedom mean."

MUSIC

By Richard Aldrich

The Friends of Music.

The concert of the Friends of Music in the ballroom of the Ritz-Carlton yesterday afternoon offered a large and varied selection of music by American composers, counting Ernest Bloch now as an American composer. The program comprised an intermezzo from Daniel Gregory Mason's string quartet, Op. 17, two movements from an unfinished quartet by Sandor Harmati, Mr. Bloch's suite for viola and piano, and Rubin Goldmark's piano quartet in A minor. The quartet movements were played by the Letz Quartet, with Harold Bauer's assistance, in Mr. Goldmark's piece; Mr. Bloch's suite was played by Louis Bailly and Mr. Bauer, who gave a performance of it in Aeolian Hall not long ago.

This music was all interesting and all worth playing. So much, however, that was new in unfamiliar modern idioms, much of it difficult, put a severe tax upon the listeners' powers of reception and assimilation. It was significant that so much that is excellent, so much that implies high technical skill as well as the highest ideals in an ideal form of art, should be forthcoming at the same time from New York musicians.

Mr. Mason's quartet movement is music of fine feeling, the product of a free and supple fancy, filled with charming and delicate instrumental effects, music that incites interest in the rest of the quartet. Mr. Harmati is the second violin of the Letz Quartet, a musician of evident talent and individuality. His movements are marked "Allegro misterioso," characterized by a curiously interrupted strongly marked triple rhythem and sharp changes of mood, in a vein of fantasy, and a warmly felt "Adagio maestoso." There is the freshness of youth in the music, perhaps also some of its immaturities and something of a tentative character. But the expression is individual and the writing for the instruments skillful.

Mr. Bloch's powerful and stern-visaged suite is music of a sort that endures repetition. So does the genial piano quartet of Mr. Goldmark, a work in which there is a strong feeling for beauty.

George Hamlin's Recital.

George Hamlin, one of the most admired of American tenors and one of the best known, gave a song recital yesterday in Aeolian Hall, as he has rarely failed to do for a good many years. Mr. Hamlin is admired not chiefly for the sensuous beauty of his voice, but for his keen feeling for music, his high intelligence, the value and significance of the interpretations that these qualities enable him to give. He sang yesterday in better voice than he has shown for a good while, with richer quality and with a surer command of all his resources.

His program was interesting and varied, including an operatic air by Bonancini, once the rival of Handel; old Scotch airs in Kreisler and Warlich's arrangements, four songs by Brahms in English translations, that gave a glow to the program that too many programs miss nowadays, and a group of four negro spirituals arranged by H. T. Burleigh, besides songs in French and English—one by Samuel Lover that he had to repeat.

Mr. Hamlin's singing of these things had the true touch of a discerning artist, fervor, grace, lightness, deep feeling; a marked and significant determination of the mood and a clearness of diction that made a book of the words unnecessary. There was a large audience, which displayed much appreciation in applause.

TEN OPERAS IN A WEEK.

Metropolitan Tells Its Plans, Including "Coq d'Or" Matinee.

Ten operas, counting a double and a triple bill, are announced at the Metropolitan for the week beginning next Monday, Jan. 26, when New York will enter on a month or more of grand opera given both daily and double daily by two famous companies. Gatti-Casazza's list will include an extra matinée of "Coq d'Or" on Tuesday, Jan. 27, while at the regular matinée on Saturday, Jan. 31, a production of "Cleopatra's Night," with Harrold and Alda, will be followed by "Pagliacci," with Caruso.

Signor Caruso will sing next Monday night in "La Forza del Destino." Mme. Farrar will appear in a Wednesday evening performance of "Faust." Other operas for the same week are "The Blue Bird" on Thursday, "Oberon" on Friday evening, and Puccini's three little operas at a popular Saturday night. The company will also give a performance of "Il Trovatore" at the Brooklyn Academy on Tuesday evening.

Next Sunday's concert stars are Claudia Muzio, Orville Harrold, and the pianist, Arthur Rubinstein. Last evening Anna Case returned to the Opera House, singing an air from "Louise" and her own "Robin Song." Mme. Besanzoni gave airs from "Prophete," "Gioconda" and "Carmen," and Robert Couzinou sang two groups of songs.

THE PHILHARMONIC PLAYS.

Century and Manhattan Matinees Also Among a Day's Concerts.

Sascha Jacobsen was greeted by a great audience at yesterday's Philharmonic matinee in Carnegie Hall, where the young New York violinist gave a performance worthy of high praise in Mendelssohn's concerto; Josef Stransky conducted Schubert's "Unfinished" symphony and works of Dukas, Grieg and Rimsky Korsakoff.

Jacques Thibaud played Lalo's "Symphonie Espagnole," and not Bruch's violin concerto, at a matinee of the Orchestral Society's subscription series, now transferred to the Century Theatre. Margaret Namara sang airs from Debussy's "L'Enfant Prodigue" and Massanet's "Manon," and Max Jacobs led Tschaikowsky's "Romeo and Juliet."

Serge Prokofieff, Vladimir Resnikoff and other appeared at the Manhattan Opera House yesterday before a large assembly of the Workers' Music League. Sam Franko gave the fourth of his chamber music evenings at Washington Irving High School. Ruth Cramer and Janet Jackson had an evening of dances at the Greenwich Village Theatre.

5,000 Applaud Russian Dancers.

Michel Fokine and Vera Fokina, the latest Russian ballet stars to reach America, appeared with an orchestra conducted by Arnold Volpe last night on the vast stage of the Hippodrome, where their performance, the second that these artists have given in New York, was applauded by an audience of 5,000. The pair gave a waltz, and the male dancer a mazurka, from M. Fokine's ballet, "Sylphides," to music of Chopin. Mme. Fokina repeated to Saint-Saëns's "The Swan" her interesting modification of it as "The Dying Swan," with a poignant moment of fluttering death struggle, and was enthusiastically encored. The program ended with Russian village dances, given recently at the Metropolitan, where M. and Mme. Fokine will again appear on Feb. 10.

MEXICAN SLAYER TO DIE.

GEORGETOWN, Texas, Jan. 18.—Juan Chaballa, a Mexican, was found guilty of murder and sentenced to death today in connection with the murder of Atanaccio Brabo, his wife and nine-year-old daughter, also Mexicans, near Jarrell, last month.

The murder of the Brabo family became of more than local interest when a Mexico City newspaper recently declared "the Sheriff and the Judge" had reported their inability to apprehend the slayer. The newspaper declared that hatred for Mexico, engendered by certain American newspapers, was responsible for the Brabo murder.

SEEKS WORKMEN'S AND FARMERS' VOTE

Social Democratic League Proposes Combined Effort at Polls and Opposes Two Big Parties.

An appeal for support of the Workers' Independent League plan was issued last night by the Social Democratic League of America in a broadside arraigning all the present political parties, setting forth the probable failure of a third party, and asserting that such a union of workers and farmers probably could elect fifty or a hundred Congressmen.

Charles Edward Russell, Henry L. Slobodin, William English Walling and J. G. Phelps Stokes sign the appeal, which says:

"Workers of America! We appeal to every labor union of the country to give immediate and careful consideration to the Workers' Independent Political League plan—which is already in successful operation in Minnesota and gives every promise of actually capturing the whole machinery of that State for the cause of labor and democracy and electing a dozen Congressmen and a Senator in the Fall elections.

"Workers of America! Do you intend once more to support a party that, completely reversing its admirable war record, has tried to destroy organized labor by the mandatory injunction and has taken the blame for high cost of living off the shoulders of the profiteers and placed it on the backs of labor—a party that has used all its power to prevent a real increase in wages, an increase beyond the cost of living?

"Do you intend to support either of the parties that is trying to make a railroad strike a felony and any strike of Government employes a crime?

"Do you intend to support the Republican party that is openly outbidding even the Bourbon Democrats for the support of reactionary employers, trust magnates and Wall Street?

"We know your answer. Well, then, there is only one way. The political policy hitherto followed by labor (whatever its justification up to the present time) is no longer effective, for it has not been able to prevent the present nation-wide assault on labor, which—by putting the forces of progress on the defensive against the menace of reaction—postpones indefinitely the prospects of any constructive and democratic measures whatever."

The statement tells of the meeting in December of a committee of the American Federation of Labor and the Railway Brotherhoods to formulate a plan for independent political action, and referring to that plan, says:

"The Labor Party, which put forth an almost identical program in its first national convention held at Chicago a few weeks ago, proposes the third party method. But the Labor Party accepted—tacitly though willingly—for the States of North Dakota and Minnesota—the Workers' Non-Partisan League, which has brought about the co-operation of labor with the Farmers' Non-Partisan League of three States.

"Here is a method and the only tried method by which farmers, workingmen, and the similarly situated elements of the urban middle classes can co-operate in every State of the Union."

LANSING WITHDRAWS OBJECTION TO CANAL

Now Approves Project to Free Imperial Valley from Mexican Water Restrictions.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Objections previously expressed by the State Department to the construction of an all-American canal along the California border which would free 55,000 settlers of Imperial Valley from dependence upon Mexico for water for irrigation purposes, were withdrawn today by Secretary Lansing in a letter to Representative Kinkaid, Republican, Nebraska, chairman of the House Committee on Irrigation.

Secretary Lansing in approving the Kettner bill, designed to remedy the existing condition, wrote that while not having altered his opinion of the desirability of entering into an agreement with Mexico respecting the irrigation rights, he considered the provisions of the bill "useful in bringing about the future negotiation of such a treaty."

THE SCREEN

People have been asking recently, "Why doesn't Mary Pickford grow up?" The question is answered at the Rivoli this week. It is evident that Miss Pickford doesn't grow up because she can make more people laugh and cry, can win her way into more hearts, and even protesting heads, as a rampant, resilient little girl than as anything else. She can no more grow up than Peter Pan. When she stops being a child on the screen, she'll probably just stop. But that time is a long way off.

These things seem demonstrated by Miss Pickford's latest picture, "Pollyanna." Seldom before has she been as completely and unalterably a child as in the screen version of Eleanor Porter's well-known story. She doesn't even grow up for the last, lingering love-lock with which all orthodox movies must end. Her "leading man" is Howard Ralston, surely not over 15 years old, and their dream, with which the picture closes, is such as two children would have. He becomes a rich motorman and takes his wife and family out for a free ride every Sunday afternoon. He appears, impressively attired in uniform, cap, badge, and everything, in command of his car. She wears an encumbering dress, much too long and too big for her every way, but with his help succeeds in loading their eighteen or twenty children into the car, and away they go for a free ride.

This sort of thing, of course, is certain to delight children, but will adults, therefore, be bored or, at most, mildly amused by it? Some, perhaps; but they didn't seem to be present yesterday afternoon. Whether they were ashamed of it or not, they gave every sign of enjoying the picture as much as any little tot in the house. They laughed, and in the sentimental places—they blew their noses. Today they may say that "Pollyanna" is too silly and saccharin, but they couldn't tell it so to its face yesterday afternoon.

It is true that there are objections to such a story as "Pollyanna." This "glad game" deliberately played, this eternally, infernally, ebullient optimism—well, in a human being with whom one comes into work-a-day contact it is a provocation to justifiable homicide, but somehow objections seem to wabble and fall down before Mary Pickford's "Pollyanna." In the first place, she is so extremely enjoyable as a little girl, regardless of her constant "be glad," and, in the second place, although she applies joy to everybody, she doesn't rub it in. In the third, fourth, fifth, and other places, she is surrounded by a delightful cast in a remarkably well-made moving picture. Young Mr. Ralston is a real boy, and Helen Jerome Eddy, who has played leading parts in "The Turn of the Road" and other productions, is a screen actress of ability, and shows it again in the part of a very human maid. Paul Powell, the director, used his material well, and made many neat pictures. Frances Marion did her share in the writing of the scenario.

"Pollyanna" is Miss Pickford's first work for the United Artists' Corporation, formed by D. W. Griffith, Douglas Fairbanks, Charlie Chaplin and herself. It is reported that she was the real boss of the production, and, if so, proved herself a competent one.

"The Cloud," the beautiful Post scenic illustrating Shelley's poem of the same name, which was shown at the Rivoli some months ago, is there again this week. Those accustomed to walk on paved streets with their heads down and a soft coal smoke screen between them and the sky when they happen to look up, should see it once, if never before; twice, if they saw it the last time. It will do them good.

The photoplay at the Strand is "The Beauty Market," with Katherine MacDonald in the leading rôle. It takes itself seriously, but many of yesterday afternoon's spectators seemed to think it comic. They laughed just when the hero was telling the heroine that he had married her for hate, and would like to do all sorts of terrible things to her because she had cheated him, but, damn him, he couldn't because he loved her. The story is a stock "society romance" designed to overwhelm romancers of sweet sixteen, and the trouble yesterday was, perhaps, that the youthful ones, instead of being at the Strand, were skating in Central Park.

Undeniably, Miss MacDonald is pretty, but the story was too much for her and the others in the cast, especially with its platitudinous and heavily heroic subtitles. It is about a girl who consents to marry for money, and when she is prevented by her own carelessness, coincidence and a villainness, marries for love a man who has plenty of money.

"The Lone Wolf's Daughter," a rather slow-moving melodrama not troubled by any regard for logic or possibility, is at the Capitol. Louise Glaum is in the leading rôle.

"Life in Algeria," a colored travel picture, is also on the program.

"Nothing but the Truth," with Taylor Holmes, came to the Broadway yesterday afternoon, and with it a stage offering called Cleveland Bronner's Revue. "The Cinema Murder," with Marion Davies, and "The Rink," a Chaplin revival, are at the Rialto.

"Battlefields of France" was the subject of Burton Holmes's travelogue at Carnegie Hall last night. It will be repeated at the same place this afternoon.

Barrymore Coming in 'Richard III.'

"The Jest" will end its engagement at the Plymouth Theatre in another four weeks and John Barrymore will then be seen in his promised revival of Shakespeare's "Richard III." Robert E. Jones, Arthur Hopkins's scenic director, spent last Summer in England assembling the costumes and settings for this production. "Richard III." will be produced at the Playhouse during the week of Feb. 16.

FINANCIAL SITUATION

Campaign to Reduce Loans for Use in Speculation Makes New Progress.

Last week's decline of industrial stocks was so closely linked up with the situation of bank credit that one needs not look further afield for an explanation of the fall. At the same time, there were outside influences of a sort to undermine speculative sentiment, even of a kind to stimulate sales from abroad of American securities. To mention one of these, the news from Paris that the allied powers had been moved by the approach of Bolshevist forces toward the boundaries of Persia and India to consider measures of defense was of a character to arouse thought of fresh international difficulties. Renewed declines of certain foreign exchanges, in course of which sterling approached its December minimum level, were hardly cheering to those who study closely the monthly foreign trade records. But scarcity of credit and the positive measures enforced to strengthen both Federal Reserve and member bank resources had the primary application to stocks. To find time money scarce at 8 and 8½ per cent. and to have high call money in the first half of January is contrary to the experience of lenders and borrowers. To have offerings of demand money so scant as to produce an 18 per cent. rate before Jan. 15 is so extraordinary and novel as to denote conditions which need correction. The banks acted to curtail loans and Federal Reserve officials emphasized the need of such a step by informing some of the bankers that not alone must speculative use of credit in the security market be checked, but also must the movement extend to commodities, merchandise, to all things, in fact, from which credit could be released. Stocks, being the most sensitive, reflected the program quickest, especially those groups which had continued to advance despite the overturn of speculative endeavor which occurred in November. Having acted first, it may be that the week's recession, laid upon top of the liquidation of November, brought stocks to a level where they will be less vulnerable to additional events in the process of getting loans down. Certainly declines which extended from 5 to more than 30 points not only released a substantial amount of funds previously used to carry them, but brought into being a short interest whose later operations should be a factor in stabilizing quotations. Whether or not the liquidating process as applied to stocks went far enough to have permanent results, the purpose of banking authorities to alter the speculative situation through concerted, positive action was fairly well established. Banks whose borrowings at the Reserve Bank exceed twice their combined capital and surplus have been informed that their loans must be reduced. The measures to be followed are left to the discretion of the bank managements. The statements of the Reserve Bank and the Clearing House institutions in the next few weeks should trace the course followed.

The need for putting the brakes on speculation by cutting down loans did not come last week out of a clear sky. The end of 1919 found the Federal Reserve system with an unpleasantly low ratio of reserve to liabilities, and in the first week of this month, when the figure should have displayed improvement, it made hardly any response to efforts to discourage rediscounts by member institutions, while at New York, largely through a loss of gold, the ratio moved lower instead of rising even a slight distance. That was sufficient warning. It had results last week which bodes well for further effort. The New York bank's ratio of gold reserves to outstanding reserve notes advanced nearly 6 per cent., compared with the report the week before, and the ratio of total reserve to deposit and note liabilities combined rose 2.8 per cent. At 4½ per cent., however, the ratio still stood too low to be satisfactory. A year ago, when Government borrowing had to be reckoned with to a greater extent than now, the ratio was 3.5 per cent. higher, and the proportion of gold to Reserve Bank notes alone was 8.6 per cent. above the figure at the end of last week. In some of the other Reserve districts the task of building up reserves is making considerable progress, doing so well, in fact, that it is believed portions of the burden at New York have been shifted in the last few days to the interior institutions. This should be only temporary assistance, tiding over the period until a lightened loan account, and, possibly, additions to gold holdings bring adequate support to the reserve position.

Commercial borrowings continue heavy, and, if reports from manufacturing centres are not too optimistic, promise to grow as the Spring season comes. But it is by no means only the business needs of the country for which the reserve system desires to provide for through the whittling down of loans of the less essential order. The appeal by representative men of many nations last week for a conference on world problems, chiefly centring in the matter of credits, suggests that in the Spring the American public and institutions will be asked to provide, together with neutral countries, a great reservoir of funds for parts of Europe. It is not supposing too much to state that the Reserve Board and the various Reserve Banks are acting in relation to credit conservation so as to be ready for that time. The market success of the $25,000,000 Belgian Government note offering last week, all of which was sold in a day, showed that a foreign issue, carrying a high yield and bearing special exchange privileges, is more attractive to investors than was thought probable two months ago.

In Wall Street opinion the vote of the New York Clearing House Association to limit interest in bank balances of interior institutions to 2¼ per cent. was registered in order to point the way for joint action by member banks when their representatives meet at Chicago toward the end of the month. With the rate fixed, the Reserve Banks may increase discount rates without being embarrassed immediately by competitive bidding for deposits on the part of institutions in the larger cities. Governor Harding of the Reserve Board hinted recently that the discount rate at New York would have to be increased, and the Street feels that there will shortly be a higher cost on discounts of ninety-day paper, although the Reserve Bank management is non-commital on the subject. A factor in the liquidation of stocks early in the week was a rumor that the Bank Directors had practicaly decided to raise the rate from 4¾ to at least 5 per cent., the time for announcing the change being deferred.

BETTER OPERATING CONDITIONS IN STEEL

AUTO SHEETS HARD TO GET

Lively Demand for Them Will Make Them Scarce for Months to Come.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 17. — Operating conditions in the steel industry continue to improve, though there is still much ground to be covered. In the Youngstown district, where labor shortage was the dominant factor for several weeks, conditions in this respect have been almost satisfactory in the past week or two, while generally speaking conditions in the Pittsburgh district have been fair for several weeks. At some of the wire mills, which were shorter of labor than any other finishing mill, there has been a noticeable increase in the past week in the number of men seeking employment.

The chief limiting factor in steel production now is the coke supply, which has not increased as rapidly as the demand resulting from the trade desiring to operate more blast furnaces. A few of the by-product plants are now operating practically normal, but some are still short of coal, this shortage also being due to conditions as to car supply. Coal supplies to steel mills are nearly, if not quite, adequate. Production of coke in the Connellsville and Lower Connellsville regions increased last week 2,654 tons only. An apparent decrease in the merchant furnace output was due to the transfer of the Orient plant from the merchant list to the furnace list, the property having been bought by steel interests.

The unfilled tonnage statement of the United States Steel Corporation again bears testimony that the bulk of the steel sold is at the March 21 or "stabilized" prices rather than at the advancing prices quoted by many relatively small mills. The Steel Corporation's unfilled obligations at the end of December were 8,265,366 tons, indicating an increase during the month of 1,139,036 tons. As the shipments were about 950,000 tons, the new bookings amounted to more than 2,000,000 tons. The corporation made no sales at above the March 21 price list, but a relatively small part of its bookings was of contracts in which no specific price is stated, as the deliveries are so extended. Independents sold at least a few hundred thousand tons in December at the March 21 prices, while sales at higher prices cannot have been more than a few hundred thousand tons. Thus while some buyers have had to pay advanced prices and others have had to pay advances on small proportions of their supplies, the bulk of the sales has been at the stabilized level. Statements are in circulation that the steel market is getting out of control of those who advocate the stabilization policy, but such statements do not seem to take cognizance of the easily ascertained facts just cited.

Nails continue very scarce, but prices for early deliveries have shown no advance in the last few weeks, ranging from $4.25 to $4.50 a keg, against the stabilized or March 21 price—adhered to by the Steel Corporation—of $3.25. Labor conditions at wire mills have improved, but on the other hand the Spring demand for nails will soon be at hand.

The American Sheet and Tin Plate Company had slightly larger shipments of its products in 1919 than in the previous year, despite a steel industry decrease of between 20 and 25 per cent. As the Company's tin plate shipments decreased from 1918 to 1919, there was evidently a large increase in the sheet shipments. Automobile finish sheets are expected to be scarce for several months, on account of heavy demand, and some automobile makers are buying sheet bars in the open market and having them rolled into sheets at so much per ton.

While the pig iron market is dull, it reflects as much strength as in the past few weeks. There is a little demand for prompt pig iron, but with very little response. A number are sold up for the first quarter, and a few for the second quarter as well. Some ore producers are in favor of an advance of 50 cents a ton to meet the advance in pig iron prices. The pig iron market is quotable as follows: Bessemer, $36@$37; Basic, $35@$36; Foundry, $38@$40. These prices are f. o. b. Valley furnaces, freight to Pittsburgh being $1.40.

There are very few offerings of coke in the open market, as the seller can usually find a buyer whenever he has coke to sell, without going out of his way. Furnace coke is quoted at $6, and Foundry coke at $7.

The iron and steel scrap market has been quiet after the recent activity. Consumers find themselves fairly well covered, say to April 1. Dealers are disposed to keep as reserves such stocks as they have. There is not much war scrap left, but whatever there is will undoubtedly be held for further advances. Prices generally are unchanged from last week and transactions are light. There has been some demand for cast borings, but they are in limited supply.

In unfinished steel products there has been an increase in both demand and production of rods. Billets and slabs are scarce, but the tonnage wanted small. In sheet bars a very tense situation exists: Several of the regular customers have been in the market, and apart from that one of the new mills, now nearly completed, has been endeavoring to establish a new connection. In addition to this there are several consumers in the market with a scheme of buying sheet bars and having them converted. A large deal of this sort was put through several weeks ago, and that seems to have furnished an example. The great bulk of the tonnage put on order in the last few weeks, has been at the March 21 price of $42, but the casual or chance buyer could not think of purchasing at that price. Even the sheet mills with regular connections cannot secure protection for as far ahead as they want. Reports are that $55 or $60 can be secured for sheet bars for delivery in the next 30 to 60 days.

Mills that have been selling sheets at premium prices are now practically sold up for the first quarter, and sales extending into the second quarter are now being made, one good-sized lot of black sheets going at 4.90c., or $11 a ton premium over the regular rate of 4.35c. In a general way blue annealed and galvanized sheets would bring about the same premium as black sheets for similar deliveries. There is no indication that the United States Steel Corporation will change its policy of adhering to the March 21, or stabilized, prices. But the independents do not expect the premiums to come off as time passes. Some are, however, looking for still higher prices for third-quarter deliveries when the time comes around to sell for that delivery. On account of the scarcity in sheet bars the leading interest reduced its sheet mill operations this week from 96 to 89 per cent.

The starting up of the Bellaire (Ohio) works of the Carnegie Steel Company has brought about an impetus to the industry that is very satisfactory. The steel department, comprising two ten-inch converters, was started early this week, for the first time since the inauguration of the iron and steel strike. At normal operation the plant has an output of about 30,000 tons a month of billets and sheet bars, and they can also roll blooming mill slabs. Another blast furnace is to be blown in shortly, as soon as the coke supplies warrant.

The tin plate mills are operating as fully as possible, and the demand is ample for the output. There are heavy shipments now in connection with the Pacific Coast salmon trade, and the last of the tin plate must leave by the middle of February to be in time for the salmon run. Then there is a good demand from the condensed mill trade in Washington. This trade is growing year by year. In the first ten months of 1919 exports of condensed and evaporated milk amounted to 705,803,414 pounds, against 452,498,119 pounds in the same period of 1918. A trifle over half of the 1919 total went to the United Kingdom, France coming next with one-seventh of the total.

Export demand for tin plate is very satisfactory, and prices are relatively high, there being no difficulty in selling at $8.50, the domestic market being $7, and firmly held at that figure, though occasionally small sales are made at premiums. About 90 per cent. of the tin mills are operating, the chief limiting factor being the scant sheet bar supply.

A rumor in steel circles this week that the independent pipe manufacturers had advanced pipe 3½ points, was denied, but it is believed that the rumor was in the nature of a prediction that will be verified soon. An advance of 3½ points would put the pipe market back to where it was before the reduction of March 21, 1919, done for stabilization purposes by arrangement between the Industrial Board and representatives of the steel industry. Instances have been uncovered where the ultimate consumer of oil-country goods paid practically double prices for material. Producers adhering to the March 21 list cannot, therefore, hold the market at that level, because they cannot supply the entire demand.

The Pittsburgh district's coal production is not up to the mark, there being a car shortage, but the production is really very heavy. There is not much coal moving in the open market, but some sales are made every day, and contract shipments are good.

SHIP BIDS DUE TOMORROW.

Proposals for Former German Vessels Expected to be Near $150 Ton.

Persons who desire to bid for passenger ships seized from Germany when the war began must have their proposals in the hands of the United States Shipping Board at Washington by tomorrow. The principal conditions of the sale are that the ships shall be operated under the American flag and on routes approved by the Shipping Board.

Some steamship men suggested yesterday that bids probably would not be higher than $$150 a deadweight ton on account of the cost of refitting. The Leviathan, it was estimated would cost her new owners at least $3,000,000 to equip for the Atlantic passenger trade.

The discontinuance of bars on American passenger ships in the Atlantic trade is expected to make a large difference in the cost of operation. Shipping men agreed that the profits from drinks had helped to pay coal bills and that not a few regular Atlantic travelers would preferably patronize ships that were not dry.

Belgium's Industrial Recovery

NO nation in Europe has undertaken reconstruction after the world war, with more industrial will power than the Belgians, and Belgian Industry, in many lines is approaching normal activity.

Mr. D. L. Blount, until recently Director General, Central Office of Information under the Ministry of Economics, Brussels, has written a booklet under the title of "Belgium's Recovery" and from it are extracted the following figures and estimates on the resumption of Belgian industry:

Coal mines, 94 per cent, normal; refined sugar, 100 per cent: cotton spindles in operation, 75 per cent: cotton looms, 60 per cent: wool products, 75 per cent: shoes, 70 per cent: window glass, 34 per cent: plate glass, 36 per cent: the steel mills which suffered most, have resumed 30 per cent: 12 blast furnaces are now producing 10 per cent. of the output of the 54 blast furnaces in operation before the war.

Of the 9,797 pieces of machinery taken away during German occupation, 5,069 have been recovered.

Prior to the war three-fifths of Belgium's total area of 11,373 square miles was under cultivation, and the value of the produce averaged $100 per acre, a yield equaled by no other country. One man in every six was a land owner.

Belgian railways destroyed during the war have been practically restored. And with a total railway mileage of 5,400 miles, Belgium has the greatest railway mileage of any country in proportion to territory.

Before the war the thrift and industry of the Belgian people had earned their country eighth place among the nations of the world for wealth, sixth place in volume of total foreign trade, and first place in actual trade figures per capita.

In order to buy new machinery, as well as raw materials, Belgium needs credit of sufficiently long terms to permit her industries to bring up the volume of export to pre-war figures, and thereby reduce the unfavorable trade balance which now militates against her outside purchases.

To assist in this readjustment this issue of Belgian Government Notes is offered to the American people.

For full details regarding this issue reference is made to a circular describing the issue more completely, copies of which, as well as of Mr. Blount's booklet, may be had upon application.

January 19, 1920

As subscriptions for the above notes have been received to an amount in excess of the issue, this advertisement is inserted as a matter of record and in order to set forth the foregoing facts regarding the economic and industrial recovery of Belgium.

ROCK ISLAND ROAD URGES FAIR RATES

Directors Ask Stockholders to Work for Schedules That Will Attract New Capital.

CUMMINS BILL PREFERRED

Provision for Returns to Railroads Regarded as More Satisfactory Than Esch Measure.

The Board of Directors of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railway Company have mailed letters to all of their stockholders and bondholders asking that individual instructions be sent to the Representatives and Senators in each holder's district regarding pending railroad legislation. The letter asserts that the vital necessity of the new legislation is an adequate provision relative to a rate structure and that all other features are secondary in importance. The letter, which is the second to be sent by the board to holders of the company's securities, asks their co-operation on legislation, in pointing out that among those things most necessary in the new railroad laws are:

"To avoid unnecessary and wasteful competition, the Sherman Law should be amended to permit mergers, consolidations, and the pooling of facilities, equipment and traffic, under supervision of the Federal Government.

"Federal control over rates and regulations should be in the same hands as control over wages and the law should require that wages be taken into account in fixing rates. The Federal Government should have exclusive jurisdiction over the issue of securities necessary for improvements and refunding purposes, also over rates and other matters affecting carriers, leaving only strictly local matters to State regulation."

Touching on the importance of rate provisions in the new legislation the letter says:

"The vital necessity of the new legislation is an adequate provision relative to a rate structure. All other features of the pending bills are secondary in importance to the rate question. The rates must be so fixed as not only to protect the existing capital but also to attract new capital. The difficulty in the problem is that rates in any region must be the same for all roads, and that a rate basis which permits the average road to earn a fair return upon its capital will permit the most favorably situated roads to earn a very handsome return, while others may earn nothing at all.

"The House Bill, or Esch Bill as it is called, makes substantially no change in the existing law, as it simply in effect perpetuates the present requirement of the Interstate Commerce Act that all rates shall be just and reasonable. This has proved unsatisfactory in the past, and there is no assurance, in the law or otherwise, that it will be satisfactory in the future. The Senate Bill, or Cummins Bill, in Section 6 requires the Interstate Commerce Commission to divide the country into rate making groups, and to fix rates so that the carriers in each group shall earn a return equal "as nearly as may be" to 5½ per cent. upon the aggregate value of the property in that group. An additional ½ per cent. is allowed to be invested in non-productive improvements. The excess over 6 per cent. is divided; between 6 per cent. and 7 per cent., one-half goes to the carrier, to be used for a reserve fund, and one-half goes to the Government, to be used for a general railroad contingent fund; over 7 per cent., one-fourth goes to the carrier for its reserve fund, and three-fourths to the Government for its contingent fund; when the carrier's reserve fund reaches 5 per cent. of its property value, it may retain for its own purposes one-third of the excess over 6 per cent. The foregoing rates and bases for the division of revenue are subject to modification every five years. These provisions are very much more satisfactory to your company than the provisions of the House Bill.

Discussing other features of the legislation the letter reads:

"A definite return of 5½ per cent. upon the value of your property, even when coupled with a provision for a division with the Government of any excess over 6 per cent., is so immeasurable better than a return to the old manner of fixing rates that we believe it essential to your interest that legislation be passed fixing in a definite return."

NEW PLAN TO CUT STOCK DEAL DELAYS

Stock Clearing Corporation Expected to Make Deliveries in from 5 to 7 Minutes.

SOON TO BE IN OPERATION

Classes of Brokers' Clerks and Bank Representatives Now Forming for Instruction.

Finishing touches are being put on the machinery of the new Stock Clearing Corporation in rooms under the building of the New York Stock Exchange, and classes of brokers' clerks and representatives of banks are being formed to be drilled in the operation of the new system of clearing securities and bank loans which will probably be inaugurated within a month or six weeks.

Previous descriptions of the operations of the Stock Clearing Corporation, which was organized under the laws of New York with a capital of $500,000, divided into 5,000 shares, all of which are owned by the New York Stock Exchange, have omitted mention of its importance in reducing the delay and labor involved in the delivery of securities and the payment therefor and in facilitating the conduct of the business of Stock Exchange houses.

To this end the corporation is distributing a general description of the functions of the new machinery. This reads in part:

"Under the present system, a member of the Stock Clearing House who buys 1,000 shares of United States Steel and sells 900 shares has a balance of 100 shares to receive and pay for the next day. If, however, he buys 1,000 shares of United States Steel and sells 900 shares of Southern Pacific, no economy is effected. Under the new plan, in the case suggested, the proceeds of the delivery of the 900 shares of Southern Pacific will go to reduce the debt caused by the purchase of 1,000 shares of United States Steel, so that it will only be necessary to provide for the payment of the difference.

"At the present, when a loan is paid off which the broker wishes to reborrow, he must secure an intermediate credit from his bank for the purpose of paying off the old loan before the new loan is effected. Under the new plan, the banks or other lenders will send the collateral to loans to be paid off to the Stock Clearing Corporation and, while the securities are there, the old loans will be paid off and the new loans made and at the same time changes in collateral will be effected.

"It is expected that the operations of the Stock Clearing Corporation will reduce the demand for day loans from the certifying banks by at least 65 per cent. and firms now maintaining bank balances for the purpose of securing such accommodation will be enabled to reduce their bank balances. Certification will not be entirely eliminated and reasonable bank balances will still have to be maintained, but it is expected that the reduction in the bank balances which it will be necessary for clearing members to maintain will offset their contributions to the Clearing Fund."

Under the new system, which eliminates a great deal of lost motion necessary under existing conditions, it is estimated that deliveries will be made in from five to seven minutes. The average now is somewhere between thirty and forty-five minutes.

Officers of the Stock Clearing Corporation are Samuel F. Streit, President; Bayard Dominick, Vice President; Warren B. Nash, Treasurer; E. V. D. Cox, Secretary; Henry J. Case, Assistant Secretary, and C. P. Mathews, Assistant Treasurer.

Any exchange member or firm desiring to become a clearing member must have an application approved by the corporation and must sign the form of agreement prescribed by it and must contribute the amount required by it to the fund known as the Clearing Fund. The minimum contribution to this fund will be $10,000, and the entire fund will not be less than $10,000,000. Each clearing member will be subject to an additional liability equal in amount to his contribution to the Clearing Fund to make good losses affecting the corporation. The amount of each initial contribution will be based upon the volume of the applicant's transactions in the present Clearing House.

The Stock Exchange, in planning for the growth of the business which will have to be cleared through the corporation, has a large amount of space on the level of the present offices for expansion. This will be added to materially when the new Wall Street wing of the Stock Exchange Building is constructed.

BANK ASSETS GAIN NEARLY 3 BILLIONS

HUGE INCREASE IN DEPOSITS

Exceed Those of 1918 by $2,416,380,000—Public Absorbs $122,456,000 More in War Bonds.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Official returns by the national banks as of Nov. 17, 1919, to the Controller of the Currency, and just compiled, show a growth and development of banking power exceeding all records. On that date the national banks of the United States had resources of $22,444,992,000, an increase since Sept. 12, 1919, of $829,576,000, the greatest ever reported, and an increase for the year, or since Nov. 1, 1918, of $2,623,588,000.

The Controller announced tonight that the resources of national banks are now greater than the assets of all banks reporting, including State banks, savings banks, and trust companies, as late as June, 1910. In six years the assets of national banks have more than doubled. The cash in vaults and balances with Federal Reserve banks now exceed all previous records. Liberty bonds and Victory notes are being steadily absorbed by permanent investors. As compared with the returns of Aug. 9, 1913, the increase of resources of national banks is $11,585,000,000, or 107 per cent. in about six years.

Deposits on Nov. 17, 1919, were $17,467,853,000, an increase over Sept. 12, 1919, of $786,271,000, and an increase for the year, or since Nov. 1, 1918, of $2,416,380,000.

The increase in deposits was about a billion dollars more than the increase in loans for the year, the loans on Nov. 17, 1919, amounting to $11,560,242,000, an increase since Sept. 12, 1919, of $474,480,000, and an increase over Nov. 1, 1918, of $1,463,302,000.

The proportion of loans and discounts (exclusive of rediscounts) to deposits on Nov. 17, 1919, was 66.18 per cent., as compared with 66.45 per cent. Sept. 12, 1919, and 67.08 per cent. on Nov. 1, 1918.

The total cash on hand and due from four banks (including lawful reserve and items in process of collection) on Nov. 17, 1919, amounted to $2,488,755,000, the greatest ever reported, being an increase over Sept. 12, 1919, of $144,342,000, and an increase over Nov. 1, 1918, of $385,294,000.

Circulation of national banks on Nov. 17, 1919, was $680,879,000, a reduction over Sept. 12, 1919, of $710,000 and an increase of $5,182,000 over Nov. 1, 1918. Total of bills payable on Nov. 17, 1919, was $1,062,155,000, a reduction of $2,451,090 since Sept. 12, 1919, but an increase as compared to Nov. 1, 1918, of $124,318,000. The bills payable are largely based on Government securities.

The total amount of bills payable, exclusive of bills payable with the Federal Reserve banks, on Nov. 17, 1919, was only $56,199,000, showing the extent to which the banks now restrict their borrowings to Federal Reserve banks.

The total rediscounts (including $456,898,000 rediscounts with the Federal Reserve banks) on Nov. 17, 1919, amounted to $680,476,000, an increase over Sept. 12, 1919, of $239,566,000, and an increase as compared with Nov. 1, 1918, of $51,322,000.

United States Government securities owned by national banks on Nov. 17, 1919, including bonds of old issues, Liberty bonds, Victory Notes, Certificates of Indebtedness, War Savings and Thrift Stamps, amounted to $2,881,881,000, a reduction since Sept. 12, 1919, of $414,712,000, and a reduction since Nov. 1, 1918, of $274,431,000. Of the United States Government securities held by the national banks, Certificates of Indebtedness, Liberty bonds, Victory notes, War Savings and Thrift Stamps amounted to about $2,200,000,000, the balance being principally old United States bonds securing circulation.

The Victory notes and the United States Certificates of Indebtedness owned by the national banks on Nov. 17, 1919, amounted to $1,183,764,000. This exceeds by more than $120,000,000 the total of the bills payable of all national banks, including bills payable with the Federal Reserve banks and with other banks. In addition to the Victory notes and Certificates of Indebtedness the national banks also owned, on Nov. 17, 1919, $829,151,000 of Liberty bonds. The amount of Liberty bonds, Victory bonds and Certificates of Indebtedness held by all the national banks as collateral for loans was $1,122,953,000, a reduction since Sept. 12, 1919, of $122,456,000.

"As a majority of all the Liberty bond issues and Victory notes were placed through the medium of the national banks of the country," said the official announcement, "the above figures furnish highly gratifying and convincing evidence of the great extent to which our Government war issues have already been absorbed by permanent investors, and the small proportion of the Government war obligations which now are either owned by the national banks or held by them as collateral for loans."

Other bonds, securities, &c., on Nov. 17, 1919, amounted to $1,870,103,000, an increase since Sept. 12, 1919, of $63,508,000, and an increase over Nov. 1, 1918, of $209,638,000. Capital, surplus and undivided profits on Nov. 17, 1919, amounted to $2,194,052,000, an increase over Sept. 12, 1919, of $55,271,000, and an increase since Nov. 1, 1918, of $178,754,000.

The twelve States showing the largest increases in resources between Sept. 12, 1919 and Nov. 17, 1919, were: New York, $345,070,000; Texas, $169,688,000; California, $59,598,000; Oklahoma, $53,684,000; Virginia, $43,063,000; North Carolina, $38,003,000; Colorado, $28,958,000; Louisiana, $26,483,000; South Carolina, $24,897,000; Massachusetts, $20,517,000; Alabama, $19,620,000, and Minnesota, $18,869,000.

The reserve cities whose National banks show an increase in resources of $10,000,000 or more since Sept. 12, 1919, were, in the order named: New York, $343,109,000; Houston, $29,253,000; Richmond, $21,848,000; Fort Worth, $21,107,000; Los Angeles, $20,180,000; New Orleans, $12,655,000; Boston, $11,960,000, and Denver, $10,345,000.

Secretary Glass today announced that the total amount of subscriptions for Treasury Certificates of Indebtedness of Series T D—1920, dated Jan. 2, 1920, maturing Dec. 15, 1920, was $703,026,000. AFRICAN DIAMOND STOCKS FOR AMERICA

De Beers Company to Offer an Issue of 80,000 Shares in This Country at $47.

EXCHANGE PLAN PROPOSED

Five American Shares to Be Released for Two Deferred Shares of the Company's Stock.

An issue of 80,000 "American shares" of the De Beers Consolidated Mines, Limited, is to be offered in this market by Lazard Freres. The so-called American shares are to be issued under a deposit agreement with the Central Union Trust Company, whereby five American shares will be released against each two deferred shares of the company's stock. The price at which the new securities will be offered will be $47 each.

The De Beers Consolidated Mines, Ltd., has a capital of £6,107,395 divided into £1,007,395 De Beers 4½ per cent. South African Exploration debentures; 800,000 preference shares at £2 10s. each, and 1,000,000 deferred shares also at £2 10s. each. The deferred shares are dealt in on the London Stock Exchange and the Paris Bourse.

This is the fourth large foreign enterprise to be offered here. The other companies were the Royal Dutch Company, the Shell Transport and Trading Company and the Rand Mines. It is believed that other offerings of a similar character will shortly be made.

The De Beers Consolidated Mines, Ltd., was registered in 1888 in the Colony, now Province, of the Cape of Good Hope in the Union of South Africa. The company owns the mines of De Beers, Kimberley, Wesselton, Dutoitspan and Bultfontein, and practically the whole of the Koffyfontein Mine. It controls about 80 per cent. of the world's output of diamonds.

Dividends on the deferred shares have been regularly paid since 1909, with the exception of the years 1915 and 1916, when they were suspended owing to war conditions.

For the year ending June 30, 1919, the company paid 80 per cent. in dividends on the deferred shares, of which 20 per cent. was declared for the first six months and 60 per cent. for the second six months. At the present rate of exchange, the year's dividend was equivalent to about $3 per "American share."

For the first six months of the current fiscal year ending June 30, 1920, a dividend of 60 per cent. was paid, equivalent at the present rate of exchange, to about $2.25 per "American share."

Dividends will be received by the Depositary in sterling and distributed on the "American shares," in dollars, without deduction under present laws, for British or South African taxes, provided the "American shares" are shown to be held by persons who are not subjects of or ordinarily resident in the United Kingdom.

Application will be made in due course to list the "American shares" on the New York Stock Exchange.

AFTER RENT PROFITEERS.

East Side Collector Wants Tenants Paying Over $1,000 to Notify Him.

The Federal Government, through Internal Revenue Collectors, is after rent profiteers in this city, with a view to making them pay proper income taxes. Acting Collector R. J. McElligott of the Third District in this city, embracing the east side and the neighborhood above Twenty-third Street generally, asks all tenants who pay $1,000 a year or more to notify his office on forms 1099 and 1096, which are required by law.

In each case where the total of payments during 1919 to any person, partnership or fiduciary was $1,000 or more returns are required. The returns include payments for salary, wages, rent, interest, and other income.

When the Merchants' Bank was founded, New York City had attained a population of more than 60,000, and had already established its rank as the chief commercial center of the New World—with a notable domestic trade, and large imports, not only from Europe, but from the West Indies and the Far East. Then as now, sound banking was recognized as the first requisite for a great and growing commerce; and the Merchants' Bank, founded by merchants for merchants, was launched on its career of unbroken service.

RSC INVESTMENT SERVICE

Canada for Investment

The number of United States investors placing funds in Canadian securities is astonishing even to us, who handle so much of their business.

Yet, is not Canada a most logical investment field for the man who wishes to place money where the security provided is adequate and where the income-yield is from 2% to 4% higher than in the United States?

Conditions in Canada are stable. Labour troubles are few. Canadians are working—and production is increasing.

Just how favourable is the Canadian financial situation, is indicated in our United States Edition of Investment Items which will be sent free if you will write for it.

BRINKLEY PRODUCING & REFINING CO.
Oil Tabloid No. 9

On December 23rd, the Brinkley Producing and Refining Company received a telegram from Wichita Falls, Texas, saying, "The Paragon Oil Company is running our oil through their new line."

Under contracts, they are to take 3,000 barrels per day at current market prices up to March 1, 1920, and thereafter all the oil we can supply them from our Texas wells.

Figure 3,000 barrels per day, which is the estimated production of our wells Nos. 1 and 2. This should yield a revenue of $3,011,250 per annum. We have not yet considered our well No. 3, which has been drilled and which is producing. Neither have we taken into consideration wells Nos. 4 and 5, which are on the sand and ready to be drilled in.

Then there is a contract to drill more wells at no preliminary cost to the company; our own pipe line, storage tank and valuable contracts from which additional revenue is expected.

We are capitalized only at $5,000,000. What more need be said? It will be clear to the most conservative mind that this is an oil proposition of good value to the investor; one based on activity and real production.

Preceding history has been discussed in other issues of this newspaper. If you have not read of them and cannot wait for what will follow, it would be a pretty good plan to send your name and address for literature which will cover the whole matter in one reading.

Advertising is an Investment

GOOD ADVERTISING IS NEWS

The most effective advertising is news. It is the news of life—of the things that we eat and wear—of the things that give us comfort, convenience, pleasure.

A single sentence may convey the news that will create demand. A picture may express news that will arouse desire. When advertising is news it performs a public service because it helps us to live better, work better, play better. When advertising is merely platitudes and superlatives, its worth centers chiefly in the mind of its creator.

We have proved the value of news in advertising so positively and profitably that it is becoming of more and more interest to many discerning advertisers, who make advertising a profitable investment.

"Put it up to men who know your market."

PUT PRICE BOOSTS TO BUREAUCRATS

BRICK $25 A THOUSAND

Plenty of Material, but It Cannot Be Shipped for Lack of Cars.

Apparent Federal indifference to the nation's increasing need for more building space is held responsible for the constantly increasing price of building materials in this and other markets, and the constantly advancing cost of building construction, says The Dow Service Daily Building Reports today.

The situation has reached a point where building material manufacturing establishments have already closed down because they cannot get cars to ship material from overloaded warehouses. Others have withdrawn their salesmen. They have all the labor they want. They have more business in prospect than the mills can take care of for almost half a year, but still they have to shut down because the Railroad Administration has kept the building material industry at the bottom of the preferred list for car accommodation.

In consequence, no building material can be moved by rail until all other preferred industries have had car service and there are cars to spare for the building trades.

This apparent prejudice against building materials and building construction is not only holding back construction work all over the country, but it is causing a stampede for the small quantity of building material available in distributers' hands. Stampedes occur when buyers are willing to pay premiums for prompt delivery of needed building materials from dwindling building material reserves.

There is at present a temporary famine in brick, plaster board and cement. In Buffalo plaster board mills have actually closed with warehouses full and all the labor needed to operate a tremendous mill capacity, all because they cannot get cars to ship this material to this market.

In the meantime this market is practically barren of plaster board, except what can be furnished by certain small hand-made plaster board shops in this city. Incidentally the price advanced 2 cents a board last week.

The cement industry offers another illustration. There is a shortage of cement, but it is only a temporary one due to coal shortage and car curtailment. The mills in Zones 1 and 2, the Hudson and Lehigh districts, supplying this market, have capacity sufficient to supply more cement than the market can absorb.

Both have reported a great improvement in the labor supply, but they cannot get sufficient cars to make shipments. In New Jersey a general contractor figuring an important building operation was announced as low bidder, but every one of his supply men have withdrawn their estimates because building material interests were unable to guarantee the sub-contractors supplies of material on schedule owing to inability to get cars. Here is the situation in the cement market supplying New York, according to The Dow Service Daily Building Reports.

There are 329 kilns in the two districts. If they could run twenty-four hours a day and for 365 days, they would be able to turn out 54,398,650 barrels of cement. This is what might be called maximum production, which never has been attained. Operating 310 days, or 85 per cent. of capacity, these mills could turn out 46,193,100 barrels.

The best previous output for the district was only 30,000,000 barrels, including 2,000,000 barrels for export. The Government has denied this industry coal and it has denied it cars for shipping its finished product. The cost of bags has advanced $300 a thousand, or more than 200 per cent., and yet the leading minds in the industry absolutely condemn any further price advance.

They are not alone in their insistence that the Government ban on building and building material production be lifted. They say it offers the quickest and surest means of stopping this ruinous and constant increase in prices.

The building material dealers of New York have taken the lead in their demands for having the position of car preference on the Railroad Administration's list taken from the last to the first place. In winning the co-operation of the Merchants Association in this matter, the dealers pointed out that the housing shortage and rent profiteering has already constituted a national menace to business prosperity.

The Associated General Contractors of America, the National Lime Manufacturers, various lumber interests, building stone, crushed stone, sand and gravel manufacturers have all taken up the fight to wring from the Government bureaus recognition of the absolute necessity of lifting the wartime restrictions on the movement of building materials by rail and thus put the Administration on record of helping to solve the menacing house-famine throughout the country, instead of hindering it.

The financial institutions are the latest to join the protest against existing conditions by threatening to refuse further loans in such an unstable building material price market, yet this week's building material price list shows common brick rated at $25 a thousand, wholesale, or approximately $50 a thousand laid in a wall in Brooklyn or Bronx. The same list shows a further advance in hollow brick from $20 to $23 a thousand, and further price advances threatened in many other lines depending upon railroads for supply to this market.

The labor situation has greatly improved. Men are making the chief consideration permanency of work rather than shorter hours or higher wages at present. They say they are tired of theorists and propagandists. They want work, and are passing out of the former preferential wartime industries into the building material manufacturing industries, because of the promise of steady work and steady pay.

The difference in demand between this and former years is merely that of a stampede or an attempt by powerful building interests to corner the meagre building material supply, because cars are not made available to keep up the supply here.

The open weather and the starting of the 1920 building season, about sixty days before the season usually opens, has helped to stimulate this stampede.

Building material dealers, manufacturers, architects, and contractors have a way to bring about a stabilized building material price market, say authorities in the industry, and that is by backing up the efforts of the various organizations at work on the Fuel and Railroad Administration to change the preference of the building industry from last to first to check a growing national menace.

Taxing Energy or Income?

THE Government seeks to levy an authorized tax upon a taxpayer's income. Yet many individuals and organization executives are having not only their income taxed, but their energy as well—worrying, wondering, guessing how the tax requirements should be met.

And this because they attempt a task which had better be delegated to those especially trained for the purpose.

Certified Public Accountants can relieve taxpayers of all the uncertainty incidental to the preparation of tax returns, and can insure the determination of an accurate and just tax.

Our pamphlet, "The Income Tax," will be sent upon request.

GODDARD ROCKETS TO TAKE PICTURES

Scientist Believes Photographs Could Be Obtained Above the Earth's Atmosphere.

MUST FIRST EXPLORE AIR

He Suggests a Fund to Enable the Smithsonian Institution to Carry On Experiment.

WORCESTER, Mass., Jan. 18.—The possibility of photographing in space above the earth atmosphere is suggested in a statement made for The Associated Press today by Dr. Robert H. Goddard, Associate Professor of Physics at Clark College, who is perfecting a rocket which it is expected will carry recording apparatus to extreme altitudes.

Dr. Goddard does not prophesy, however, and says too much attention has been given to the chance that his rocket with a flash powder attachment may hit and illuminate the dark quarter of the moon. For the present the exploration of the atmosphere is the thing to be aimed at. In a signed statement Dr. Goddard says:

"Too much attention has been concentrated on the proposed flash power experiment, and too little on the exploration of the atmosphere. My reason for saying this is not because I believe the former is entirely unrealizable. In fact, if I were to speculate boldly instead of timidly, I would say that based upon equally sound physical principles is the possibility of obtaining photographs, in space, by an apparatus guided by photo sensitive cells (to guide it toward or near a luminous body, a method already proposed for directing high altitude apparatus), precautions being taken to insure a sufficiently safe and conspicuous landing on the return. To continue a speculation, however, on matters concerning which there is little experimental data would, of course, be unwise.

"The point is this: Whatever interesting possibilities there may be of the method that has been proposed, other than the purpose for which it was intended, no one of them could be undertaken without first exploring the atmosphere. Any rocket apparatus for great elevations must first be tested at various moderate altitudes. Also, a knowledge of densities at high levels is essential. Hence, from any point of view, an investigation of the atmosphere is the work that lies ahead.

"Inasmuch as no definite action is ever obtained without a definite proposition, I would like to propose, if the work is of sufficient interest, the raising of from $50,000 to $100,000 by popular subscription, to be used by the Smithsonian Institution in preparing for, and undertaking, a preliminary exploration of the atmosphere by the method in question, the work to be begun either now or at such a time as the Institution shall present such experimental results as will be satisfactory to those who are subscribing."

Dr. Grant Too Ill to Preach.

The Rev. Dr. Percy Stickney Grant, rector of the Church of the Ascension, was unable to preach yesterday, because of a serious cold and complications, from which he has been suffering for several days.

BUFFALO TIMES BURNED OUT

Norman E. Mack's Paper Heavy Loser in Half-Million-Dollar Fire.

BUFFALO, Jan. 18.—The buildings of The Buffalo Evening Times were burned today. The fire started at 7:30 A. M., and burned throughout the day.

The damage to The Evening Times and to adjoining buildings will reach $500,000. Firemen were handicapped in their fight by below zero weather.

The Evening Times fronts on Main Street. The mechanical departments occupied a four-story building in the rear, on Washington Street. On the ground floor of this building the fire started. The flames made such rapid headway that the firemen could not enter. The two top floors, housing the job printing department, caved in. At noon the presses in the basement were under water.

The Times is published by Norman E. Mack, a member of the Democratic National Committee. It will be published tomorrow from the plants of two of the other afternoon newspapers.

JEWISH philanthropic activities are cut in half by the dollar that buys only 48 cents' worth of food, medicine and service.

Winged Money!

How long will your heirs live in comfort?

VERY shrewd but equally unscrupulous men are preying on those who possess ready money. An authority on financial matters tells how. The following direct quotations from his article will give you a glimpse of methods and tendencies which might rob your family of comforts in the years to come:

> "It has been said that no matter how often the crop of wheat, cotton, or other basic products might fail, the crop of those who nibble at enticing but worthless stocks never fails."

Your heirs may not possess your own type of business judgment. They might accept the proposals made by salesmen of such securities.

Plainly—they must find many victims in order to earn these salaries. Your wife might be one.

> "It must be remembered that those clever promoters are often helped by expert journalistic talent. The operator in question is said to have paid numbers of really able newspaper men to write for him."

Part of the game is, of course, to make securities seem as high-class as they really are low-class.

In the light of such facts don't you feel the need of protecting your heirs with definite safety measures? Wouldn't you prefer to endow the money you leave with the same quality of cool-headed business judgment that enabled you to make it? You can, by establishing—

A COLUMBIA TRUST FUND

The plan is this:

1. A Columbia Trust Fund is simply money set aside under the protection of the Columbia Trust Company and invested to provide periodical income for definite objects. All such investments are passed on by our Board of Directors' permanent Committee on Investments.
2. Life insurance or any other money may be used to form the Trust Fund. We are bound by written agreement to carry out your wishes definitely and absolutely.
3. We will make investments of the Trust Fund for you in such securities as are lawful for Trustees, or, if you prefer, you can give us definite instructions to follow.
4. Income from the Trust Fund will be paid in installments to whom you wish and when you wish and in the amount you wish.

The following officers will welcome the opportunity to give you further details—without obligation, of course. At our downtown office, Mr. Warren, Vice-President, or Mr. Judd, Trust Officer. At our Fifth Avenue office, Mr. Dunn, Vice-President. At our Bronx office, Mr. Berry, Manager. At our Harlem office, Mr. Baker, Manager.
